To Hell with Public, Postie Boss Snaps

Times News Services

Inside postal workers booked off sick today in the Atlantic provinces as a row boiled over between Postmaster-General Bryce Mackasey and the postal union president.

Mackasey accused Joe Davidson, head of the 22,000-member Canadian Union of Postal Workers, of trying to inflame the members into a wildcat strike. Davidson angrily responded that Mackasey was lying.

He has been lying about the willingness of the post office to resume contract talks, Davidson said. There had not been a response on union requests for a clause dealing with automation and other issues.

Davidson told reporters the union wants to negotiate technological change in the post office because postal workers are more affected by automation than other employees.

"If the public won't see the justice of our cause, then to hell with the public," Davidson said.

Postal workers would suffer more from strikes than the public would.

Davidson warned of further action by the union in the next few days to show its displeasure with the post office and Mackasey.

He would not elaborate on strategy worked out by the nine-member national executive board of the union, but he cited as possibilities more cases of "Mackasey flu," work-to-rule and the refusal of overtime work.

Mackasey said he had a proposed clause on technological change and Davidson would see it if and when the union sat down at the bargaining table.

Davidson said the Montreal post office was like something out of Nazi Germany with police with billy clubs standing about. One supervisor had taken out a long-bladed knife and intimidated employees, he said.

He asked postal officials to prove that supervisors have been beaten up by postal workers. Mackasey has said postal supervisors have been beaten and their homes damaged.

Mackasey has been trying to divide the union for months, he argued.

"If he persists in his outrageous tactics, he will soon find he will have to suspend every postal worker in the country," he said.

Referring to a union press statement, Mackasey said that to suggest there are 400 policemen inside the Montreal post office "is a pure fabrication of the worst possible type."

Angrily responding to questions in the Commons, Mackasey said the statement "has no foundation, it is malicious and it is unreasonable and, as far as I am concerned, it is unworthy of anybody who is the head of a trade union in this country."

Claiming to be better friend of the postal workers than is their executive the Postmaster General declared he would not be intimidated into rescinding the suspensions and dismissals as a result of unlawful actions.

He added that he was glad to see that the union is now discovering the terms of its own collective agreement.

Drawing support from both sides of the Commons, Mackasey declared it was interesting the union was now finding some fault with the grievance procedure which for two months they have refused to recognize as the lawful method of solving legitimate differences of opinion.

Postal workers in Victoria stayed on the job today and post office spokesman Buz Sawyer said all shifts were operating normally.

SO YOU MISSED your seaplane flight to Vancouver — you can always wing it with a ducky little sky tour of the capital. Inner Harbor sightseeing is no longer confined to the water, as Mrs. Mallard and brood can attest. She's in charge of keeping overhead down, and with her down always rates high.

No More Politics In Naming of Judges

Provisions to take appointment of judges "right out of the realm of politics" are included in legislation introduced today by Attorney-General Alex Macdonald.

The Provincial Court Act, he said, creates a two-tier system of provincial court judges and a new category of Justice of the Peace for existing part-time lay judges.

The attorney-general retains the right to appoint judges, but only on the recommendations of a strengthened Judicial Council composed of a judge, a justice, and three other appointees.

Judges will also be given a free choice of whether to take a pension or continue their duties in temporary service.

Now only the attorney-general has the power to reappoint judges to a longer term of service past the retirement age of 65.

Macdonald said, however, that all new appointees to the bench will have to retire at 65, in line with the government's goal of working toward a younger bench.

Legal framework changes designed to clear congestion of the courts would speed up new trials.

Macdonald said current appeal systems allow the whole rerun of a trial, including the reappearance of all witnesses, an arrangement which is expensive.

Under new provisions a transcript of evidence already taken will be considered by the judge who, only in some cases, will recall key witnesses.

NO PLACE SATURDAY FOR SMOKERS IN B.C.

Smokers beware, for Saturday is Non-Smokers' Day in British Columbia, duly proclaimed as such in a provincial cabinet order signed by Premier Barrett and Health Minister Dennis Cocke.

The preamble to the proclamation notes that 756 British Columbians died from lung cancer in 1974 and that the "total death rate is lower in those who have stopped smoking cigarettes than in those who continue."

Non-Smokers' Day is sponsored by the Non-Smokers' Association of Canada.

The cabinet order is non-committal about what the non-smokers actually do on that day, besides non-smoking.

NEWS BRIEFS

Pig Farm Chosen

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Trevor Schmidt, 19, Cincinnati, called a police officer a pig when he was stopped for speeding. So he's had to choose between spending one day on a pig farm or 30 days in the workhouse. Schmidt chose a day on a pig farm.

Band Ordered Off

The Stuart-Trembleur Indian band must remove a blockade on B.C. Railway near Fort St. James before the provincial government will hold discussions on land claims with the band, Alf Nunweiler, minister without portfolio, said Thursday.

Nunweiler is a director of the railway.

Sniper Shot

BEIRUT (AP) — Police shot and killed a sniper early today following a night of scattered clashes between political and religious factions. It was the first known case of active intervention by joint ceasefire patrols of Lebanese security men and Palestinian guerrillas trying to restore order after 11 days of chaotic street fighting.

Viet Future Set

SAIGON (UPI) — Government sources said Thursday North and South Vietnamese officials have agreed in top level meetings that political reunification of this nation is at least five years away. The three-week meeting on the future of Vietnam has produced total agreement on all major points of discussion, including making Saigon a free market city while introducing socialism to the rest of the nation, the sources said.

Economic Stoke-Up For West

PARIS (UPI) — The industrialized nations of the west have decided to fire up their troubled economies, risking a new round of inflation to combat worldwide recession.

The 24-nation Organization of Economic Co-operation and Development said rising unemployment in the developed nations is a graver threat than spiralling prices.

The OECD, which decided last year to slow down economic growth to curb inflation, agreed at its annual meeting Thursday to do a tactical about-face.

But the OECD countries, including Canada, the United States, western Eruope and Japan, promised to try to avoid touching off a new round of soaring prices.

In announcing the joint stand, British Chancellor of the Exchequer Denis Healey said, "everybody is confident that an upturn is on the way."

U.S. Treasury Secretary William Simon predicted that the U.S. economy would snap out of its slump and top the growth rate of all other OECD countries by the end of the year.

"At the rate shown in our official forecasts, I have the impression that the U.S. growth rate may well be the highest among member countries during the second half of this year," Simon said at the end of the two-day meeting. (See Page 9).

But the treasury secretary found himself embroiled in a dispute with French Finance Minister Jean-Pierre Fourcade over the U.S. decision to abandon fixed currency exchange rates in 1971 and let the dollar float.

Justify Demand Unions Told

VANCOUVER (CP) — Unions must justify to the public their "clearly outrageous" wage demands, top negotiator for the newly-formed B.C. food industry labor relations council said Thursday.

Bill MacDonald, speaking at a press conference, said employers in the council were not embarking on a campaign for public support, but he warned that "it will be the consumer who will have to pay for those demands."

He estimated the demands now being sought would pile an estimated seven per cent on food prices, "over and above any price increases that can be expected to follow inflationary pressures in other areas."

MacDonald was referring to demands by the Retail Clerks Union Local 1518, Canadian Food and Allied Workers, meatcutters local, and the Bakery and Confectionery Workers International Union.

The council produced figures on the union demands and said the companies are "being asked to accept wage and benefit contracts ranging from a low of 42.6 per cent to a high of 87.2 per cent over a one-year period."

As an example, MacDonald said the unions are demanding that checkout-out girls receive a 51.4 per cent wage boost from $10,920 to $16,536 a year. "With fringe benefits, the total annual cost to the companies would rise 62.1 per cent from $14,711 to $23,821."

For meatcutters the demand is for $22,112 from $13,832 and for meat wrappers from $10,920 to $19,240.

About 4,000 workers in Greater Vancouver and Victoria are affected. The council has applied for two mediators to assist in negotiations.

The council says it is not looking for a strike. The food industry has been under some fire from other industrial employers for previous settlements and MacDonald said the council is "solid."

$1M HOT CAR RING SNAPPED

MONTREAL (CP) — Provincial police have broken a national car theft ring responsible for $1 million worth of stolen vehicles annually, a police spokesman said Thursday.

Police recovered about 60 cars, 24 rifles and shotguns, five revolvers and a large quantity of ammunition in a series of Montreal-area raids, the spokesman said.

Charges have been laid against several members of the gang and forty other arrests are imminent, he said.

The weapons were found in suburban Montreal.

Bomb Scares Follow Extortions

MONTREAL (CP) — A rash of false bomb scares Thursday added a new twist to the recent epidemic of extortions in the Montreal area, Montreal Urban Community (MUC) police said.

Seven bomb calls were reported by bank officials Thursday. In most cases, bank managers received telephoned threats that a bomb would go off in their banks unless demands for money were met.

No bombs exploded in the seven incidents and no money was paid.

Bank security officials are working with police and the justice department in an effort to put an end to attempts involving hostages which have netted extortionists $1.8 million throughout the province in the last nine months.

Kierans for 'Barrett Bank'

Former federal Liberal cabinet minister Eric Kierans will serve as a director of B.C.'s new banking institution.

Premier Barrett told the legisliture this morning Kierans is the first and only director appointed so far to the Savings and Trust Corp. of B.C.

The announcement came during Barrett's opening remarks in debate of legislation which would set up the new provincial bank.

Kierans, who served in the federal cabinet in the late 1960s, is now professor of economics at McGill University and past president of the Montreal and Canadian Stock Exchanges.

Barrett described him as an outstanding Canadian economist, a progressive thinker who is "willing to help this struggling little government."

Kierans will be working on a part-time basis at first but within a year, when the bank is realy to start operations, he will be working full time, Barrett said.

In his statement during second reading of the bill, Barrett said B.C.'s new corporation will be "the finest social and economic institution in the financial field ever created in North America."

The premier avoided discussion of the specific operation of the institution, which will have all the functions of a normal bank and is designed to operate through the credit unions of B.C.

Province to Purchase Ambulance Services

By DON VIPOND
Times Staff

The provincial Emergency Health Services Commission will start buying up close to 200 municipal and private ambulance services throughout British Columbia.

The commission, which took over operation of all ambulance services in the province 11 months ago, has been leasing their equipment and paying operating costs since then.

Dr. Peter Ransford, the commission's executive director, said Thursday that permission to begin buying the assets of the ambulance services has just been received from the provincial government.

Estimated cost of acquiring vehicles and other equipment is about $900,000 and most of the services are expected to be in the commission's hands by the end of this year.

Leasing costs have been running at the rate of $400,000 a year.

Ransford also said that after testing a variety of vehicle styles for ambulance work, the commission has settled on one van-style type to become the standard. It is a one-ton van similar to one used in mail service.

The commission will buy the stripped vans for about $6,000, modify and equip them itself at its Central Saanich workshop and produce its own ambulances at a cost between $13,000 and $14,000.

Ransford estimated it will represent a saving of about $5,000 an ambulance over buying a finished vehicle. An ambulance that cost $15,000 a year ago is now priced at $21,000, he said.

"We really can't buy what we want. Our experience is they either ride abominably, are too big and clumsy or just are not well-enough built".

The limousine-style of ambulance is out. They can't carry the 850 pounds of equipment now regarded as essential in emergency vehicles.

The standard ambulance the commission will produce can carry the equipment and up to four patients. The commission aims to make them last for 55,000 miles or 10 years.

There are 232 ambulances working across the province at the moment and Ransford calculated the commission will turn out about 45 of its modified ambulances a year for the first few years to meet replacement needs.

Of the 30 ambulances the commission has bought, four are four-wheel drive vehicles for more rugged work in the interior of the province.

While the commission, like all government services, is feeling government spending restrictions, Ransford said that if it is allowed to buy planned radio equipment, it will have a communications network which will cover 95 per cent of B.C. by the end of this year.

The remaining pockets are in rough terrain where radio contact depends on weather.

The radio network means every ambulance will be in touch with both its base and the hospital where it's heading, he said.

Children ARE People: Report

By LINDA HUGHES
Times Staff

Dramatic changes in B.C. family law, giving children a bill of rights and the power to take their parents to court, are recommended in a government report made public Thursday.

The fifth report of the Royal Commission on Family and Children's Law, a massive document in seven volumes, says children now have no legal status and are not even considered people under the Human Rights Code.

(● Government financial assistance for couples who want to adopt but cannot afford the move has been recommended by the Commission. See page 16.)

It recommends the law shift its emphasis from the protection of children to the rights and responsibilities of children.

A 12-point bill of rights for youngsters should be established, says the report, and included in an omnibus act containing all laws relating to children and the family.

The bill includes the right to food, clothing, housing; to "an environment free from physical abuse, exploitation and degrading treatment;" to health care and education.

It also assures the right of children to play and recreation; to legal assistance; to an explanation of all decisions affecting their status; and to parental and adult support.

The report contains 232 recommendations which revolve around the bill of rights and its application to such things as adoption, the needs of special children, the protection of children, custody and the status of children of unmarried parents.

A system of judicial declarations should be established, says the report, which among other things would allow a child to take his parents or the government to court for violation of his rights.

A child could seek a declaration, for example, to say his mother was not abiding by his right to food, clothing and housing.

The judicial declaration would have no power in law but the commission said it felt the social pressure on the parent would have its effect.

Through the declarations a class action could also be launched against the government or institution violating the children's rights.

In the volume on protection of children, the commission also recommends a child be able to take his parents to court to seek an order placing him under the care of the government or court because of "irreconcilable differences."

Million Names, Lang Unmoved

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Justice Minister Otto Lang, wary of the emotional abortion issue, Thursday refused to be swayed by a 1,000,000-name anti-abortion petition delivered to Parliament.

The Committee of One Million, composed of members of pro-life groups from across Canada, presented the petition at a noon-hour demonstration and it was read in the Commons by Ursula Appolloni (L-York South).

Questioned on the matter in the Commons, whose visitors Gallery was filled with anti-abortionists, Lang would only repeat that the government intended to review the 1969 abortion laws.

He indicated that the law as it now stood was clear enough but that its application in some cases was unsatisfactory and contrary to Parliament's original intention to protect the unborn while allowing therapeutic abortions in extreme cases.

The opposition pressed the government to take various courses of action to quickly review the legislation and drew applause from the galleries — something forbidden by regulations.

Lang told the House the government had not yet decided what kind of review of the laws it would make or when it would begin.

He told reporters outside the House that the functioning of some hospital therapeutic abortion committees was "a matter of concern" but he refused to give examples.

The law permits hospital abortion committees to order abortions in cases where the mental or physical health of the mother is endangered by the pregnancy.

The minister's concern appeared to be that some committees were interpreting the law too liberally.

When asked why he didn't take action against the committees, Lang said the 1969 legislation had entrusted that responsibility in the hands of provincial attorneys general.

The minister was asked outside the house if the huge anti-abortion petition would affect him or the decisions he has to make on the matter.

"It is very persuasive when a group can get over 1,000,000 names on a petition—it is something of a record," he said.

"We knew the strong feelings of this group," he added, "but there are equally strong feelings on the other side of the issue also."

Otto Jelinek (PC-High Park-Humber Valley) proposed a motion that the whole matter be placed in the hands of a special Commons committee empowered to hold public hearings.

Although the motion drew applause from both sides of the House and from the galleries, the Speaker declared it out of order based on regulations governing such motions prior to question period.

N.Y. CITY CRISIS BUDGET

NEW YORK (WP) — Mayor Abraham Beame presented an $1.8 billion crisis budget for New York City Thursday night which he said will force the firing of 38,000 municipal employees by July 1 and result in "unthinkable" curtailment of vital city services.

In an unprecedented live television broadcast from the City council chambers, the mayor bitterly assailed Wall Street's major financial institutions and the Republican leadership in the state capital in Albany for forcing New York into a "cold turkey treatment" of its $641 million budget deficit for the next fiscal year.

Beame urged the U.S. Congress to begin an inquiry immediately into what he called a "whispering campaign" by the big banks "to denigrate our fiscal integrity."

The banks have refused to advance the city $1 billion in short-term notes needed to meet current expenses and to pay off other notes that come due at the end of June.

Beame's crisis proposal is $3.3 million less than the current modified expense budget for New York and $1 billion below the $12.8 billion proposal made by the mayor several weeks ago.

The jobs to be dropped include 7,281 police officers, 2,304 firemen, 2,882 sanitation workers, 8,941 school employees and 3,500 hospital workers.

Quang's 'Corruption' Detailed

Times Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — U.S. government "biography" on the controversial South Vietnamese Lt.-Gen. Dang Van Quang contains allegations of extensive corruption but draws no conclusions as to his guilt, it was learned here.

The biography, a report drawn up for use by the state department, is almost certainly among the material on Quang turned over to Ottawa by the U.S. and now in the hands of Immigration Minister Robert Andras.

The material was provided at the request of the external affairs department on behalf of Andras, who is reviewing the status of the refugee general, now in Montreal, as a prospective immigrant.

The allegations about Quang include that he was a heroin trafficker, that he "enriched himself" securing military promotions in South Vietnam, and that his wife ran a string of brothels in the Mekong delta.

According to reliable sources who insisted on anonymity, the allegations are all reported but not proved.

On at least two occasions some American officials urged that Quang be removed from high positions in the regime of President Nguyen Van Thieu because they felt his "minuses" outweighted his "pluses" as a military strategist.

Quang was, in fact, removed from a military command post after strong criticism in the mid-1960s.

What follows is the sources version of U.S. information on Quang.

Quang (pronounced Kwong) was a classmate of President Thieu at military school.

The two shared a number of assignments as they rose through the ranks of the South Vietnamese army during the war years.

During this time, Quang and Thieu developed what has been described as "a close relationship."

In the mid-1960s, Quang was appointed commander of what was known as MR-4 region, the Mekong Delta.

At the time he was given high marks by U.S. advisers for native ability and resourcefulness. He was regarded as a very competent military leader.

But it was not long before many U.S. advisers became disturbed about frequent allegations of corruption that seemed to accompany Quang where ever he went.

now have that opportunity in cases where there are problems with children.

The commission says in custody and guardianship cases, where a child might be taken from one or both parents, the award should be made without finding fault.

Above all, the report says, the court should be the last forum for a decision or a child's future. It recommends a much wider variety of avenues open for dealing with children.

Other recommendations made by the commission include:

—Abolition of legal distinctions between legitimate and illegitimate children and equality before the law for all parent-child relationships.

—Provision of funds by the government in cases where it is determined there are special dietary and nutritional needs; special clothing needs and in-home service requirements; and where alternative accommodation for relief of parents is needed.

—Establishment of emergency 48-hour custody when child care authorities feel a child needs to be removed from his home immediately.

—"Emotional neglect" be a basis for removing a child from his home.

—Recognition of the special needs of handicapped children through a number of measures including compulsory training for teachers.

The five-member Royal Commission, headed by Mr. Justice Thomas Berger, started work in December, 1973, and has submitted five reports on family and children's law.

In preparation for this report, the commission travelled around the province holding public hearings and organized working groups including doctors lawyers, judges, social workers, pediatricians, psychiatrists and family counsellors.

Bell Seeks Two-Stage Rate Hike

MONTREAL (CP) — Bell Canada announced it will file an application with the Canadian transport commission next month for rate increases.

The proposed increases would be in two stages and would be implemented Aug. 1 and Oct. 1 of this year.

A spokesman for Bell Canada said he could not reveal the extent of the increases until they were filed.

The increases would affect mainly long distance, optional and auxiliary services such as extension telephones and PBX services. They would not affect primary residence telephones nor basic business telephone services.

The increases would increase Bell's revenues by about $102 million annually or 6.2 per cent.

Justify Demand

He disclosed the council has been to Ottawa and Victoria to explain the problems. "To all of them we gave the same message — that the consumer will have to pay for these demands through higher food prices (And it is because we are bargaining for the public's money that we formed this labor relations council. Our members believe we must take a uniform position against these excessive demands because we have a responsibility to try to protect the interests of our customers."

MacDonald said the industry has offered a 12.4 per cent increase for all workers and said "there is no justification for going beyond the cost of living."

However, he did not rule out a move on this offer. MacDonald also said the companies cannot meet demands out of corporate profits.

He denied the industry was run by Canada Safeway, the major company, or that profits are funnelled off to U.S. headquarters.

He said the Food Prices Review Board is satisfied that there are not excessive corporate profits.

The companies in the council are: Canada Safeway Ltd., Empress Foods Ltd., High Low Foods Ltd., H. Y. Louie Co. Ltd. Independent Super-Valu operators, Kelly Douglas and Co. Ltd., McGavin Toastmaster Ltd., Mrs. Willman's Baking Ltd., Overwaitea Foods, Stong's Market Ltd. and Weston Bakeries Ltd.

Korea Deal Queried

OTTAWA (FP) — Canada, by its eagerness to arrange a sale of a CANDU reactor to South Korea, is adding that trouble spot to the nuclear club thereby increasing the risk of a nuclear holocaust, the Commons was warned Thursday.

Opposition members closely questioned Industry, Trade and Commerce Minister Alastair Gillespie in the house on the details of the agreement announced Wednesday.

The federal government and a group of Canadian and British banks have agreed to lend sale." It added South Korea to finance the sale by Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd. of a 600-megawatt Candu nuclear power generating plant to Korea Electric Co. of Seoul. The company is a publicly held firm.

Stuart Leggatt (NDP-New Westminster) said there were "great risks inherent in this sale." It added south Korea to the nuclear club. This was risky because of the new strategic situation developing there following the withdrawal of the United States from South Vietnam.

There is concern in South Korea that North Korea may try to move into South Korea just as North Vietnam moved into South Vietnam and took it over. It is regarded as a danger spot and a threat to world peace.

Gillespie said he had explained that the sale was conditional upon "appropriate safeguards" being worked out and signed bilaterally between Canada and the Republic of Korea.

The NDP member wanted to know if the agreement contained any sanctions or penalties in the event of default in the future to comply with Canadian safeguards. He wondered what would happen in the event of an emergency South Korea diverted plutonium from the CANDU reactor to manufacture nuclear explosives.

The minister said that matter is under consideration. He said the negotiations are not yet completed.

Gasmen Press For Go-Ahead

OTTAWA (CP) — A natural gas pipeline to the North will be delayed a full year unless speedy approval is granted for construction, officials of Canadian Arctic Gas Pipeline Ltd. said Thursday night.

Warning that natural gas supply from fields in southern Canada is growing short, they told a Commons committee there is an urgent need to tie in northern supplies by 1980.

But to meet that timetable regulatory bodies must approve the project by early next year, company chairman W. P. Wilder told the MPs.

Foreign Takeovers Okayed

OTTAWA (CP) — The government has approved the takeover of seven more Canadian companies under the Foreign Investment Review Act and turned down two others, an industry department statement said Thursday.

Some tough bargaining by the Foreign Investment Review Agency is evident in at least one takeover. The agency negotiates for investment and jobs in Canada, but the cabinet has the final say in any acquisition by a foreign company.

GWS-Krupp Industries Ltd., owned 50-per-cent each by West German interests and by publicly-traded Great West Steel Industries Ltd., took over the Edmonton structural steel plant of Great West Steel Industries Alberta Ltd. But not before it made several commitments, including:

—Doubling the plant size by 1978.

—Granting an exclusive licence from Krupp to make mining and materials handling equipment in Alberta, British Columbia and Saskatchewan, and a non-exclusive licence in the rest of Canada.

—Making capital expenditures of $1.75 million during the next three years.

—Adding to current production lines to include manufacture of a range of materials handling equipment including excavators and conveyors.

The agency estimates employment at the Edmonton plant should rise to 500 from the current 275 in the next three years.

Among the other approved takeovers were two by Liquid Carbonic Canada Ltd., which is controlled by Houston Natural Gas Corp. They were to acquire control of Alberta Oxygen Ltd. of Edmonton and of Leclair Gas and Welding Inc. of Quebec City.

Here's the Way Money Goes . . . Mostly from Consumers

OTTAWA (CP) — The consumer spent $57.10 of every $100 paid out last year, compared with $65.30 in 1954.

By contrast, the federal government spent directly $5.70 of every $100 last year, down from the $9.50 of 20 years ago.

All levels of government spent directly $23.40 of every $100 compared with $18.20 in 1954.

These Statistics Canada figures shed some light—but only some—on spending patterns at a time when governments are under attack as being main culprits in fuelling inflation through heavy outlays.

The statistical trend is that consumers are able to spend less because governments are spending more money for them. A major factor is spending by the provinces on medical care and hospitalization.

Industry Minister Alastair Gillespie in a recent speech in Vancouver took issue with the contention that governments account for about 40 per cent of all national expenditures.

Public demand for more and better services has expanded government spending, Mr. Gillespie said.

"The person who complains that government spending is high is the same person who will also complain that he gets just one garbage collection a week," the minister said. "He wants two."

Why the big gap between the $23.40 per $100 spent directly by all governments last year and the figure of about $40 per $100 claimed by critics of government spending?

The answer lies in the word directly.

The federal government spends directly on such things as defence, a variety of public works projects from wharfs and warehouses to bridges and roads, public service salaries, prisons and the machinery for collecting taxes.

But indirectly, it does much more by collecting revenues and passing them on to others as family allowance payments, grants to industry, unemployment insurance benefits and old age pensions.

Hence the figure of government responsibility is about $40 of every $100 spent last year.

The business community is the third element in national spending behind the consumer and governments and last year the Statistics Canada figures say this accounted for $20.10 per $100 compared with $21.30 in 1954.

Adding up the expenditures of the three groups does not total 100 per cent because of business inventories of unsold goods.

The increases in spending on medical care and hospital payments are a major factor in a dramatic increase in direct spending by provinces.

Last year, the provinces spent directly $6.70 out of every $100. Twenty years ago it was $3.20 out of every $100 while 10 years ago it was $4.20 and five years ago $5.

Governments at all levels collected almost $70 billion last year and spent directly $32.6 billion. The federal government collected more than $29 billion but spent directly only $8.3 billion.

Money governments distribute for others to spend are called transfer payments. A total of $8.7 billion last year went from the federal government for unemployment insurance benefits, Opportunities for Youth grants, old age pensions and family allowance.

The federal government gave the provinces almost $6 billion last year. The provinces give money to people, groups and companies and both the provinces and federal government give money to municipalities.

No Growth Warning —Turner

HALIFAX (CP) — Finance Minister John Turner repeated Thursday a warning that the Canadian economy faces no growth in 1975 plus a current accounts deficit that could run as high as $5 billion.

"We'll be close to flat growth here in 1975 and indications are that the American economy, tied so closely to ours because of trade links, will shrink by as much as four per cent," he told a board of trade dinner.

Turner pointed to one hopeful sign, the levelling off of the rise in the consumer price index.

However, he said, the nation's competitive position at home and abroad is being threatened by the "substantial increase in wage and salary costs."

"Because of the impact of strikes on export shipments, our reputation abroad as a reliable supplier has been badly damaged and our record of work stoppages in relation to the size of the labor force has been very poor by comparison with that of other industrial countries," he said.

Turner listed four key areas of the economy that have to be brought under control before order is restored.

The price of imported crude oil, balance of payments deficits, inflation, and the spiral of domestic costs and prices.

Sommet Rouge... it has to come of age before we blend it.

The distinctive European taste of Sommet Rouge comes largely from a French hybrid grape now grown in BC's sun-drenched Okanagan Valley. Wine from this rare grape is matured in oak casks in the winery's cellars until it "comes of age". Then, and only then, is it carefully blended with fully aged wine from imported premium California grapes, bottled and corked. The result is a robust, dry red wine that has put Sommet Rouge in heavy demand wherever it is sold.

Sommet Rouge. A Canadian wine with the European accent.

Spelling Changes 'Nonsense'

OTTAWA (CP) — "It's just another example of bureaucratic alteration to meet the demands of narrow-minded people."

That's the reaction of former prime minister John Diefenbaker to proposed changes in the new Canadian Government Style Manual for Writers and Editors.

Some of the proposed changes include the removal of the letter u from such words as labour and colour.

"What possible difference can spelling make in communications?" Diefenbaker asked in an interview.

"Imagine Parizeau saying the reason is to make communication clearer," he said. "What matter of nonsense is that."

Lucien Parizeau, a former reporter and editorial writer, is the co-ordinator of the joint English-French manual who has said the main reason for the new style book is to simplify the language used by the government in public communications.

Diefenbaker said he would not object to the proposed changes if they aimed at the adoption of United States style of spelling. But, he said, he strongly objected to both the reasons given for the changes and the procedure being used.

He said the British style was adopted by an order-in-council in May, 1890, during the government of Sir John A. Macdonald and could be legally changed only by a second such order.

Meanwhile the staff at Information Canada continues to labor away in their continuing surgical struggle to take the jargon out of government reports.

Parizeau says he does not know why there is such a strong tendency toward government jargon.

Parizeau, however, does not describe himself as a "non-u" person. Rather the non-u advocate is his associate Royd Beamish—editor of the English version of the manual.

Nothing Short of Revolutionary

The work of the Berger royal commission on family and children's law, whose bulky fifth and final report was tabled in the British Columbia legislature on Thursday, will undoubtedly be drawn upon for years to come as outdated statutes and procedures are revised and made more responsive. It is a landmark study in an area long overlooked in B.C. For example, it's hard to believe that the Protection of Children Act, the main piece of provincial legislation dealing with children, hasn't been touched since 1903. But we are assured by the commission's report that is the shocking truth, evidence of a terrible neglect.

To comment sensibly on the commission's numerous recommendations for change — more than 200 in the final report alone — would require a book, never mind the small space here. However, it is still useful to look at one of the most striking sections of the final report, that dealing with children's rights.

Mr. Justice Thomas Berger and his fellow commissioners have proposed some revolutionary changes in the way children are treated. Now, parents have complete legal control over their children until they reach the age of 19. The Berger commission would make a number of sweeping changes.

At the heart of them is a sort of bill of rights for kids, a charter of children's rights that the commission would see enshrined in legislation.

They aren't Roosevelt's Four Freedoms, nor the United Nations' universal declaration of human rights, and cartoonists and satirists will have a field day at first with the idea. The charter covers some areas that some might laugh at — the right to play and recreation, for example — and others which are sure to make some parents see red, such as the right to individual adult counselling and legal assistance in custody and guardianship cases, and the right to ask the superintendent of child welfare (an official of the human resources department) to be taken into custody because of "irreconcilable differences" with his or her parents.

Others are only obvious common sense, but so are the most basic of all our rights and freedoms established in common law. It should not be necessary for a child to be entitled to the "right" to live "free from physical abuse, exploitation and degrading treatment" but the numerous cases of child battering and abuse that come to light these days persuades us otherwise.

The Berger commission says these rights should be enforceable by law, but if its idea of the special unified family court which will hear these cases is adopted throughout the province, it will result in a special kind of law. The commission wants to move away from the adversary system of assigning blame and punishment. "All testimony should be directed towards the needs of the child," said its final report.

Then, too, the commission hopes many disputes will be solved "on the courtroom steps, as so often happens in other civil matters."

Essentially, in the area of children's rights, the commission has outlined a blueprint for a brave new system, nothing short of revolutionary. It deserves the widest possible discussion, and the government should move carefully in implementing it.

. . . poor little rich man . . .

DAVID MACDONALD

Freeze Working in Denmark

COPENHAGEN — Denmark is doing something to curb its inflation rate that Pierre Trudeau wishes could happen in Canada.

An agreement between the unions and employers, given the force of law by the government, has created a two-year wages and profits slowdown that amounts to a partial freeze.

It came about because all parties concerned were deeply concerned about an annual inflation rate of about 20 per cent, a fair part of it caused by the naked price-gouging by greedy Arab oil producers.

But Denmark's social structure has several marked differences from Canada that make such an agreement easier to achieve here.

When the Arabs attacked western economies with their boycott and fourfold price increase, Denmark reeled. Her balance of payments deficit doubled, a serious blow to a country of only five million people that lacks raw materials and must export one-third of what it produces in order to import one-third of what it needs.

Denmark has a regular balance of payments deficit, a consequence of her heavy dependence on foreign trade.

Prices have soared and wage-earners anxiously seek more money to keep up.

Labor relations in Denmark, however, are conducted differently than in Canada. There is a large trade union central body with similar functions to the Canadian Labor Congress but with vastly more power and control over its members.

Every two years there is a negotiation between all Danish employers and the central union body. From this comes a single collective agreement establishing wage levels for the next two years. What happened this year is that a government-appointed arbitrator produced a draft agreement that the government modified slightly and passed as legislation.

It freezes wages for about a year then will allow small fixed wage increases. Unaffected by the agreement is the normal Danish system of index-linked small wage boosts each time the cost of living rises by more than three per cent.

Profits are also controlled and through them, prices. The idea is that inflation inside Denmark will be controlled by keeping prices static, with the one proviso that no attempt will be made to stop price increases where the higher cost factor results from imported goods.

In the month after the agreement went into force on April 1, Denmark registered the lowest inflationary increase on a one-month basis of any country measured by the Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development.

Economic Affairs Minister Per Haekkerup says his government is aiming to slash the 1974 inflation rate of 20 per cent to seven or eight per cent by 1967.

The agreement was received a little reluctantly by the unions but it is not being fiercely opposed. One measure of this is that when one protest march was made to the parliament buildings it could muster only 2,000 persons, mainly students, compared to marches of up to 50,000 — all workers — that the unions have organized over other issues in past years.

The central union body is strong but not militant, because Danish workers have a strong feeling that in the years since the war the shape of Danish society has in large part followed their desires.

Much social legislation has come into force in a form very close to drafts presented by union bodies.

One change in Danish affairs is a developing resistance to paying the price of the social protection given by Denmark to its citizens. This may well work to the advantage of the Danish government in reducing inflation.

Says Per Haekkerup: "Maybe governments in Denmark went too fast in social developments. Now people don't want to pay for the programs they have. We will probably have to keep public spending levels at only their current rate, without the normal annual increases. Some programs might even have to be cut back."

Prime Minister Trudeau with Danish prime minister Anker Joergensen.

The Medicine Show Cures Nothing

Ah, the green paper on immigration that took a government task force and more than $700,000 to produce. Now we are being treated to a road show of senators and commoners, roaming the country to see how the grass roots feel about letting foreigners become Canadians. If we didn't suspect that Ottawa had already made up its mind — in a broad general way, of course — on immigration policy it would be tempting to call this itinerant road show an exercise in participatory democracy.

It should be remembered that when the green paper first surfaced it offered only three basic choices — retain the status quo, gear immigration to economic and labor market objectives or an explicit quota system.

Interestingly enough, none of the "choices" suggested expanding immigration. In other words, we can have any color immigration paper as long as it is green. In fairness to Immigration Minister Robert Andras, he is probably correct about the government not having any draft legislation sitting in Ottawa. You don't need any when the Liberal caucus, not to mention a good number of Tories, are of one mind on the issue.

And what revelations did the government think this political medicine show would produce? If anyone was really interested they could have walked down from parliament hill and consulted the newspapers sold in Bank Street stores. If that wasn't enough they could have consulted provincial administrations — on the phone we hope — about immigration problems cropping up in the hinterland. Of course the one really mean area that cropped up is the lower mainland of B.C. where the medicine show received an earful this week.

Yes, there's Vancouver Mayor Art Phillips, playing to his gallery of burghers, telling the patent medicine boys immigration should be cut by 50 per cent. Even an indignant high school student got into the act, saying Canadians should have the right to control the type of person coming to Canada. When you take the road show out in search of trouble you're sure to find it. Participatory democracy is a good thing, but when the questions are set up the response is predictable. The green paper's phrasing suggests that any eventual policy will be general in nature, the details left to minute regulations. A flexible policy is sensible considering the fluctuations in Canada's job market. But the vagueness of the whole deal, a diaphanous green paper, a political road show and a subtly weighted logic makes us wonder what the government finally intends. Senators and commoners must have some uncomfortable moments listening to all that narrow talk.

Until Ottawa raised the issue, Canadian immigration policy was not much of an issue in most parts of the country. The government may learn to regret ever raising the subject before it is finished.

Our current policies may not be perfect but they are more rational than anything the green paper suggests as an alternative. If changes are recommended in immigration laws — and nothing to date suggests that major changes should be made — they should be subjected to parliamentary approval, not a phalanx of bureaucrats buried in the centre block.

Flush or Blush?

A faint fanfare of raspberries for the provincial government, for introducing the Free Public Toilets Act in the B.C. legislature one day, then advising that staterooms will be available on the Princess Marguerite's inaugural trip to Seattle this weekend at $10 without w.c., $12 including the amenity. Two dollars extra for a toilet? That must have been some refit job.

Personal Example

I would like to make a comment on the recent unanimous endorsement of the stand taken by David Anderson and Gordon Gibson at the Liberal party's recent convention in Richmond.

I have long believed that in any society whether it be in the family unit, the school system, political institutions, or whatever, those persons most capable of earning trust and respect are those who show the way not by words but by example. We are all too familiar with parents, educators, politicians, and others who preach on the virtues of openness, honesty, and integrity to those with whom they are mostly concerned, only to bring on disillusionment when they are unable or unwilling to set a personal example for what they themselves profess to believe.

Messrs. McGeer, Williams, and Gardom, who have sat in the legislature for many years as Liberals and who thus, I presume, must have believed in Liberalism as a political philosophy, have now suddenly decided that they should enter into some form of coalition with (or will they soon join outright?) a reactionary and autocratic political movement which, as Liberals, they for years fought bitterly in opposition. This type of personal example is where my disillusionment with such politicians begins.

In contrast, David Anderson and Gordon Gibson have shown by example and by words that they are men of principle who are members of the Liberal party because they have a belief in a distinctive political philosophy which is totally unlike that of the autocratic right or the dogmatic left and which has been in the vanguard of social, economic, and political reform throughout Canadian history.

For setting an example of being faithful to that distinctive political philosophy which you have consistently said you believed in, and for putting principle before expediency or lust for power such as lesser MLAs save done.

Thank you, David!

Thank you, Gordon! — Jack Eaton, Shawnigan Lake.

DAVID ANDERSON

Gross Discrimination

When I read the front page of your Friday, May 23 edition, I couldn't believe my eyes. I'm referring of course to a headline in the News Briefs, Trio Shot Dead. The article went on to say: "Three men and two women were found shot to death".

To my knowledge "trio" means a group of three. Three plus two equals five, unless of course, you are disregarding the two women! I would suggest that all five lives were of equal importance and I'm sure your headline could have accommodated them all.

I view this as gross discrimination and it greatly infuriated me. — A disgusted woman reader.

(Editor's Note: No discrimination intended; a sub-editor just couldn't count).

Penny Farthing Blues

Last Friday, May 23, three of us set out for a good night at the Penny Farthing Inn. The only thing that resulted was a lot of frustration and a considerable hole in my boyfriend's wallet.

When we recovered from the initial shock of the $4 cover charge. We actually thought: "Oh well it should be fun for that." But that $4 couldn't even get us a seat! Mind you, it could get us a hard uncomfortable bleacher on which to sit and drink our $7 case of beer from a 50 cent beer mug that we didn't even have anywhere to set down! We didn't think this was quite right so off we went to see about getting some kind of refund. There was no way any refund was being made. The only thing we heard were some pretty funny (depending on where your sense of humor is) comments, for example:

"Where else can you get entertainment like this for $4?"

"I know this is a rip-off, but look, they keep coming back year after year!"

The one that angered me the most was between two of the doormen:

"How is it in there — any more room?"

"Oh keep 'em coming yet — loads of room!"

What a joke. That fellow must have been walking around with his eyes closed! At least to be fair they could have told the ticket-buyers that it was bleacher room only. There's no cabaret in town that will let people pay a cover charge if they won't get a seat.

If the Penny Farthing Inn had been a lot more reasonable and a little more fair, I would have commended the Victorian Days committee on doing a fine job. I don't enjoy writing a letter from anger and disappointment but it is indeed worth a few moments of my time to express my feelings. I don't know if there are more people who feel the same way I do — if there are I wish they would speak up. After all aren't Victorian Days for all of us Victorians? — Gillian Weyler, No. 10 Bastion square.

Floating Homes

I commend Max Low on his Times article on May 21 concerning live-aboards on vessels at Central Saanich marinas. Speaking as one property owner in the lower Vancouver Island area I do not object to live-aboards and am amazed at certain elected municipal government representatives having the narrow-minded, unmitigated guile to attempt to legislate these individuals off their boats.

A more intelligent approach to the real, and often imaginary, problems resulting from people living in floating accommodation is suggested:

- Provide adequate moorage facilities for live-aboards, including sewage disposal when the municipalities clean up their own raw sewage problem.
- Establish an equitable system of assessment, taxation and collection to pay for police, schools etc.
- Establish adequate and realistic standards of construction for boats, houseboats or boathouses as the construction applies to reasonable standards of appearance, fire safety, etc. It is my impression that those who object to the appearance of most floating "homes" would object to the design of the Holy Cross.

I encourage the citizens and legislators to take the time to meet and get to know our live-aboard community. These individuals are among the finest and most considerate people I have ever encountered. They generally have a more adventurous spirit and contribute, in the true sense of the word, at least as much to the community as we landlubbers do. They do not live aboard to evade their community responsibilities but do so because that is their choice of lifestyle. They do compromise, sometimes at considerable expense, some of the conveniences we take for granted in order to live in the environment of their choice.

Let us stop the bigoted, senseless and fruitless attacks on others who do not wish to conform to the so called acceptable society. Providing our fellow humans do not totally disregard the consideration for others why not, to coin a slogan, assist and welcome all lifestyles into our community? — G. Eldridge, 3395 Connorton Lane.

BERLIN — Germany's reply to President Woodrow Wilson's stern note calling the Imperial government to "sharp accountability" for the sinking of the Lusitania with the loss of many American lives was published today. Among other things, the German government claims that the Lusitania was armed and carried ammunition destined to destroy German lives, and thereby the Cunard Co. violated American law by taking passengers on an ammunition ship.

Trudeau Turns Nasty Against Weak Opposition

By DOUGLAS FISHER

OTTAWA — It's bootless to lament what an election has given in balance and personalities to the House of Commons. Each or any voter cannot mark his X with a mind on what kind of Commons should result. We can't blame Mr. Trudeau or his majority for the lack of talent and focus in the current Conservative and NDP caucuses.

Last week we got two different styles from the prime minister. They reminded me what a long three years we have ahead, with the federal system dominated by a leader who is without generosity, largely because he is without forceful opposition.

The prime minister went from an hour and a half of mean-spirited speaking in the House last Thursday to a party kind of junket through South-Central Ontario. To the high school kids and the small town folk he gave pablum. What he gave the House, aside from 10 minutes of straightforward stuff on his present administrative views, was juvenile partisanship.

It's well to remember that the prime minister has other, better styles. Through most of the minority period of 22 months he had candor, magnanimity and directness. He seemed accessible, to be listening.

'Snide . . . vindictive'

Chris Young, Editor of the Ottawa Citizen and a mild man, said of Trudeau's defense of his spending estimates that it was "a rambling, cheap political speech." Geoffrey Stevens of The Globe and Mail wrote this: "He was arrogant. He was petulant He was snide. He stooped to tactics that no prime minister — no matter how vindictive or unjustified his critics may be — should ever stoop to."

Out with the people Mr. Trudeau's highhandedness was less grating. Some may admire it. I find it patronizing. He gave his listeners homilies fit for the Simple Simon of the nursery tale.

Of course, these tour speeches may be a prelude to some open leadership and precision in economic policy. We're waiting for both.

The snippets heard or seen on radio and TV or in the papers were merely banal. Again and again, as he did in such jaunts in the 1968-1972 period, Mr. Trudeau talked down, as though addressing kids getting their first taste of social studies or civics. We're back to the impressionistic sketch of a country that is complex in governing terms without anything more than the vaguest generalities that anything in the complicated machinery is really out of kilter.

For example, he indicated there needs to be some new directions in labor-management relations. But it was as though strikes and inordinate wage demands and trouble in the public service was off at a far arm's length and as much or more of the people's responsibility than his. It's as though he hasn't been in charge for eight years.

Of course there is high intelligence in the man who does this goodie-two-shoes routine. It's also there in the snickery fellow who made a fool, in a way, with the official Opposition last Thursday. Robert Stanfield is a lame duck. He's more hopeless then ever as he bumbles out his last months. But does Mr. Trudeau have to be as petty as some of the worst in a literally awful Opposition? It seems he does.

Aside from infantile shafts driven into an absent Diefenbaker and a defenceless Stanfield, Mr. Trudeau did little to assuage any reasonable concern about the remarkable growth of staff and spending at the centre of power. He suggested the majority of his own large staff is merely answering the mail. If so, they must be the slowest, worst-organized letter-writers in the country.

In one reference, the prime minister touched on the role in government of the Liberal caucus. This meets once a week for an hour and a half. It's useful, necessary and important. But it is largely empty Trudeau theory that the caucus has "the collective responsibility of the decision" taken by a minister and the ministry.

For example, one Liberal backbencher was asked to address the caucus on a specific policy field. He prepared a text; he gave his talk; it was well-received by the caucus. The minister, whose subject field it was, was absent. Five weeks later the backbencher found that this particular minister had not even read his text. That's the quintessence of governmental caucuses.

The Thursday debate gave another illustration why the check of a vigilant caucus is piffling in relation to the powers, expertise and bureaucratic secrecy mounting around this prime minister.

Three of the most able, young Liberal non-ministers claimed time to speak. It would have been generous of the government to let the Opposition have all the time. The three are John Roberts (St. Paul's), Frank Fox (Argenteuil-Deux Montagnes) and Tony Abbott (Mississauga). Each is well-educated, sophisticated and very ambitious. This last is not to their discredit.

The speeches by this trio were very much like their leader's. Cheap, petty and reeking with arrogance towards the cretins in the Opposition.

The prime minister was their model. Upwardly mobile young men are imitative. Why? Until they catch the PM's nod for elevation to the ministry they couldn't be caught for a moment off the party line; certainly not in treating the issues of inordinate bureaucratic concentration and secrecy as though they were real. Nor is discussing the imperative of a more open government.

"Not to worry" goes the phrase. There's no rush; there's no crisis anywhere with this government. The budget can wait four weeks. We must all wait a further three years.

A New Disneyland Amid the Pyramids?

By IRENE BEESON

CAIRO — "Egypt needs a Disneyland like a hole in the head," was the reaction of an American archaeologist to the ministry of tourism's plan to build a $50 million Disneyland near the Giza pyramids.

What Egypt needs and what it gets are two quite different things. Needs are dictated by climate, culture, tradition and practical considerations of everyday life. What Egyptians get is decided, for the most part, by the country's policy-makers and administered in a "daddy knows best" spirit.

All too often the decisions are influenced by political considerations, the veniality of local or foreign investors, and, above all, by a driving urge to keep up with the Joneses; in other words, with the distorted Hollywood or glossy magazine view of America.

Other Disasters

A Disneyland near or on the plateau of the pyramids is the latest in a long series of architectural, cultural and ecological disasters forced upon Egypt in the planners' desperate drive to "sell the Nile Valley" to the tourist.

Their efforts to be "with it" have denatured many magnificent archaeological sites and beauty spots. Cairo, once the dream city of poet and architect, is being made into a nighmare.

"I dare not think of the future of Cairo . . . it is catastrophic, terrifying . . ." says the world-famous Egyptian architect, Hassan Fathi, whose crime it is to adapt traditonal designs to modern needs. "They are killing Cairo, killing this beautiful city . . ." he complains, unheeded.

To prove that Egypt has plunged headlong into the "technological age", large and stark high-rise buildings, beehive hotels, apartment blocks and offices are going up above centuries-old domes and minarets, distorting the skyline and imprisoning the Nile between concrete walls.

"I don't have the money with which to build ugly things", Hassan Fathi once told a government inspector who thought that a village he had designed and built was "too attractive, pretty" — not the concrete boxes he had had in mind. "If you will give me a larger budget, I'll build in concrete and as ugly as you like" Fathi told him.

Convinced that mass tourism will help to solve the country's economic problems, the government is offering up the Nile Valley to anybody who will buy land or invest in hotels, rest houses, "tourist cities", luxury apartment blocks, nightclubs and other tourist attractions.

Earlier generations also built for tourists. They sought, however, to merge the structures into the landscape, and had commendable respect and appreciation of the country's culture and traditions and for the majesty of its archaeological treasures.

Whereas visitors in the past approached the pyramids, the temples or Islamic monuments with a sense of awe, today's invitation is virtually to "see the new Winter Palace Hotel from Luxor Temple" or to "climb the Cheops Pyramid to get a better view of Sahara City Nightclub and Disneyland."

Arrogant, Inelegant

The old Winter Palace in Luxor was built low, well in retreat from the Nile, out of sight from Luxor Temple. Its color blended with the soil of Upper Egypt. Its new counterpart stands tall, white, arrogant and inelegant on the river front. It intrudes upon the eye whether one is sailing on the Nile, looking at the view from the opposite bank, or walking along the avenue of magnificent columns in the temple.

The old Cataract Hotel at Aswan, too, was built to leave unimpeded the beautiful stretch of Nile, the mighty rocks and boulders of the First Cataract. Hidden in splendid gardens, away from the water's edge, its terraces wind down to the river, discreet and unobtrusive. The new Cataract, next door, like the new Winter Palace, is white, stark, built on a height, an irritating obstacle to the view up river.

The exquisite little Elephantine Island in Aswan used to exert on the visitor the natural charm of palmgroves and gardens. Today, the huge, hideous tower of a new hotel rises oppressively above the gently swaying front, an unnecessary foil to the island's beauty.

"Quelle horreur!" a French visitor exclaimed when she caught sight of the Meridien Hotel, Cairo's most recent addition to the landscape's "improvements."

Aggressive Perch

The "horreur" of the Meridien lies both in its style and siting. It has the appearance of a vast oil-reservoir pierced with a multitude of narrow windows. It is perched aggressivly above the Nile, at the northern tip of the little island of Roda. Until a few years ago this was the emplacment of the Casino Fontana, a low-slung cafe in gardens that boasted willow trees — rare in Egypt. Fontana prices were within reach of people with modest and small incomes. The Meridien is restricted to the chosen few who can afford the equivalent of a basic monthly wage for a meal.

Luxury hotels, apartment blocks and a string of new "casinos" (cafes) have swallowed up virtually the whole of the Cairo river front on both banks of the Nile.

Infitah — the government's "open new economic policy — has brought swarms of oil-rich Arabs and Western investors and businessmen who are buying up houses and plots of land overlooking the river at prices that are doubling and trebling overnight. The Meridien's next door competitor will be a Holiday Inn on the site of fine old private mansions.

Not enough to sell the Nile Valley tourists.

The gardens of the Lutfallah Palace, on the western bank will house a thousand-room hotel.

On the eastern side of the Nile, north of the Hilton, a "tourist complex" will be erected on an area of 11,000 square metres in the Boulaq area. It will consist of a 500-room hotel, a "complex of furnished flats," buildings to accommodate 500 business and company offices and various services and utilities.

Boulaq is one of Cairo's most densely populated slums, where more than 90,000 people live on an area of 2.7 square kilometres, crammed in sub-standard, dilapidated, crumbling buildings.

Inhabitants Angry

"They'll build hotels in the Cities of the Dead next," a Boulaq street vendor commented when contracts were signed to go ahead with the "tourist complex." The Cities of the Dead are the vast cemeteries to the east of Cairo that were invaded by squatters during the acute housing crisis of the Second World War.

This, like other tourist projects, is arousing angry comments from local inhabitants who consider that the needs of the mass of the people should be given priority over the passing whims of the tourist.

They argue that it is the Egyptian who lives and works in Cairo and Egypt's cities and towns who needs housing near his place of work — that it is the children of Cairo who need gardens and open spaces in the city, not the visitor who is flown or driven from his hotel to the tourist sites — that the harassed worker and housewife needs to relax, at low cost, on the banks of the Nile in the torrid summer months, after a day's work.

This craze for building high-rise hotels and apartment blocks along both banks of the Nile has created a concrete curtain behind which the city stifles in the heat and is choked by traffic fumes and other pollutants.

While, on the west bank of the Nile, Egypt's bourgeoisie still enjoys the salubrious pleasure of the Gesira and Sporting clubs, of parks, gardens and avenues, the eastern side has been almost totally depleted of gardens and trees.

Immediately after the 1952 revolution, there was a move to "give the Nile and Cairo back to the people."

The British Army barracks, covering a vast area and blocking the way to the Nile, were pulled down. The British Embassy was requested to reduce the size of its magnificent garden to allow for a road and public gardens on the Nile. The Nile Hilton took up part of the space previously occupied by the barracks, but a big expanse was converted into Liberation Square, a "green lung" where even the penniless Cairene could sit on grass, enjoy the sight and smell of flowers, the shade of trees, even get a good night's sleep in the summer, out of his stifling, overcrowded hovel.

Three years ago the gardens of Liberation Square were torn up. The whole area, apart from a few inaccessible flower beds between traffic lanes, was converted into a bus station that reeks of exhaust fumes and of melting tar mixed with diesel oil.

Most of the benches on the Nile Corniche have disappeared. Gardens and trees have been mercilessly whittled down.

Inland, the gardens of Abdeen Palace, opened as a public park in 1952, have been closed again and are now hidden behind a high, massive stone wall. The huge square in front of the Palace, where children played for want of a park, was recently made into a stately approach to the newly refurbished palace. The velvet-smooth, "keep off the grass" lawns are not to be defiled by play-hungry kids.

"It is a class warfare from above" an Egyptian radical suggested with a laugh that did not disguise his anger.

The government and the moneyed class were selling the best parts of the city and country to foreigners for non-essential projects, he said. They were pushing the people back, away from the Nile, from the green land, from the centre of the city, back into the slums, out of the way, out of sight. They were leaving no place to stop and rest between work and sleep, to escape from heat, noise and pollution.

It was an American woman, a visiting dean of a university, who wrote a letter of protest to the Press against the government's decision to pull down the four-storey high Semiramis Hotel overlooking the Nile and to build a petro-dollar-financed skyscraper hotel.

It was well-known British historian and novelist who inspired an editorial in the Egyptian Gazette recently, deploring the "Honoluluization of Egypt" and voicing anguish over the proposed Disneyland project.

"One can only live in fear and trembling at what the fifty million dollar Disneyland in the pyramids will look like," the paper lamented.

Plastic Pyramid

It is not hard to imagine. It is to consist of a series of museums, several libraries, a cinema, a theatre, a 1,000-room hotel and, as the "star attraction," a plastic pyramid.

At dinner recently, a group of distraught American archaeologists suggested that it would be preferable by far to sell the pyramids and export them to the U.S. to be re-erected alongside British bridges and stately homes.

"Anything," one of them pleaded, "anything to spare Egypt the humiliation of a Disneyland and . . . plastic pyramid."

WISER'S INTERNATIONAL INTRIGUE

Shame of the Gaudy Gardener

By HENRY MITCHELL

I always warn myself (with very little result) against the beauty of the late May-early June garden, which can overpower and unbalance the entire rest of the year — to say nothing of the gardener.

It is the time for peonies, the last of the tulips, the first of the roses, and columbines and lupines and violas and pansies and Oriental poppies and irises.

Usually the gardener commences with admirable restraint, remembering well that there must be space for early bulbs and daffodils, space for summer perennials and annuals, space for fall flowers like Japanese anemones and chrysanthemums and perhaps cleomes and cosmos.

Besides all that, there must be plenty of space for those plants that are not much in flower, but which have foliage of great interest and importance: plants that give texture and tone and substance to all the rest, such as rue and wormwood and angelica and hostas and mulleins.

It all sounds very reasonable, when you see it in print, and the alert gardener usually makes a note to add some clumps of Italian arums and hellebores and wild cyclamen and the like for winter interest.

The trouble arises (as it usually does in all fields of endeavor) only when you stop reading and start doing.

It's easy to get carried away.

The first year or two commonly goes well. A peony here, an iris there, a soft pink poppy over yonder.

Disaster (as far as balance is concerned) usually strikes either the second summer or the third spring of the gardener's career, when it dawns on him, like the sun of Rangoon, that there is no reason at all he could not really get himself some color if he had a few more peonies, and why settle for one clump of poppies and Lord, what can be done with irises?

In no time at all reason is out the window, and extravagance and gaud take over. Oh shame, shame, I always say.

By the fifth year — for satiety is said to follow orgies, usually — the gardener generally decides it would be nice to have something to look at, once the three weeks of May are done.

Chrysanthemums, which are often the first thing to be pitched out, in the interest of spring splendor, are grudgingly fetched back, in extreme moderation. Daylilies are allowed to expand a little, even at the expense of peonies and irises and poppies, since they are so reliable for July, when the irises are a dismal mess.

It must be admitted, however, that once the taste for splendor or opulence or gaudiness (it is nice to be able to choose your own word, perhaps) is acquired, then the garden is restless ever after, or at least the gardener is.

Only an uneasy truce prevails. The gardener perhaps makes room for September or July flowers, but his heart generally is back in spring, and he is usually on the verge of throwing something out that doesn't flower in May.

It is a marvel that chrysanthemums bloom at all in those gardens where the gardener is forever glaring at them, holding them up to poles and trimming things off and muttering that they certainly take a great space.

Fortunately, by the 30th or 40th or 50th year or thereabouts, the gardener strikes that balance by which he has the best of all seasons. By the time one is 80, it is said, there is no longer a tug of war in the garden with the May flowers hauling like mad against the claims of the other months. All is at last in balance, and all is serene.

The gardener is usually dead, of course. If he should live to 100, however, then needless to say it takes somewhat longer to achieve balance in the garden.

If I may venture one suggestion to the May-struck gardener it is this: do not allow the total space occupied by irises, peonies, roses, poppies, forget-me-nots, violas, clematis and the other glories of late May to occupy more than 63 per cent of the space.

Unless, at an absolute maximum, they are allowed to occupy 76 per cent. It is unthinkable that they should in any case hog so much as 94 per cent of the arable area. Usually.

Royal Bank

The Royal Bank of Canada reports balance of revenue for the six months ended April 30 of $139.8 million, up 31.5 per cent over the corresponding period last year.

Second-quarter balance of revenue of $70 million was 45.8 per cent higher than the second quarter of fiscal 1974, the bank said in its quarterly report to shareholders.

Total assets surpassed $23 billion for the first time during the quarter and at April 30 were $23.2 billion, an increase of 12.8 per cent from a year earlier. Total loans amounted to $14.5 billion, up 28.8 per cent, and total deposits rose 12.5 per cent to $20.8 billion.

Total revenue in the first half at $1.1 billion was up 26.6 per cent over the corresponding period a year earlier. It included total income from loans of $899.2 million, up 25.2 per cent; income from securities of $98.6 million, up 33.4 per cent; and other operating revenue of $989 million, up 34.4 per cent.

Western

Western Mines Ltd. reports it will not pay a semi-annual dividend, normally payable in June.

Chairman William Jewitt told the annual meeting that directors believe it preferable for the company to preserve its funds for future expansion, "instead of the company going downhill and eventually disappearing."

President Hugh Snyder said that net earnings in the first four months of this year were estimated at $277,000, equal to five cents a share, compared with $1,214,129 or 23 cents a share in the first three months of 1974.

Western paid 40 cents a share in dividends in 1974, in semi-annual instalments.

Snyder said the main reason for the decrease in earnings was the "savage, confiscatory taxation to which we and others in the industry are exposed."

He said a substantial portion of the company's cash reserves have been deposited in the U.S. to provide an income base against which the company's activities there can be charged.

Webb & Knapp

Webb and Knapp (Canada) Ltd., a Vancouver-based firm engaged in real estate investment and development, property management and building construction, reports a loss of $35,198 or three cents a share for 1974 after extraordinary items.

This compared with a profit of $34,181 or a loss of one cent a share in 1973.

Loss before extraordinary items amounted to $57,461 or four cents a share in 1974 compared to a profit of $21,681 or a loss of one cent a share in 1973.

The loss per share occurred, despite the 1973 profit position, following the payment of dividends to preferred shareholders.

In the annual report to shareholders, president Edward Loftus said the 1973 profit became a loss in 1974 primarily because deferred income from prior years' land sales now is almost exhausted.

He said, however, that "this turn of events was forecast by management at the time it developed its new policy of retaining all properties to create recurring revenue-producing income . . . this concept will be to the ultimate benefit of all sharehoulders in the long term.

"It is possible that the loss of relatively low profits will continue for the next several years," Loftus said. "But the cash flow continues to improve as additional properties are developed."

CanCel

The provincially-controlled Canadian Cellulose Co. Ltd. reports net earnings of $6.3 million or 52 cents a share, before an extraordinary tax credit, for the quarter ending March 31, compared with $4.7 million or 39 cents a share for the same period in 1974.

In an unaudited report to shareholders, Ronald Gross, president and chief executive officer, said the tax credit boosted net earnings to $10.2 million or 84 cents a share, compared with net earnings including extraordinary items of $8.5 million or 70 cents a share in the first quarter of 1974.

Net sales rose to $46.4 million in the first quarter, compared with $39 million in the same period last year.

"The 1974 increases of the world price of kraft pulp more than offset extremely heavy cost increases — primarily in wages, wood fibre and fuel," Gross reported. "The results also reflect our product sales mix which is approximately 80 per cent pulp and 20 per cent lumber."

He said the company's softwood kraft pulp markets are holding up well, despite reduced production by papermakers because Cancel markets 80 per cent of its pulp on long-term contracts in more than 20 countries.

The sulphite pulp demand has fallen sharply, however, he noted. As a result, the sulphite mill at Prince Rupert was closed two weeks in March and a two-week shutdown was scheduled for May.

"We may require some additional downtime in our pulp operations later in the year to maintain a balanced inventory position," Gross said.

Bank of B.C.

Bank of B.C.

Rapidly changing interest rates during the six-month period ending April 30 enabled the Bank of British Columbia to record a substantial increase in its before-tax balance of revenue to $1,661,664 or 193 per cent more than in the corresponding period in 1974.

In an unaudited report to shareholders, A. E. Hall, chairman and chief executive officer, said a sizeable growth in assets during 1974 contributed importantly to the gain.

Earnings after provision for income taxes totalled $789,664 or $1.25 a share, compared with $283,478 or 56 cents a share in the same period in 1974.

The after-tax balance per share was calculated on the weighted monthly average of equivalent fully-paid shares, Hall noted. These were 631,775 shares and 510,555 shares for the respective six-month periods, the increase resulting from a one-for-two rights issue which expired Jan. 31, 1975.

Total revenue in the six-months just ended was $26,575,907 compared with $17,544,600 in the 1974 period.

Hall noted that the bank opened a new branch in Langley in April and plans to open a branch in Burnaby and two in Edmonton before Oct. 31.

Dominion

Sales and profit of Dominion Stores Ltd. rose to record levels in the latest 52-week year, T. G. Bolton, company president, says in a preliminary report.

Figures for the 1974 period are for 53 weeks.

Bolton said sales increased 24.89 per cent on the 53-week basis and 27.28 per cent on a 52-week basis.

Profit was equal to $1.03 for each $100 of sales, up from $1.01 a year ago.

He estimated that the 1974 federal 10-per-cent surtax cost shareholders $1.1 million or 13 cents a share.

First City

First City Financial Corp. Ltd. of Vancouver reports first quarter net income of $321,000 or 22.9 cents a share, compared with net income of $280,700 or 20.1 cents a share for the same period last year.

Income from operations before extraordinary items decreased from $331,100 to $285,000 during the period.

Samuel Belzberg, First City president, said the decrease resulted primarily from the company's action in converting short to long term borrowings in order to protect future years' profits.

Weston

George Weston Ltd. reports a net profit of $4,130,000 or 35 cents a share for the quarter ended March 31. Profit for the quarter ended March 31, 1974, was $9,506,000 or 84 cents a share.

The company said major factors contributing to the decline in profit were a downturn in the results of the forest products division, continued weakness in the fisheries division and losses in sugar refining.

Purge on Exchange Ends in Vancouver

By AL FORREST
Times Business Editor

The purge of the Vancouver Curb Exchange came to an end this week — although several more suspensions may be announced.

The superintendent of brokers has been going through the curb list in alphabetical order, giving temporary suspensions to some companies and delisting others.

First clue that the task was nearing an end came with the announcement that Western Standard Silver Mines Ltd. was among the companies suspended.

A spokesman for the office of superintendent of brokers confirmed that the scrutiny of the list now was completed.

However, some companies have been issued warnings that they are overdue on some forms or reports and if these reports are not forthcoming, the companies could be suspended.

In the final flurry this week, cease-trading orders were issued against seven companies, seven other cease-trading orders were extended and one company was reinstated.

New cease-trading orders were made for: Hub Mining and Exploration, Jet Industries, Mantle Minerals, McLeod Copper, Radiation Development, Starletta Mines and Western Standard.

Newvan Resources was reinstated.

Cease trading orders previously made against the following companies were extended:

Anglo-Western Minerals, Brent Explorations, Cobre Explorations, Donna Mines, Gary Mines, Whitehorse Silver Mines, and Earlcrest Resources.

The massive delistings and suspensions of companies had brought some protests from investors.

In Vancouver, Cyril White, president of the exchange, said he predicted a year ago there would be massive suspensions and delistings on the curb exchange this spring.

He said many of the curb shares were high risk ventures that would normally have been sold only on an over-the-counter basis in previous years. He said it was easy to foresee that a large number of them would not survive the annual scrutiny by the superintendent of brokers.

Next target of the superintendent of brokers is the main board of the Vancouver Stock Exchange. He will study a report prepared by his staff and decide whether any cease-trading orders should be issued.

This work will begin next week.

Spokesmen for the superintendent and for the exchange say any suspensions would be few compared to the massive housecleaning of the curb list.

It is a relatively easy task for companies to be reinstated once they complete the requirements under various regulatons. In some cases the orders are issued because quarterly or annual reports have not been submitted or because the company has not held its annual meeting.

If a company is delisted, however, it can only be reinstated by applying for admission as a new company, a lengthy process. Few delisted companies return to the board, although most suspended companies return after a short time.

Businessmen Down On Montreal Climate

MONTREAL (CP) — Most Montreal businessmen surveyed in a study for the Montreal Chamber of Commerce are pessimistic about the economic, social and political climate of the city.

A majority, particularly those who are English-speaking, gave higher marks to Toronto in some 20 categories of comparison between the two cities, ranging fom quality of life to economic potential.

The results of the survey, which canvassed 736 English- and French-speaking businessmen in middle and upper management categoies, are to be presented as a working paper at the organization's annual congress this weekend.

The businessmen considered the political and economic climate of Montreal as negative toward business because of labor-management strife.

In addition, they identified language problems, government bureaucracy and heavy taxation as particular difficulties for business.

Oilman Warns of Rationing

EDMONTON (CP) — Canada faces stringent energy rationing by the mid-1980s if exploration for new petroleum reserves is not stepped up immediately, the president of Syncrude Canada Ltd. said Thursday.

Frank Spraggins told representatives of the country's propane industry that the vast reserves of northeastern Alberta's oil sands won't contribute significantly to Canada's energy requirements until the turn of the century — well past the 10-year estimated lifespan of known reserves.

Test drilling in the Mackenzie Delta, the Arctic islands and off the east coast has shown promising results, he said, but not promising enough economically to justify the cost of development.

Since the onset of the energy crunch two years ago, exploration activity has risen dramatically in every producing nation but Canada, where it has dropped, said Spraggins.

Later, Spraggins suggested Canada adopt a program of exploration incentives aimed at achieving self-sufficiency in petroleum, such as the one under way in the U.S.

Otherwise, he said, the country could find itself in the position Italy finds itself today — no reserves of its own, and on the verge of bankruptcy by draining its foreign reserves to pay for expensive imported oil.

Spraggins, speaking to the annual meeting of the Propane Gas Association of Canada, said the Syncrude oil sands extraction plant now under construction near Fort McMurray is expected to be on-stream on schedule in mid-1976.

Gas Plant To Expand

EDMONTON (CP) — Canada-Cities Service Ltd. has announced plans for an $8 million expansion of its Paddle River gas processing plant.

The company proposes to expand the plant's gas intake to 81 million cubic feet daily for the recovery of 2,200 barrels daily of propane and other heavy liquids.

The plant will be designed with the potential for future ethane recovery for use in proposed ethylene plants.

The Paddle River plant is about 60 miles northwest of Edmonton.

Life Insurance Ad Guides Set

TORONTO (CP) — New guides on advertising have been prepared by major Canadian life insurance companies as part of the industry's "continuing consumer awareness program," says W. James D. Lewis, president of the Canadian Life Insurance Association.

Lewis described the consumer program as a "sort of search-and-destroy strategy to identify consumer problem areas that might not otherwise be recognized early enough to permit effective preventive measures."

The thrust of the advertising guides is to "discourage advertising by insurance companies that is in questionable taste or not in the public interest," he said in a recent interview.

Lewis also said that life insurance companies can expect increasing pressure from provincial governments about how and where they invest their more than $27 billion in investment funds.

He said that talks with federal and provincial political leaders indicates a growing concern with regionalism and industry investment policies.

"As a result, companies will have to recognize these concerns and try to match investments with asset-and-liability levels provincially across Canada."

B.C. Economy Continues To Decline

The British Columbia economy continued to be weak in January with production down in nine categories and up in only five, according to a report released today by the provincial department of economic development.

The figures represent the first economic profile for the province in 1975.

In decline were production of crude oil, natural gas, copper, lead, zinc, lumber and plywood. Timber scaling was also down and farm cash receipts were lower than a year earlier.

Coal productions was up dramatically and moderate increases were noted in pulp and paper production, molybdenum shipments and fish landings.

While pulp and paper production was higher, shipments of pulp were down 24 per cent, reflecting a tendency to stockpile the product in anticipation of possible work stoppages.

Total value of factory shipments in B.C. during January was $558.5 million, up 5 per cent from the same month a year earlier.

However, the increase reflected higher prices rather than a net increase in production. While the value of shipments rose five per cent, the rate of inflation was 11 per cent.

The shipments include all manufactured goods moved during the month, including lumber.

Metal production has shown the largest percentage decline, according to the report.

Zinc shipments fell 41 per cent and lead shipments were down 35 per cent.

More serious to the economy were declines in production of lumber, oil and natural gas. Lumber production was down 16 per cent, crude oil was down 11 per cent and natural gas production fell 13 per cent.

Meanwhile, consumption of gasoline in B.C. rose 4 per cent in January to 59.6 million gallons.

The figures are the latest tabulated by the provincial department, although some later numbers are available in selected areas.

For example, the August report of the department will show timber scaling in B.C. down 20 per cent from the same time last year. The decline has continued in all regions of the province except the Cariboo area.

Farmers' Receipts Climbing

Farm cash receipts in B.C. increased $46 million last year to a record $362 million, the agriculture department's annual report states.

Tabled in the legislature Thursday by Agriculture Minsiter David Stupich, the report said the record reflects the influence of high agriculture commodity prices associated with continued international food shortage.

Although most sectors recorded gains during the year, cattle receipts were lower, the report states.

Commodity cash receipts by percentage are: dairy, 25.3 per cent; poultry and eggs, 22.7 per cent; cattle and calves, 14.7 per cent, special crops and livestock, 8.7 per cent; fruits, 10.6 per cent; vegetables, 9.9 per cent; grains and oilseed, 5.7 per cent; hogs, 2.4 per cent.

Farm operating costs escalated sharply in 1974, as did the consumer price index for food in Vancouver which registered 20.7 per cent in September, 1974, 22.9 per cent higher than the average for 1973.

U.S. Index Hints Recession Ending

WASHINGTON (WP) — The Ford administration Thursday published a new and improved list of "leading" economic indicators that it said foreshadowed the end of the worst recession of the post-war period.

Leading indicators are monthly index numbers that are supposed to move up or down in advance of general economic conditions.

The new barometer, composed of 12 different components, jumped a record 4.2 per cent in April, the second increase in a row after 11 months of decline.

The index is still 25 per cent below the peak registered in June, 1973 — a few months before the recession is said to have begun. But the two-month upturn in an index the government now believes to be more reliable in calling major turning-points was taken as an encouraging sign Thursday.

Of the 12 indicators in the new index, 11 showed improvement in April, compared to March. The only laggard was the money supply, which showed a decline.

The old index, which will be published simultaneously for the rest of the year, also showed a 4.2 per cent advance for April — but it had showed a 1.2 per cent decline in March, compared with the new index's 1 per cent advance for that month.

Assistant-Secretary of Commerce, James L. Pate, warned against giving the new index, or any single economic signpost too much significance. But he added:

"The size and breath of the two consecutive monthly increases in the leading indicators is encouraging and consistent with other evidence sugesting that the recession has reached bottom."

The 4 series that remain in the index are the average work-week in manufacturing; net business formation; stock market prices; and new private housing permits.

New ones include these three that have been available before, but not included in the leading indicators: the lay-off rate in manufacturing; contracts and orders for plant and equipment in 1967 dollars; and the percentage of companies reporting slower deliveries.

Ottawa Offers Help For Barrett's Trip

OTTAWA (CP) — The external affairs department said today it is well aware of a proposed visit to Britain by Premier David Barrett of British Columbia and has offered any help it can provide.

It was reported in the Vancouver Sun Wednesday that neither the department nor the office of British Prime Minister Harold Wilson were aware of the trip in which the premier says he will meet Wilson.

An external affairs spokesman said Barrett told the department of his plans and the department in return had offered help.

He added the Barrett trip will be essentially private.

Stains Described in Murder Trial

Two witnesses testified Thursday they saw a reddish-brown stain on the front door of the rooming house the same morning Stanford Clarence Wray was found stabbed to death on a sidewalk.

They were giving evidence in the fourth day of the B.C. Supreme Court trial of Curtis William Christie, 19, accused of murder punishable by life imprisonment.

Daniel Jasper and Leonard Johnson were tenants of the rooming house at 1303 Gladstone, where Christie also had a room, last October.

Wray, of 1296 Palmer Close, was found dead by police in the early hours of Oct. 15, 1974.

Jasper sai dhe saw a large brown stain on the inside of the door and saw Christie "washing something" in the bathtub of the communal washroom.

Christie appeared nervous with his eyes "always moving around."

Johnson said he saw raddish-brown stains on both sides of the door around 8 a.m. In the early afternoon, behind the apartment, he was given a wallet by an employee of a glass company which he then turned over to police.

Detective Frederick Mills said he removed a shirt and pants which were hanging in the washroom.

Former detective Lou Truesdale said he found what appeared to be bloodstains on a cement retaining wall on Fernwood Road 189 yards from the front door of 1303 Gladstone.

There were also what appeared to be bloodstains on a metal pole, a picket fence and a street sign.

Another witness, Darlene Nelson, aunt of the accused, told court Christie came to a Thanksgiving Day dinner Oct. 14, stayed for a couple of hours and left.

Asked if she received a phone call from Christie the next day, she said "I can't be sure."

Dermod Owen-Flood, assisted by Nicholas Land, is prosecuting the case before Mr. Justice Harry McKay and a jury. Dr. J. J. Gow is representing Christie.

Portrait Found

PHILADELPHIA (Reuter) — A painting of Simon Bolivar, the 19th century liberator of South America, has been discovered in a storage room at the Historical Society of Pennsylvania and is being offered for sale to several Latin American countries for $500,000. The portrait was painted by Juan Lovera in 1828, almost 10 years after Bolivar had liberated Northern South America from the Spanish.

Concession Award Justified

R. P. Rendek, president of the Western Canada Summer Games said Thursday a $100,000 contract for food services for the competitions Aug. 10-17 was issued to a Calgary firm on the recommendation of the food service committee of the games.

Rendek, in Victoria for a meeting, issued a statement through the Regina office of the summer games in response to objections by a spokesman for the Saskatchewan section of the Canadian Restaurant Association, who said the contract should have been awarded to a Saskatchewan concern.

The spokesman said the contract, granted to Canada Food Services Ltd. of Calgary, was for $2 million, but Rendek said the figure was $100,000. He said the Calgary firm's bid was within budgeted limits and was more flexible than other proposals.

Canadian Food Services handled the same function for the Canada Winter Games in Lethbridge this year. Rendek said some members of the food services committee of the Western Canada Summer Games are in the restaurant business and some are members of the Saskatchewan branch of the National Restaurant Association.

A news release issued by Rendek's office said five bids were submitted, three from within Saskatchewan.

WHOOPING CRANE HATCHED IN ZOO

WASHINGTON (AP) — The world's population of whooping cranes increased by one Thursday when the United States fish and wildlife service announced the rare birth of a chick.

The young crane was named Dawn. It is the first whooper bred and hatched in captivity in this decade.

The bird is of mixed pedigree. It's mother is a seven-year-old female raised from an egg taken from a nest of a wild whooper. It's father is the fish and wildlife service, which employed artificial insemination after Josephine and her mate failed to breed.

Dawn was described by a service spokesman as the first "second generation" whooper at Patuxent since it comes from stock taken from the wild in hopes of raising chicks to bolster wild populations.

A winter census disclosed only 49 whoopers surviving in the wild. Excluding Dawn, there are 21 in captivity at Patuxent, two at the New Orleans zoo and one at the San Antonio zoo.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

A 51-year-old man, who appeared in Victoria provincial court Thursday charged with two counts of dangerous use of a firearm, was released on his own undertaking with four conditions.

Piara Bal, of Abbotsford, is accused of using a firearm in a manner dangerous to the safety of his daughter Balwinder Bal and son-in-law Kehar Singh Pannu, both of 990 Tolmie, following a shooting incident at that address Wednesday afternoon.

Conditions of his release are that he abstain absolutely from any contact with Pannu, not to attend upon, at or near 990 Tolmie, deliver immediately upon release any firearms in his possession to Saanich police and abstain absolutely from use of or possession of any firearm or weapon.

Judge Fred Green granted a no-publication ban on bail proceedings at legal aid duty counsel Peter Freeman's request.

Bal was remanded to June 5 for election and plea.

★ ★ ★

"I'll plead guilty but I want a presentence report," said Allan Steven Cook, 20, charged with escaping from Jordan River forestry camp May 15.

Cook was serving a nine-month determinate, 10-month indeterminate sentence levied Jan. 10 for possession of a dangerous weapon.

Green ordered a presentence report and remanded Cook to June 12 for sentencing.

★ ★ ★

"The motorcycle was sitting there, staring at me . . . I just had to take it out," said an 18-year-old youth who pleaded guilty to driving while suspended.

Robert Guy Fraumeni, 971 Bank, was arrested Wednesday in the 700-block Fort.

Prosecutor Peter Birkett told the court his licence was under suspension as a result of an accumulation of demerit points.

"What you have to realize is when your licence is taken away and you drive, the court looks upon it as a very serious offence," Green said.

Fraumeni was fined $150 and prohibited from driving for one month.

★ ★ ★

Judge Harold Alder sentenced Frank Granberg, 27, of 558 Heatherly Road to 14 days in jail, placed him on six months probation, prohibited him from driving for six months and ordered him to take the impaired driving course.

Granberg pleaded guilty to impaired driving and driving while his blood-alcohol level was over .08 per cent.

Police said Granberg lost control of his truck at the intersection of Elk Lake Drive and Pat Bay Highway on May 24. The truck hit the rear of a car parked off the travelled portion of the west side of Elk Lake Drive.

Steel Plant to Shut Down

VANCOUVER — Dominion Bridge Co. Ltd. has told its 350 employees at the company's steel fabricating operation in nearby Burnaby that the plant is closing in March 1976, R. J. A. Fricker, Dominion's vice-president, said Thursday.

Fricker said the company's work force will decrease to 50 from 350 and the remaining workers will operate a new $2.6-million steel service centre on Annacis Island, near New Westminster.

Fricker said the current economic downturn and the election of the NDP government were responsible for delays in new projects by the mining and forest industries.

Economic Development Minister Gary Lauk accused the company of making a totally selfish corporate decision.

He said today he has "totally negative" reaction to the company's announcement of the plant closure.

In an interview the minister said he will retaliate by asking the B.C. Development Corporation to give support to other steel fabricators by providing low interest loans.

Lauk said his department had no hints of the company's intention.

The Montreal-based company sold its 49.9-acre site to B.C. Hydro for $10.8 million effective Jan. 3. Hydro will take possession Jan. 1, 1977. The Burnaby plant, in operations since 1929, makes component parts from steel made in eastern Canada or imported from offshore manufacturers.

Fricker said there had been substantial over-capacity in B.C.'s fabricating industry, and this, combined with an inability to find new conveniently-located land it considered reasonably priced, led to the closure decision.

Dominion Bridge will maintain a sales and contracting office in Vancouver to service B.C. customers for fabricated steel from the company's nine plants in other parts of Canada. The company will also continued on-site construction work to complete current contracts.

The Annacis Island operation is to be a steel warehouse operation that in addition will provide fabricated reinforcing steel, steel fencing and scaffolding.

European Statesmen Coming

Two European statesmen will visit Victoria in the next 10 days — one from Britain and the other from the Netherlands.

The British high commissioner in Canada, Sir John Johnston, and Lady Johnston will be here Wednesday to meet Premier Dave Barrett and visit Pearson College of the Pacific. There will also be a Government House luncheon.

W. Thorn-Leeson, the Netherlands ambassador to Canada, and his wife will be in Victoria Monday, June 9.

The ambassador has said he wants to meet as many Dutch-Canadians as possible. The Vancouver Island Netherlands Association will hold a reception in Holland House at 733 Vanalman in Saanich from 7:30 to 10 p.m.

The Thorn-Leesons will be accompanied by Adrian Mansvelt, consul-general in Vancouver.

NUCLEAR USE SEEN

Times News Services

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. Defence Secretary James R. Schlesinger has outlined to Congress a three-point rationale for using tactical nuclear weapons to "blunt" a conventional communist-bloc attack on western Europe, according to a previously classified report made available today.

In the report to various congressional committees, Schlesinger acknowledged that the first use of nuclear weapons by NATO "even in a very limited way carries grave risks of escalation and should be considered only when the consequences of conventional defeat would be even more serious."

"If the alternative is, for example, major loss of NATO territory or forces, NATO political leaders may choose to accept the risks of first use," Schlesinger said.

Meanwhile in Brussels, leaders of the North Atlantic Alliance warned today that the Soviet block is increasing its military forces beyond what it needs for defence.

The NATO leaders, in a communique at the close of their two-day summit meeting, said the Western allies are determined to maintain their solidarity, and where it has been weakeened to restore it by removing the cause.

They said maintaining their own defence effort has come up against difficulties resulting from the economic situation in the world. They also said they are determined to face these problems together and firmly.

Earlier, some European leaders praised President Ford for reaffirming U.S. support to the NATO allies, but Turkey's premier attacked the U.S. arms ban against his country as a "self-destructive act."

Premier Vasco Goncalves of Portugal was quoted as asking the allies for "more comprehension and less apprehension" and defending Portugal's approaches to the Soviet Union.

He also promised that Portugal will remain a loyal ally and said there has been too much talk in the West about its affairs.

Okanagan Auto Body Shops To Quit Writing Estimates

KELOWNA (CP) — Auto body repair shops in the Okanagan-Kamloops area have decided they no longer will write estimates on damaged vehicles until a strike at Insurance Corporation of B.C. is settled.

Jim Desson, of Westbank, eight miles south of Kelowna, area director of the Automative Retail Association, said the decision by the 50 body shops to refuse to handle estimates will probably result in most shops closing their doors.

"About 95 per cent of our work is provided by ICBC," Desson said. "When you take away that portion, there's not much left."

The body shop division of ARA agreed to the move at a meeting Thursday. Desson said only minor repairs would be carried out to make a vehicle drivable.

"We are attempting to remain neutral in this strike," Desson said. "We feel if we write estimates as Mr. Strachan (Robert Strachan, minister in charge of ICBC) would like us to, we are siding with the government."

ICBC employees in the office and technical employees union have been on strike since May 20, virtually halting all ICBC operations. The employees are seeking a first contract.

SEARCH FOR BOY ENDS IN CLOSET

COQUITLAM (CP) — Two RCMP tracking dogs and about 75 searchers combed a rugged area of this Vancouver suburb for several hours Thursday looking for a five-year-old boy who was hiding in his house.

Paul Fike of Coquitalm was eventually found asleep in a closet by his brother Steven, nine, who saw Paul's foot sticking out.

The closet had been searched several times, but Paul told RCMP he had been hiding beneath a pile of blackboards in the basement of the house before he moved to the closet.

The boy's mother said her son often hides around the house and the house was thoroughly searched by other members of the family and by RCMP.

Paul went missing at 7:30 p.m. and was found shortly before midnight.

A 300-foot ravine runs parallel to the Fike home and searchers were concerned the boy had wandered into the wooded area surrounding it.

'No CIA in Canada'

Times Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — The United States today flatly denied that it conducts intelligence operations in Canada.

The denial followed the statement Wednesday by Solicitor-General Warren Allmand that he had ordered the RCMP to investigate allegations that the Central Intelligence Agency operated illegally in Canada.

The denial was given by a state department spokesman in response to a reporter's question about Allmand's statement and about CIA activities in Canada.

"The United States government conducts no intelligence operations in Canada," the U.S. spokesman said.

"The United States and Canadian intelligence communities carry out only liaison and co-ordination functions in each other's country."

The spokesman said that was the only official response to the questions.

Any further questions would receive "no comment."

The spokesman then declined to comment specifically on allegations that a CIA agent had been in Canada to keep John Meier, an American now living in B.C., under surveillance.

Liquor Law to Boost Liability of Server

The proposed new legislation covering the province's liquor laws will increase the liability of those who serve alcohol to a person who is subsequently killed or injured due to intoxication.

The provision to take an action for damages is already contained in the current Government Liquor Act which specifies the amount recoverable may not be less than $100 and not more than $1,500.

However, Bill 93, the Liquor Distribution Act and Bill 99 the Liquor Control and Licensing Act both remove the upper and lower limits.

If the bills are passed by the legislature then technically a person could sue for any amount.

Bill 99 is specific in setting out the liability: "Where a person has drunk liquor to excess, and while in a state of intoxication from drinking has died as a result of suicide or drowning or from the cold or other accident or is injured in any manner due to intoxication, the person who furnished or gave the liquor to that person while in a state of intoxication is liable to an action for damages."

WITNESS ADMITS $200 ABORTION

MONTREAL (CP) — A 20-year-old secretary testified at the trial of Dr. Henry Morgentaler on Thursday that the doctor performed an abortion on her in his east-end clinic Aug. 15, 1973.

She told a Quebec Superior Court jury she called on Morgentaler two days after another doctor confirmed she was pregnant.

Morgentaler is charged with having performed an illegal abortion.

The witness, whose name was ordered withheld by Mr. Justice Claude Bisson, said when she was shown into the doctor's office he told her he would give her some pills and that she should relax for a while.

The woman said he also asked whether she would pay a $200 fee, before or after the operation.

She was given the names of five doctors in case of difficulties afterward, she said. Morgentaler did not ask any other questions, and "I didn't tell him anything else."

S. Africa Court Splits 'Immoral' Couple, Baby

Manchester Guardian

CAPE TOWN — A 22-year-old white woman, Lynette Wilson, has been ordered by a Cape Town court to end her three-year-old relationship with a man of mixed race and surrender her seven-month-old baby to him because they violated the country's notorious immorality act.

Lynette, a stylishly dressed typist, met Moegsien Solomon, 24, at a club where he was a musician. The mixed marriages act prevented them from marrying and the immorality act prohibited sexual relations.

Nevertheless, they decided to live together and later had a baby. Then Lynette's mother reported them to the police, who went to Moegsisen's house just after midnight where they found the couple in a double bed with the baby in another bed next to them.

The magistrate accepted that Lynette and Moegsien were "respectable young people from respectable homes with good jobs." He sentenced them each to six months' imprisonment but suspended the sentences for three years.

This means that if Lynette and Moegsien are found together in bed again they will be prosecuted again and, if convicted, the suspended sentence will come into operation.

Under South Africa's race laws the child must go to the darker of the parents. Moegsien, a man of mixed-race descent — termed clolored — therefore has been given custody of the baby.

The couple's lawyer said in court "they crossed the color bar, so to speak, and the result is this particular case. The girl has now promised to give him up and has returned to the fold of her family."

But Lynette said after the case: "I would rather be reclassified colored than give up my baby. How can they tell you to give up your own flesh and blood?"

No provision exists in South African law, however, for a person of one race to be classified as belonging to another race unless there is mixed ancestry. Lynette could be classified as colored only if the authorities made an exception in her case.

The immorality act of 1951 has been the source of more distress and even suicides in South Africa than most apartheid laws. After a famous immorality act case in the small town of Excelsior a few years ago fewer prosecutions were instituted, but the number of prosecutions rose to 493 between July 1972 and June 1973. Then it declined again to 344 the next year.

Counterfeiters Held

BOSTON (UPI) — Authorities have cracked a counterfeiting ring with connections in Boston and Los Angeles, seized $1 million in phoney $20 bills and arrested 11 persons. Police said the bills were "of above average quality" and would bring about $100,000 to $150,000 on the wholesale market.

Jobless Benefits To Expire in U.S.

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — Unemployment benefits for 50,000 laid-off workers will expire at the end of June, labor department data showed today.

"Regardless of what Congress does to extend benefits, these workers have exhausted their unemployment insurance," a department spokesman told UPI.

The number of workers with expiring benefits will rise more sharply in July, the spokesman said, unless the recession ends and industry begins to hire again.

Although a bill is pending in the senate to extend unemployment benefits another 26 weeks to 65 weeks, workers in some states with progressive jobless programs will have consumed their maximum insurance benefits by June 30.

Those whose benefits will be used up are mainly in Michigan, New Jersey, New York, Massachusetts and California.

There is a double blow waiting for unemployed auto workers, whose supplemental benefits from Ford, Chrysler and General Motors also are beginning to dry up.

AFL-CIO president George Meany, who has been critical of administration attempts to get workers back on the job, has predicted an "avalanche" of mortgage foreclosures when benefits expire.

But some banks and savings associations are adopting policies to try to keep unemployed workers afloat even though their jobless benefits are gone.

National Bank of Detroit vice-president Robert Tobey said payment plans have been eased to help jobless workers through the crunch.

"We became concerned because these people, being unused to credit difficulties, might suddenly panic and start surrendering collateral —throwing their houses on the market and what have you," Tobey said.

The Liberty National Bank and Trust Co. of Buffalo, N.Y., will start a debt counseling service on June 9. The unemployment rate is 14.5 per cene in Buffalo, where the GM layoff is in its 13th month.

"We think the bank has some obligation to people we've loaned money to, to help them now that they're somewhat uncertain as to how to handle their financial problems," Liberty executive vice-president Robert Shanahan said.

Meanwhile, President Ford Thursday vetoed a $5.3 billion emergency jobs bill sponsored by House Democratic leaders because he said it would further unbalance the federal budget and provide too much stimulus to the economy.

The measure, which would authorize the spending of $3.3 billion more than the president requested, would create an estimated one million full and part-time jobs and 840,000 summer jobs for youth.

In March, Ford had asked congress for $2 billion to extend the public service jobs program for another year and to create 760,000 additional summer jobs.

"A REAL GOOD 17-year-old kid who helps people because she enjoys doing it." That is how one member of the Evening Optimist Club described Laurie Cardiff, a grade 11 Spectrum School student who was awarded a plaque for good citizenship at the club's annual banquet Thursday evening. Miss Cardiff, of 3430, is shown above receiving the plaque from club president Douglas Wilson. She has been a member of the City Organization Supporting Youth (COSY) for four years and president for two.

Growers, Unions Back Farm Bill

Times News Services

Sacramento, Calif. — The California legislature passed a farm labor bill Thursday regarded as a landmark because it has the support of most of the state's fruit and vegetable growers and both feuding farm unions.

After final legislative action, Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. said he will sign the measure next week and predicted a new era of order and stability in California agriculture.

The Democratic governor said the law will guarantee farm workers their right to organize and give growers the stability and predictability they need in labor relations.

Supporting the bill were the state's two warring farm unions—Oesar Chavez's United Farm Workers and the Teamsters Union.

The legislation, which will take effect Aug. 28, will require state-supervised secret elections before a labor union may be certified to represent ranch workers. It also authorizes harvest-time strikes and a limited form of secondary boycotts by certified unions.

Brown, who marched with Chavez in 1965, called the delicately balanced plan a "milestone" for agricultural labor relations with a Chavez spokesman declared final passage a "great day for farm workers."

Chavez hailed the new legislation as "the best labor law ever, even better than the national labor relations act.

"The legislation is the first in the United States giving the farmworkers protection," Chavez said in Montreal, where he was attending the Canadian premiere of a film depicting the UFW struggle.

"Now we just have to fight the growers — not the growers and the Teamsters," Chavez said, and predicted the Teamsters would be thrown out in the secret balloting."

In Texas, the UFW began its organizing efforts last week hoping to disrupt the harvesting of cantaloupes, an extremely perishable crop which must be picked in the next 10 days. Union spokesman Benigno Pena said when the melons begin rotting in the fields the UFW hoped to sign contracts with the farmers.

HIGHLIGHT OF the 29th annual musicale and coffee party of Victoria Business and Professional Women's Club, Wednesday, at 8 p.m., in St. Matthias Hall, will be a performance of the Cimarosa Concerto for two flutes and piano with Joyce Koban and Rod Sharman on flutes and Judy Au on piano.

Moral Standards Need a Voice

If people who disapprove of today's declining moral standards in society would make themselves heard, a substantial improvement would result, Mayor Peter Pollen told members of the Vancouver Island branch of the University of Toronto Alumni Association at their recent annual meeting.

Pollen, the guest speaker and a 1951 graduate of Toronto, called the theme of his address "The New Poverty."

The following officers were elected for 1975-76: president, Dr. David M. Boyd; vice-president, Mrs. H. J. Clark; secretary, Dr. L. Austin Wright; treasurer, Col. C. R. Boehm; social convener, Mrs. W. G. Milne; committee, Lt. Col. G. J. Andrews, Miss Ruth Eager, Mrs. G. MacDonald, Dr. A. B. Sinclair, Dr. K. O. Wright.

Prosecution, Defence Told To Co-Operate

Prosecutor Peter Birkett and defence lawyer Michael Hutchison could not agree in Victoria provincial court Thursday on a preliminary hearing date for a conspiracy case and were told to return Tuesday with a solution.

The difficulty arose because of the number of crown witnesses to be called to testify in the case of James Archie Hancock, 33, of 1316 Rudlin, and Gilles Paul Proulx, 30, of 629 Lampson.

The Greater Victoria prosecution office said last week the preliminary hearing of the two-count charge against Hancock and Proulx would probably take three days and require about 18 witnesses.

But on Thursday Birkett told Judge Fred Green there will be 26 witnesses and the hearing would take a week.

He said the 26 include civilians, technical experts and numerous policemen, including some from Vancouver, and scheduled holidays for the wintesses overlap to such an extent that no full week was clear until October.

Hutchison said the Crown had opposed the release of both men, therefore it was under some obligation to bring the hearing on at the earliest opportunity.

Green noted there are no open weeks on the court agenda until August but some trials set for July could be delayed for the hearing.

As to a delay until October, he said: "I'm afraid that is not acceptable . . . I recognize the difficulty of the Crown but the over-riding principles have to be abided by."

He asked Hutchison to confer with the prosecution officer and return Tuesday with a solution.

Hancock and Proulx have been in custody since their arrest on the night of April 25-26 on a charge of conspiring between April 1 and 25 to rob the liquor store at 1310 Esquimalt and Mac's store at 265 Menzies.

They were also charged earlier this year with two unsuccessful attempts at $100,000 bank extortions.

Socreds Choose Researcher

A 23-year-old radio broadcaster, Glen J. Mitchell, has been appointed research assistant to the Social Credit caucus.

Mitchell has worked as a broadcaster in the east and west Kootenays and the Fraser Valley for the last two years and has been active in political life at the constituency level.

A news release issued by the Socreds today said Mitchell attended school in Fernie and studied toward a bachelor degree in political science at the University of B.C.

The position pays $14,424 and was formerly held by Arthur Weeks, who resigned two months ago.

A recital featuring mezzo-soprano Olga Grikis and pianist Jeanne Wood will be held at Craigdarroch Castle, 1050 Joan Crescent, today at 8 p.m.

Grikis will sing a program of Latvian music, as well as works by Schumann and contemporary composer Hovhaness.

The recital is free although donations to the Victoria Conservatory of Music scholarship fund are accepted.

Marguerite Cadet Salute For Seniors

The Rainbow Royal Canadian Sea Cadet's band and a color party of cadets and Patricia Dufour Navy League Wrenettes will greet senior citizens aboard the Princess Marguerite when she returns from the first of four pre-inaugural runs on Saturday at 11:30 a.m.

The band and color party will also be on hand to play on board members of the public who will sail on the provincial government's ferry at 1 p.m.

After playing the passengers aboard, the cadets and wrenettes will sail aboard the Princess Marguerite, being the first to come ashore to provide an onshore nautical flourish to the disembarkation.

Courtenay Is Site Of Crafts, Theatre Festival

Five days of amateur theatricals, crafts, music and dance are offered next week at Courtenay in Performance '75, the finals of B.C. Drama Association festival and the Arts Alliance Renaissance Fair.

Victoria players from St. Luke's will perform a Joan Mason Hurley production, Parents Day, a first-day offering Tuesday, along with Orpheus, by the Umbra Players of Qualicum.

Wednesday Chilliwack Players Guild will do Pierre La Porte, by Santo Cervello, who will also take part in workshops scheduled through the week. The actor, mimist, director was a pupil of Kas Piesowsky of the Polish Mime Theatre. Also Wednesday will be Keep Tightly Closed in a Cool, Dry Place by North Burnaby Players, and The Zoo Story by Williams Lake Players.

Better Days, Better Knights, by Bulkley Valley Players, will be performed Thursday, along with The Lover, staged by Lake Windermere Players. Friday will see a three-act play, The Cell, by the Vernon Powerhouse Theatre.

Adjudication will be by Richard Ouzounian, resident in theatre at Simon Fraser University, and Norman Young, technical director of Frederic Wood Theatre, University of B.C.

Others taking part in workshops will be Ray Logie, director, playwright and consultant to the association, and Jose D. Smith, licentiate of the Guildhall School of Music and Drama, and Trinity College, London.

BEST ACTRESS Phyl Gaskell, left, won title at South Vancouver Island Zone Drama Festival for her performance with Linda Rodger in the play Parents Day. Winning play will be presented at 8 p.m. Friday in St. Luke's Hall, along with Save Me a Place at Forest Lawn, and next week Parents Day will compete at Courtenay in drama finals.

Bill on Oil Royalties

Oil royalties would be deductible for provincial tax purposes under legislation to be introduced shortly by the provincial government, Mines Minister Leo Nimsick said Thursday.

The private oil companies have predicted the move could give them an additional 40 cents a barrel profit.

Nimsick said today the province decided to make the move because the federal government has disallowed the deductibility of royalties as an operating expense.

The minister said he hopes the legislation will prompt similar action from the federal government.

Royalty charges will be considered production cost and classified as a cost item in arriving at profit figures under the new arrangement, he said.

The provincial government has given careful consideration to the new formula and believes that it will not lose much revenue because it will produce higher returns on royalties paid by private companies.

Current price of a barrel of oil is about $5.90 and the average B.C. royalty rate is 50 cent.

The upcoming legislation was mentioned briefly in the government's budget speech.

Worker Killed At Sawmill

VANCOUVER (CP) — John Kruger, 56, of Vancouver was killed Wednesday night after being carried or dragged about 200 feet on the right fork of a forklift truck in a city sawmill.

Kruger was an employee of the Eburne Saw Mills division of Canadian Forest Products Ltd.

A police report said the driver of the truck did not know of the accident until told by police and witnesses said it was dark in the mill yard, although the truck was reported to have its headlights on.

Coast Guard Studies Nuclear Icebreaker

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Coast Guard and Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd. are looking at the possibility of using nuclear power in an 80,000-horsepower icebreaker that would at least double the ice-breaking season in the Arctic, a transport department spokesman said today.

He said planners are only in the early stages of developing plans for the icebreaker which would be built by the mid-1980s for $130 million to $150 million.

If the government proceeded with the nuclear icebreaker it would be one of the largest in the world. The Soviet Union already has two nuclear icebreakers.

The transport department spokesman said the normal icebreaking season in the Arctic is about four months between July and October. The icebreaking season would be extended to at least eight months with the big, heavy-duty ship.

One advantage of nuclear power in the eyes of the coast guard is that it would reduce time spent in refuelling, the spokesman said.

Icebreakers using bunker fuel oil must refuel every week or two. With crews replaced by air, a nuclear vessel might have to return to port only once every two to four years for inspection.

The spokesman said the nuclear vessel would cost about $30 million more than a conventional icebreaker with the same power.

But Atomic Energy estimates that nuclear fuel would lead to savings compared with bunker oil, ensuring that the nuclear vessel would more than make up for the original cost difference over 30 years, he said.

Andrés Cellar Dwellers

Andrés table wines are made in the finest European tradition. After the grapes are crushed they're aged the traditional way for quiet, careful vinification. Then they're bottled with natural cork, and further aged in Andrés cellars until they reach their point of finest maturity.

Andrés table wines. Classic complements to good food.

ANDRES VINTNERS OF FINE WINES

SIMILKAMEEN SUPERIOR
A unique, dry, red wine of distinctive ruby colour and fragrant bouquet. A complement to any meal.

RIESLING
An extra dry varietal white wine made from the Riesling grape. Ideal served with fish, poultry and other delicate meats.

CHENIN BLANC
A delicate and distinctive varietal white wine. Its medium dry taste is perfect when served chilled with light meat dishes.

RUBY CABERNET
A full-bodied, dry varietal red wine, aged in oak casks for a hearty bouquet and robust flavour. Well suited to full-flavoured dishes.

Bicycle, Moped Thefts Top Canada Crime List

OTTAWA (CP) — Theft is the most common crime in Canada and thieves this year probably will add mopeds—motorized bicycles—to the list of things easy to steal and sell, but hard to identify.

Last year 96,000 bicycles, 3,592 of them worth more than $200 each, were stolen—many of them by organized rings moving from city to city—and about 8,000 were recovered.

"Just before I left for lunch, I received 20 reports of thefts of bicycles, most of them 10-speeds worth more than $200," Insp. Armand Soucy of Ottawa city police said Wednesday. The night before, a bike stolen in Toronto was found in Ottawa, indicating the pattern.

Moped thefts are rising swiftly, he said.

It's similar in other Canadian cities. Kids are paid a few dollars to pick up expensive bicycles, which are dismantled for parts or moved elsewhere by truck.

Last year, Ottawa police broke eight organized bike rings, the same number as the previous year. But in some cities, bicycles still get what an insurance official calls a low priority from police.

One reason is that few owners even jot down the serial number of their expensive racers, making positive identification almost impossible. Police forces each year auction off thousands of bikes that cannot be identified.

The Saskatchewan Safety League has helped implement an identification program that has cut the number of unidentified bikes in Regina police stations to 30 a month from 300 a month last year.

As more and more people buy mopeds to save fuel, thefts are keeping pace. An Ottawa commuter paid $395 for a moped this week only to have it stolen two days later. Police run into the same problem—identification.

Motorcycles are another popular item for thieves. Last year, 7,850 were stolen and 1,140 recovered. Easy resale, value and low chances of arrest are the lures for thieves.

The same is true with tape decks. Rings of thieves go through parking lots and even neighborhoods, opening cars and removing tape decks in a few minutes. Owners seldom think of them as attractive to organized crime and rarely are able to identify them. That, and the easy market, makes them attractive to thieves.

Insurance companies now pay out more as a result of thefts than they do as a result of fires, says Jim Henderson of the Insurance Bureau of Canado in Toronto.

James Bay Cost Said 25% High

QUEBEC (CP) — A study which indicates that the James Bay hydroelectric project might have cost up to 25 per cent less with better planning was described Thursday as another attempt to downgrade major initiatives of the Bourassa Liberal government.

The research document, commissioned by the Science Council of Canada, says the massive power project in northwestern Quebec was undertaken without adequate economic data.

Significant cost increases have resulted from important modifications to original plans, says the report leaked to the Montreal daily La Presse.

Official estimates last year put the cost at just under $12 billion, double the $6-billion estimate given when the development was announced in 1971.

MEAT NETWORK

MONTREAL (CP) — A supply network that provided tainted meat for human consumption throughout the province of Quebec had links in Ontario, the Quebec police commission inquiry into organized crime was told Thursday.

Evidence also indicated that two unnamed Ontario retail outlets may have received meat from a Pointe Gatineau, Que., meat supply firm that was acquiring tainted meat from Ontario.

Leo Lacelle, a Quebec meat dealer, told the inquiry he purchased between 200,000 and 300,000 pounds of tainted meat—meat from dead and diseased animals — from meat salvagers in various Ontario centres between 1971 and 1975.

He said some of the meat came from a company that manufactured pet food near Peterborough, Ont., as well as from Van Kleek Hill, 50 miles east of Ottawa, and St. Albert, 30 miles east of Ottawa.

He said the meat purchased near Peterborough was taken to East Templeton, Que., in unmarked trucks where it was transferred to cardboard boxes.

CRASHED U-2 ON NATO TASK

WASHINGTON (WP) — A high-flying U.S. Air Force U-2 reconnaissance plane, taking part in a new Pentagon project to pinpoint potential targets on a European battlefield, crashed in a heavily wooded area of West Germany Thursday, about 60 miles from the border with East Germany.

The pilot of the plane, which had taken off earlier in the day from the Royal Air Force base at Wethersfield, England, parachuted to safety.

The area in which the U-2 came down was quickly cordoned off by about 50 armed U.S. soldiers who were flown in by helicopter.

According to informed Pentagon sources, the U-2 was engaged in efforts to develop what the defence department calls an "automated battlefield" of the future. This is a plan in which the latest in U.S. electronic technology would be fielded in central Europe to help NATO thwart any would-be invasion by numerically superior Warsaw Pact forces.

As part of this plan, the U-2 that crashed and four others based temporarily in England have been flying over Europe carrying special equipment designed to detect the operation of radars or other electronic transmitters on the ground.

They have been attempting to see if two or three U-2s can simultaneously detect such transmitters and thereby get a precise geographical fix on the radars position on the ground.

It's a system planned but not yet developed.

Pentagon sources say the planes have not flown over East Europe. The U-2 flies so high that it can actually "see" across borders electronically without crossing them.

On the other hand, the West German DPA news agency and the French press agency both carried reports from witnesses Thursday that said the plane was coming from an easterly direction when it crashed about 8 a.m., Central European Time, near the town of Winterberg, about 100 miles northeast of the West German capital of Bonn.

In West Germany, a Bonn defence ministry spokesman described the presence of the plane over West Germany as "completely normal."

"We don't want anyone to get the wrong impression," a U.S. defence department spokesmon said Thursday night. "We want to emphasize these planes are flying with the full agreement of NATO members and the tests are continuing."

Medicare Increase Sought

Conservative leader Scott Wallace called Thursday for an increase in B.C. medical premiums.

Premium rates were established in 1965 and have never been increased, said Wallace, so the provincial government is assuming a greater and greater share of medical costs.

The Oak Bay physician said he felt the increasing costs being paid by government would be better channeled into areas like intermediate health care, drugs for the handicapped, medical appliances and health expenditures now borne by a minority with major medical problems.

But Health Minister Dennis Cocke told the legislature it is government policy to pay a greater share of medicare and the NDP has no plans to change that policy.

Wallace said he knew it would not be politically expedient for government to increase medical premiums but he also said it was logical to use government funds to help people with greater medical needs.

Socred health critic Bob McClelland (Langley) said he agreed with Cocke that government should pick up an ever-larger share of premium costs.

While he hoped people in nursing homes and those with a heavy burden of medical costs would receive more government aid, McClelland said it should come at the expense of the majority of people in the province.

The exchange came during debate on the health department's $712 million spending estimates.

Berger Report Proposes Subsidized Adoptions

A provincial government commission has recommended creation of subsidized child adoptions.

The fifth report of Mr. Justice Thomas Berger's Royal Commission on Family and Children's Law says where the child's best interests would be served by adoption, but the prospective parents cannot afford the move, financial assistance should be provided.

It says the move would enhance adoptions and not undermine the principle that adopted children are considered exactly as if they were born to their adoptive parents.

The commission's hefty volume on adoptions, one of seven contained in the report tabled in the legislature Thursday, also recommends rejection of the concept of an adoption reunion registry.

The issue of a central registry, to enable adopted children to locate their natural parents, sparked an emotional public debate last year when it was first suggested by the commission.

After weighing the pros and cons of the debate, the commission said it could not recommend establishment of a registry and suggested instead that only the B.C. Supreme Court have the power to bring together adopted children and their natural parents.

Only 13 such reunions have taken place in B.C., according to the report, and a study of the results of those reunions is inconclusive.

The commission study concluded, however, that such a reunion is a "very significant and extremely emotionally-loaded event" which can affect a number of other people in both the adoptive and the natural families.

Of the 10 reunions studied in B.C., two did not have happy consequences, according to the adoptees, and six were beneficial.

On the issue of subsidized adoptions, the commission said most of the children left in long-term foster care without hope of being adopted are left because of reasons of age, race or physical or mental handicaps.

Many foster parents would like to adopt those children under their care but cannot afford it, said the commission, adding that most foster parents have low incomes and large families.

The report recommends that natural fathers should have the right to consent or refuse to adoption of their children even in cases where the parents are not married or living together.

It also says "an adult or two adults living together should be able to adopt children."

In cases of native Indian children, the "highest possible priority" should be given to finding native parents, says the report.

Where Caucasian parents adopt a native child, the commission recommends parents be required to take an orientation course and instruction in the native Indian heritage.

Indian parents who request their child be adopted by white parents should be required to sign an "ethnic release," says the report, but at age 21 the child should be informed whether he is a status Indian.

Gablemann Backs Off On Picket Statement

NDP MLA Colin Gabelmann told the legislature Thursday he regrets statements he made recently about the right to informational picketing.

The MLA from North Vancouver-Seymour said at the NDP convention two weeks ago that he wanted the right to shut down Super-Valu or any other store if he wanted to.

"I got carried away at the convention," said Gabelmann. "The words were not wise and I don't believe them."

What he meant, he said, was that he wants the right to stand outside a store like Super-Valu and ask customers not to shop inside because of a union dispute or because "hot" items are on sale.

Gabelmann said his position is different from the government and he supports the right to informational or organizational pickets.

In the case of the construction industry, he said, informational pickets are the only way unions can hope to organize all the small construction organizations.

The only other way to solve labor problems in construction would be compulsory unionization and Gabelmann said he did not want to see any government resort to that alternative.

But Labor Minister Bill King repeated the arguments he made at the NDP convention and said he does not support informational picketing.

It's long-standing NDP policy to support the unfettered right to picket but the government has not enacted that policy and at the convention King tried unsuccessfully to have the policy watered down.

King told the legislature he hopes his study into the problems of construction unions will come up with a solution other than informational pickets.

After clarifying his position and retracting his "ill-advised" statements, Gabelmann said another disagreement he has with the government concerns the Labor Relations Board.

The board, set up by the NDP as an alternative to judicial involvement in labor disputes, has become too legalistic itself, he said.

Labor relations is not a legal art but a social art, he said, and the board should use lawyers only to advise on the wording of decisions.

TOILET POLICY HITCH

The provincial government was caught short on its own public toilet policy in the legislature Thursday.

The day after legislation banning any charge for public toilets was introduced, a Socred MLA complained about a contradiction in policy.

To the amusement of the house, North Peace MLA Ed Smith referred to invitations sent to MLAs for the inaugural Victoria-Seattle ferry run Sunday of the Princess Marguerite.

Why, asked Smith, are MLAs given the choice of paying $8 for a stateroom with settee and basin, or $10 for staterooms with settee, basin and toilet.

"Isn't it the policy of the government to ban charges for public toilets?" he asked Health Minister Dennis Cocke.

Cocke, from his seat of authority, explained:

"While in Canada, the toilet is free, but as soon as we get across the 49th parallel, we're subject to American laws."

Gov't Won't Take Part In Kootenay Coal Plan

The provincial government does not plan to participate in a major coal mine proposal in the East Kootenay by a German-backed B.C.-registered consortium, Mines Minister Leo Nimsick said Thursday.

Nimsick, prodded by Opposition leader Bill Bennett, said the province has held discussions with developers of the $200 million proposal.

The government, he said, suggested Elco Mining Ltd., of Vancouver, owned by a consortium of European steel mills, get public reaction to its plans to acquire a 50 per cent share in the Weary Creek coal deposits and develop open pit mining initially, and later, underground operations.

Last fall the company explored the creek which is 51 miles north of Kaiser Resources property at Sparwood. It expects to do additional exploration this year, but a decision on whether to develop the project will not be made until 1978, and production would not start until 1981.

Indications are that 112 million tons of medium quality coking coal could be mined in open pit operations over 28 years.

The development would mean an increase in population for Elkford to more than 8,000 from 2,230, and 1,100 new jobs.

A Canadian company, Northern Construction Co., would be engineer and constrator during development.

Development Corp. Backs $19M in '74

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Development Corp. participated in 25 loans guarantee approvals with a total program value of $19 million during 1974, the association of professional economists of B.C. was told Thursday.

Laurence A. G. Moss, the corporation's senior development adviser, gave a resume of the corporation's activities to the economists.

The corporation actually loaned $3.7 million but the new figure includes guarantees made by the provincially-sponsored BCDC and other agencies with which it associates in making loans and guarantees.

Moss said BCDC is following practices which will help the provincial government policy of increasing B.C.'s industrial base, particularly through value added enterprise, firms which do further processing of mineral and forest products.

He said the government now is carrying out regional studies to identify development opportunities which have socio-economic value.

Gov't Reviews BCR Taxation

Economic Development Minister Gary Lauk said Thursday the provincial government is reviewing a policy that frees B.C. Railway from paying property taxes to municipalities.

The policy was critized by Liberal MLA Gordon Gibson during debate of the department's $5 million estimates later passed.

The North Vancouver-Capilano MLA suggested the Crown corporation is not pulling a fair load along the rail route. Other Crown corporations such as B.C. Hydro at least pay grants in lieu of taxes, he said.

"I ask the minister to get that corporation paying its fair share to cities along the route including the more than $125,000 owning North Vancouver and some to Vancouver as well."

Lack said the railroad has always been classed as a "development railroad" which benefits municipalities along the route.

ICBC Strikebreaking Charged to Gov't

FLAG-WAVING DRAWS NOD FOR McGEER

Independent MLA Pat McGeer did some flag-waving during question period in the legislature Thursday.

The MLA—who has found it more difficult to catch Speaker Gordon Dowding's attention since he left his front bench Liberal seat for the backbench—brought a B.C. flag to question period.

After waving it at the Speaker, the Vancouver-Point Grey MLA succeeded in unfurling Dowding's flagging attention.

Opposition members accused the government Thursday of strike-breaking in the current dispute between the Insurance Corporation of B.C. and 1,200 members of the Office and Technical Employees' Union.

Socred MLA Jim Chabot (Columbia River) first raised the issue in the house of a television news item which instructed motorists suffering severe financial hardship to phone a certain number.

The move constitutes strike-breaking because it is taking away some of the economic sanctions the union can use in a dispute, said Chabot.

"Management has no right to deal with clients during a strike," he said.

Transport Minister Bob Strachan said the Socreds demanded a few days ago what ICBC was doing to help people during the strike and now they are complaining when the government takes some action.

He said people suffering hardships because of death, injury or the loss of car were instructed to phone 665-2800 and their problems would be dealt with.

Chabot brought up the subject during evening debate of Labor Minister Bill King's spending estimates.

He called on King to end government strike-breaking but the minister said his job as impartial mediator of disputes requires that he not take sides in strikes.

B.C. Gas Policies Rapped

VANCOUVER (CP) — Arlon R. Tussing, an adviser to the state of Alaska on oil and gas issues, said Thursday the world situation indicates that mutual confidence between the gas industry and the B.C. government is impossible to restore.

Tussing, an economics professor at the University of Alaska, told the B.C. Energy Commission hearing into natural gas pricing that the damage done in B.C. to the old system of gas exploration could only be reversed over a long period.

"The government needs to have a philosophy that certainty and stability are necessary parts of the scene," said Tussing. "I don't believe this is the philosophy of the B.C. Energy Commission."

Tussing said there would be "no harm in the province making some initial approaches . . . and doing some initial experiments" in asking for the kind of system he proposed in a paper delivered to the commission Wednesday.

The paper said that a solution to B.C.'s damaged gas and oil exploration system might be provided by giving "the chief responsibility for exploration to the B.C. Petroleum Corp. or to another crown corporation." He sugggested that the government pay a private contractor for the quality of oil or gas he discovers, rather than the contractor paying the government for the oil or gas he extracts.

Volunteers Can Help Operation Trackshoes

The fifth annual Operation Trackshoes, a province-wide track and field meet for mentally handicapped, will be held June 7 and 8 at Centennial Stadium.

An estimated 500 to 600 competitors from throughout the province are expected to participate in events scheduled from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and 9 to 2 Sunday.

The meet is sponsored by the Victoria Society for the Recreation of Handicapped Persons. The society includes about 40 high school and university students who arrange year-around activities for the mentally handicapped in the Greater Victoria area.

With the usual large entry expected for the meet, society members are anxious to obtain the services of volunteers who may act as counsellors while the competitors are housed at the University dormitories.

Volunteers are asked to phone the society's office at 386-9233.

Cats Hit Floor To Help Rivals

Victoria Cougars are coming out to stickhandle against and on behalf of the Victoria Boys' Club on Tuesday.

Members of the Western Canada Hockey League team will play Boys' Club Blazers in an exhibition "floor" hockey game at the University of Victoria old gym.

Scheduled to start at 7:30, the game is designed to raise funds for Boys' Club activities.

Mel Bridgman, Dan Lucas, Curt Fraser, Danny Rogers and Al Hill are among the Cougar regulars expected to play. Defenceman Rick LaPointe, who attended the recent Stanley Cup series between Buffalo Sabres and Philadelphia Flywers, will play if he returns from the east in time.

Players will use regular hockey sticks but play with a plastic puck. Rules will be basically the same as ice hockey rules except that there will be no offsides.

Former Champs In Title Chase

Golfers with promise and others with past performances combine to give this year's starting field in the City Amateur championship a look of toughness.

The 36-hole medal event opens Sunday at Uplands and winds up the following weekend at Cedar Hill.

Heading the entry list are five former winners, including defending champion Cec Ferguson of Gorge Vale. The other past winners are Bob Hunt of Uplands, Laurie Kerr of Colwood, Al MacLeod of Gorge Vale and Rick Kent of Glen Meadows.

Former B.C. Amateur winner Carl Schwantje of Oak Bay and Gorge Vale's Grant Milliken, this year's Island Open champion, are entered along with a lengthy list of young hopefuls.

Scots Blank B.C. Stars

VANCOUVER (CP) — Scottish League soccer champions Glasgow Rangers blanked British Columbia Soccer League All-Stars 4-0 Thursday before 9,532 fans at Empire Stadium. It was almost 21 years to the day since the Rangers last played here — and they won that game 3-0.

Midfielder Alex McDonald scored twice to lead Glasgow. Single goals came from winger Graham Fyfe and forward Bobby McKean.

AROUND OUR SHORES

Colm Hogan flew back to Red Deer, Alta., this week more than a little miffed over some of the radio coverage of the Juan de Fuca race.

Colm commutes between Red Deer and Victoria regularly to race his Scampi, Malda, which he keeps at Sidney.

Malda was 200 or 300 yards behind Ronald Zell's Elan early Sunday morning when Elan collapsed her "shute" and grounded at Race Rocks, getting holed and badly mauled during the hours she was hung up there.

Like any boat should, Malda went to Elan's aid.

"We tried to float her a line at first," Colm reports, "but the current was too strong. Finally, they waved us away in case we got swept in too."

Colm figures it was 33 minutes and 22 seconds from the time he dropped Malda's spinnaker, standing by Elan until rescue arrived, to the time he restarted the race.

He requested a time allowance of one hour and eight minutes for the rescue, having lost both time and the fast dwindling wind.

Having gone through Race in our own boat a couple of hours later, being forced to anchor for six hours before we had enough wind to fight the tide, I can verify this point.

In any case, Colm is quite willing to leave the time allowance decision up to the race committee.

What really has his back up is one radio commentator's announcement that he was a poor sport to ask for the extra time.

"I'm deeply concerned about this. What in hell kind of encouragement is this to help people in trouble," Colm complains.

I agree with Colm. Judgment should be by his peers not by somebody who has no first-hand knowledge of the ramifications of Malda's action.

Thunderbirds will be holding their fleet championships in the Cadboro Bay area this weekend. This will be a five-race series with sailing getting under way both Saturday and Sunday at 10 a.m.

This is another event which will help decide which 10 Victoria boats compete in the world championships at Seattle in July.

Boats will take their five best races from this weekend's championships and the winter championships raced earlier in the year.

The top nine boats will represent Victoria along with John Malleson's Sunday.

Gordie Nickells' Redskin was the top Thunderbird in the Royal Victoria Yacht Club's series racing this Wednesday, edging Bob Grundison's Owl, John Watson's Drambuie and John Dewey's Shuttlecock.

Mike Smith's Kittiwake was first Cal 20 home, being followed by Tony Marshall's Sunbeam and J. Robinson's Tongariro.

Hugh Bacon and Rod Andrews' Encounter was first of the boats racing under the Pacific Handicap Racing Fleet section. After her came Jack Foster's Sly Fox and Murray Farmer's Seeker. There'll be racing again next Wednesday at 6:30 p.m.

Two up-Island canoe teams pulled off a couple of good wins in the prestigious 10-day Hyack Festival on the mainland which ended Sunday. Bob Strang's crew from Ladysmith won second spot in the brigade section, Ted Barsby's crew from Nanaimo finishing third.

Theirs was no mean feat, competition coming from points across the country. With Bob were Phil Jones, Bob Jamison, Eric Steen, Gordon Copp and Allan Swartz. Backing up Ted were Dick Tinga, Norm Kogstad, Dave Newman, Allan Matson and Glen Seward.

Locally, the Victoria Canoe Club has an outing lined up for Sunday. Meeting at the Elk Lake boat ramp at 10 a.m., they'll get some onshore exercise by hiking up Bear Lake, cooling off later with a paddle around the lake.

Journey to Bulgaria For Victoria Gymnast

Former national junior champion Philip Delasalle of Victoria is one of three gymnasts selected to represent Canada at the Cup of the Golden Sands invitational meet at Varna, Bulgaria.

Other members of the squad which will be directed by national coach John Herb of Victoria, are Bill Mackie of Vancouver and Masaaki Naosaki of Toronto. Canada will be one of 28 countries, each represented by three athletes, in the June 10-14 meet at Varna.

Delasalle will be competing as a senior for the first time this weekend when he takes part in provincial championships Saturday and Sunday at Simon Fraser University in Burnaby. Another Victorian, Charlene Miller, will also be making a first appearance as a senior in the B.C. meet, which will serve as the second of three selection events that will decide members of the B.C. squad in national championships, June 27-29, in Moncton, N.B.

Other Victoria gymnasts seeking provincial honors are Kym Gordon, Rayanne Petersen, Jill Weinberg, Julie Alexander, Tracy Beer, Peter Allan, Richie Wood and Robbie Gatehouse.

Hoop Star To Await ABA Draft

NEW YORK (AP) — David preparation of the community Thompson, with an opportunity to sign one of the most lucrative contracts in pro basketball history, says he plans to wait until next month's American Basketball Association draft before choosing between the ABA and National Basketball Association.

Until then, Atlanta Hawks, who made Thompson the No. 1 pick in the NBA draft Thursday, probably will not decide how much to offer their two other outstanding selections, Marvin Webster and Bill Willoughby.

"It's a great thrill to be the first player picked, and as to where my future lies, I have to wait until the AGA and then weigh all matters as to what team or league I'll be playing in," Thompson said following his selection by the Hawks.

The Hawks likely will be battling the ABA's Denver Nuggets for Thompson's services. The Nuggets have the ABA's No. 1 pick and they already have been openly courting the three-time all-American and two-time Player of the Year.

Atlanta is in a precarious position because of its financial woes, although owner John Wilcox expressed confidence that the Hawks could afford tto sign Thompson, Webster and Willoughby.

"I would not have drafted them if I didn't think I could sign them," Wilcox said.

Painter, Wallis In Charge

With Terry Painter taking care of the pitching and Glen Wallis in control at bat, Farmer Construction posted a 3-1 victory over leading Greaves Movers in a Victoria Senior Amateur Baseball League game Thursday night at Lambrick Park.

Painter hurled a one-hitter, striking out 12 batters, while Wallis drove in all three runs with a single and a homer.

Terry Karpiuk spoiled Painter's chances for a no-hitter by following a lead-off base-on-balls with a single in the sixth inning. A sacrifice then brought in Greaves' only run.

Civic Leaders Wary Of New Liquor Laws, Fear More Rowdyism

By PAUL MOSS and PAT DUFOUR

Greater Victoria's municipal leaders aren't exactly intoxicated with B.C.'s new era of liberalized drinking, heralded in legislation introduced Thursday by Attorney-General Alex Macdonald.

In particular, every mayor and alderman questioned by the Times today voiced serious doubts whether municipalities will allow drinking in parks and other public places.

That legislation throws the responsibility on individual municipalities to designate their own lists of areas where public consumption of alcohol would be permitted.

But today's indications are that, in the four core municipalities at least, such lists will either be extremely short or non-existent.

The recurring fear expressed by civic leaders is that any policy of wide-open public drinking, from Beacon Hill Park to Willows Park and Centennial Square, would add to existing problems of rowdiness, excess and police enforcement.

Typical of Victoria officials' comments was Ald. Mike Young's observation that city council would probably tackle the whole question with "extreme circumspection."

Young doubted that any city list of designated areas would actually be compiled, and said instead council would probably adopt a wait and see attitude based on discretionary enforcement of the existing bans.

"One of the problems of North America and of B.C. in particular is that under the legislative and bureaucratic system of life everything is regulated and there is very little commonsense discretion used," he said.

Oak Bay Mayor Brian Smith welcomed the freedom to be given municipalities.

"It will be up to local communities to make their own judgment and that's a good thing," he said. "A sophisticated beer garden within a small area could be a good thing. Before now, it's been forbidden and sinful."

Smith said he would never support indiscriminate drinking on public beaches, however.

Saanich Mayor Ed Lum says his municipality already is plagued with problems caused by drinking at beaches and public parks. Legalizing public drinking would only increase the problem.

Already Have Problems

Lum conceded, however, the council might consider allowing liquor to be consumed at its indoor recreation facilities.

Esquimalt Mayor Art Young said his municipality, like Saanich, already has a public drinking problem.

Young said he, personally, was against legalizing public drinking.

Young predicted confusion will result from the new legislation.

Victoria Ald. Bill Tindall said he would have serious reservations about designating any area of the city as appropriate for the public consumption of alcohol.

"Where would you draw the line?" he asked. "I would rather see the status quo remain the way it is and I am sure the police authorities would exercise their powers with discretion."

For example, he said, he could not imagine any police action resulting from a family picnic on Dallas Road beach, where the adults were sharing a bottle of wine.

Tindall said he would be absolutely opposed to providing liquor in sports stadiums, adding that sports fans tend to be quite excitable enough without the added stimulus of alcohol.

"I suspect that city council would look very long and hard at allowing drinking in public places," commented Ald. Sam Bawlf.

Both Bawlf and Ald. Malcolm Anderson, however, see no solid objections to permitting drinking in large regional parks.

Taking the pragmatic view, Anderson noted: "We already have people drinking in Thetis Lake Park, taking along a bottle of wine or some beer on a picnic, so in effect we would be regularizing what's already taking place."

As for drinking at sports events, Anderson recalled that there were no problems last year when the city ran a beer tent at the softball championships and said he could foresee this policy being continued under similar controlled conditions for certain outdoor sports.

"But we're obviously some years away from being able to serve beer in paper cups at the Memorial Arena, as one finds at hockey games elsewhere in North America."

'DRINK, STUPIDITY' BLAMED IN ASSAULT

Kenneth Stanley Oliver, 23, of 3526 Happy Valley Road, was fined $500 today in county court and placed on probation for one year for breaking and entering an apartment on Cook Street and indecently assaulting a woman.

Judge Montague Drake said the incident arose from "drink and stupidity" but no malevolence was involved.

Oliver pleaded guilty May 14 to the break-in and assault of May 5, 1974.

Defence lawyer Peter Freeman said Oliver was "quite intoxicated at the time" but now is working, more responsible and drinking less.

'Didn't Mean To Kill Him Or Stab Him'

By ROGER STONEBANKS
Times Staff

Curtis William Christie, 19, told police he stabbed Stanford Clarence Wray last Oct. 15, city detective Douglas Richardson told B.C. Supreme Court today. (See earlier story on page 10.)

Christie is accused of murder punishable by life imprisonment in Wray's death.

The detective told the court that Christie said Wray wanted a woman and "I told him (there was) a party on Grant St. where we could find some."

Christie, Richardson said, told him he went with Wray to Fernwood and Grant.

Asked by Richardson what happened at Fernwood and Grant, Christie said Wray stopped the car and started punching him on the shoulder, grabbed his hair and said "you'd better not be f..... me around."

Christie said that he wasn't, that the party was at the end of the street.

Christie said he started punching Wray but kept hitting the steering wheel.

"I got my knife and hit him in the chest."

"Did you realize you had stabbed him?" the detective asked.

Christie replied, "Yes, I felt the jerk as it went in his chest. It may have been his stomach, I'm not sure."

The detective asked Christie what he did then.

Christie replied he got out of the car, walked to the driver's side, saw Wray was bleeding, and pulled off his sweater to hold against the wound.

Christie said he would help him because he knew first aid. He helped him across the street but he collapsed. He checked his pulse, put his ear to his chest, but there was nothing.

Detective Richardson told the court that Christie said to him: "I didn't mean to kill him or stab him. I was going to try to help him. I mean, or I wouldn't have tried to help him after, if I tried to kill him or if I wanted to kill him."

Saanich To Try Again

Saanich municipal workers could be back at the bargaining table early next week with a new set of wage revision proposals for Saanich municipal officials, a union spokesman said today.

Jim Brett, president of the 375-member Local 374 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees said he talked with Saanich Mayor Ed Lum who indicated new negotiation meetings could resume shortly.

The Saanich local voted last week to hold a strike vote but Brett said today no date has yet been set for the vote and that "getting back to the bargaining table is of course our first priority."

The employees voted down the regional proposals accepted by other CUPE locals in the three-month civic dispute and returned to work with the understanding that negotiations on local matters would resume.

Brett said today the local had found "shortcomings" in the wage revisions classifications and is now using the computers at the University of Victoria to get new figures which will form the basis of the local's proposals.

Body Found

The body of a boy was found floating in the water at the end of Ardmore Drive early this morning.

RCMP in Sidney declined to release any information pending identification of the boy.

A spokesman said the body appeared to have been in the water for a week.

Saanich Design Panel To Be Set Up Monday

An Advisory Design Panel is expected to be appointed by Saanich council on Monday.

The lands, planning and housing committee has endorsed a recommendation by municipal planner Tom Loney that the panel should advise on all building permits in excess of $100,000, excluding single-family homes and duplexes.

Mayor Ed Lum pointed out this week the panel would not duplicate services now provided by the Advisory Planning Commnission, which is mainly concerned with the use of land. He said some applications could be dealt with simultaneously by the ADP and the APC.

Loney suggests the ADP should consist of himself or his representative, a member of the APC, three architects, one professional engineer, one building contractor and one other Saanich resident "selected from such occupations as landscape architect or design consultant."

Erika Leslie, president of the Saanich division, Association of Women Electors, has written council, supporting the panel in principle but recommending that the ordinary citizen should be represented on the panel.

"Members feel strongly that there ought to be at least one lay person on it (the panel)," she said, "preferably someone from a local interest group such as a ratepayers' or ecological association. This member would, of course, come under the same rule as the others, namely that he or she should have no connection with any developer or other interested party."

The AWE is also concerned that, through spiralling inflation, a relatively poor design could slip through because cost of the development would be just under the $100,000 limit for scrutiny by the ADP.

The Cadboro Bay Ratepayers' Association also supports the panel concept but is wary of having nobody but experts on it.

"We feel some anxiety that the inclusion of so many experts in the field of urban development may easily lead to decisions based more on economics and engineering practicability than on esthetic values," president Peter Corley-Smith warned council.

He suggested that at least two members of the panel should have no connection with the development industry.

The Gordon Head Ratepayers Association also favors a design panel.

"This is a step in the right direction," spokesman Barrie Goult said, "The Gordon Head ratepayers are definitely in favor of it."

Ask The Times

Q. Could you please tell me the time allowed on government spending estimates in our 10 provinces? E.S.

A. Alberta has no time limit except 30 minutes for speeches, Manitoba, New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island, Nova Scotia and Saskatchewan have no limits. Ontario limits debate to 90 sittings, Quebec to 45 days and Newfoundland to 75 hours. British Columbia's limit is 45 sittings or 135 hours. The federal government limits debate to 25 days on the main estimates and three for supplementary estimates. Debate in Britain is limited to 29 days on estimates.

Chamber Folds

Esquimalt Chamber of Commerce has folded but merchants in that municipality have been offered membership in the Victoria chamber.

Conrad Hauser, last Esquimalt chamber president, received the invitation from Victoria chamber following a meeting with members of the board of directors of the Victoria group.

Squeeze Reaches Chapel

Continual crowding at Victoria General Hospital is producing unusual storage problems and a cautious spirit on the board of directors.

The board at its meeting Thursday night heard there have been complaints about mattresses being stored in the hospital chapel.

It happened this way. One hundred new mattresses arrived without notice earlier this month and with patients overflowing into sunrooms and classrooms, the choice was leave the mattresses outside or put them temporarily in the chapel.

The mattresses were stored at the back of the chapel for the two days it took to get them distributed thoughout the wards. The front pews in the chapel were still available for worshippers, an administration spokesman explained today.

The board also heard that the provincial public works department wants the use of about three acres of land across Humboldt, bought earlier for hospital expansion.

While it's thought the land is wanted for temporary parking to serve interim courtrooms in the former St. Ann's Academy, the provincial department offered no explanation.

The hospital board decided it needed to know more before considering the request.

For the Islander, Both Gain and Loss

LIFE ON AN ISLAND, even such a monster as this long, mountain-spined dragon, isn't for everyone. Occasionally we meet unwilling sojourners held here by the necessities of their work who count the months or years of their stay as if serving prison terms.

As Vancouver Islanders by choice, Win and I are haunted by no such sense of isolation from mainland Canada. There are times, in fact, when we wish the moat were wider and the come-hither of this West beyond the West less potent.

Dwellers on the satellite islands anchored bows-to-weather in the Strait of Georgia are even more inclined to look down their noses at a population surge that threatens to reduce their elbow room. The islander who advertised a farm for sale on the bulletin board outside a general store stated bluntly that he would sooner not turn his acres over to "foreigners or strangers".

The old couple who settled on another timbered outrider in 1927 speak with yearning of their island as it once was, and with sadness of the changes they observe.

Take the "No Trespassing" signs that one sees so often now. It used to be that one short-cutted across anybody's land without a second thought. Why, chances were you'd be welcomed and fetched in for a cup of tea.

But the signs have become necessary, and had we heard of the farmer around the point who was ordered off his place — the farm his grandfather hacked out of the woods — by squatters from the city!

He came home from a day off-island and found them with tent set up.

"Private property," they told him, and "I should know," he answered them. "I own it!"

The way things were going, our Vancouver Island . . . one long shopping centre all the way north to Campbell River!

The future is casting its shadow on their presents even though it remains a less-than-crowded present on the island three ferry removes from the mainland where the elderly couple dwell.

In a day's roving, most of it by dirt roads, we found little evidence of intrusion from the outside world. Forests of vigorous evergreen second-growth stand where the axe-and-crosscut loggers of an earlier era brought the old woods down. We saw no "For Sale" signs. If there were subdivisions, we missed them.

But the shadow of change was there, even though less apparent to our vision than to those who have lived remote on that island of the many for most of a lifetime.

The Sunday ferry lineups hint of it. We've had to wait out a sailing to get car space. When summer brings the tourists and the cruiser people, the beaches will be less lonely. And the subdivisions will come, as they have to the islands of the lower Strait.

The agents of change are the ferries, and toward the ferries, the islander tends to display an ambiguous attitude.

"We like what they do for us," said the laird of one wild cove, "But we hate what they're doing to us."

With the advent of a ferry run, his island has been "discovered" — a process that will continue for better or worse as city-jaded mainlanders infiltrate his preserves. He balances gain against loss. More jobs for islanders against an inevitable change in the tempo of island life — accessibility against isolation — and finds himself of a divided mind.

At the other end of the spectrum, there are islands in plenty where no ferry calls, and outports that have seen few ships since postwar years when long-gone Union or Canadian Pacific coastal steamers served them.

If time hasn't passed such islands by, at least it has dealt lightly with them.

The basic lure of all islands, large or small, populous or sparsely tenanted, is that they stand apart, each an entity unto itself. A convinced islander is never fully at home elsewhere.

He may tolerate the mainland from which comes a mixed bag of blessings and vexations. But he's happiest with island earth under his feet and a buffer space of tidewater around him.

Western Canada Games —A Community Effort

Dick Rendek of Regina likes to think "I'm a one-man law firm," but Doug Lee of the same town says there isn't a hope that Rendek will see much of his law office until after the week of August 10-17. Thot's the week of the Western Canada Summer Games in Regina, a new concept in sport, but one devised so that the western athlete can "get a fair shake" in the competitive field.

Rendek and Lee were just two of a Regina delegation of five who are touring the west and were in town Thursday to tell of the hows, whys and wherefores of the Western Canada Summer Games and to plant the seed that, if the idea is to live on in the future they can think of no better place for the next time around than Victoria in 1979. Rendek is the president of the games management committee, Lee the vice-president of public relations and promotions, and their presentation was complete in every detail. And if the athletes are as successful, it should be a snap.

As to that reference to the future, city recreation director Jack Morgan was also in attendance and plans to report back to city council on what he heard and, who knows? Maybe the city will entertain a bid for such an event as it did in 1973 for the Canada Summer Games, only to lose out to Burnaby.

Albeit for the present, Rendek was saying that the city of Regina has gotten behind the games to the tune of $2 million financially, and with more than 1,000 people, mostly volunteers, already at work; 2,500 more due to pitch in before games time, he feels it is already evident that it truly will be "a time for achievement" as the logo describing the event states.

Otherwise the province of Saskatchewan is contributing $1 million toward an overall budget of $4 million, $3 million in capital costs and $1 million operational; the Western Canada Lottery $150,000; the federal government $125,000 for travel assistance and a further $225,000 from a "friends of the games committee," and ticket sales.

The legacies for Regina include a $2 million Olympic-size swimming pool, a $500,000 track with eight lanes, surfaced with Chevron 440, which was used in the last Olympics at Munich, a $300,000 marina complex at Wascana Lake, and sundry upgrading of other facilities.

The ideals are understandable — basically, to provide Western Canada with a sports tourniament of Olympic calibre and really do something the west hasn't done before.

★ ★ ★

Rendek was explaining that actually the western athlete doesn't have equal opportunity with the athlete from the east because until now there has never been an open-level competition for the four Western provinces. The Canada Games is restrictive in age, while otherwise eastern athletes, by their proximity to more heavily populated areas in the U.S., get more chance for international competition than those from the west.

"There is no place for the 25-year-old athlete to compete," he said. "We think the games will provide it."

"We think it will be really effective," commented Lee, "not only now, but in years to come."

Gordon Pynn, who was B.C.'s chef de mission at the Canada Winter games in Lethbridge, will hold the same position at Regina. And he says B.C. will be represented by 427 athletes and officials in 22 events which is only four shy of maximum and that simply is because B.C. doesn't have any pentathlon performers. In all 1,700 athletes will be competing in 23 events at 16 sites and, if Montreal, which will host the 1976 Olympics, is tuned in, Rendek has some news for Mayor Drapeau.

"We are right on budget, and we are right on target with our facilities."

★ ★ ★

An interesting aspect too is that the committee has decided to go family-style in regard to tickets. Prices will be lower than usual because "we want everyone to attend," said Rendek. For instance the opening-day ceremonies will be held in the evening at the nominal charge of $2 following an afternoon football game between the B.C. Lions and Saskatchewan Roughriders and an ethnic festival, all at Taylor Field.

Actually the Lions weren't asked for, it just happened that way. But committee members didn't despair. Rather they hope the game will provide an avenue for everyone to get in the festival mood for what's to follow. And for those interested in attending, there's that pleasant approach. Prices to all events are minimal, averaging about $1.50. For some events there is no charge.

There is more, because this is a major event, suffice for the moment to suggest that Rendek and company have things well in hand. Besides, it sounds like fun. And there is a community value here that deserves study and maybe Morgan will take that with him to council as well. Or as Rendek said:

"We think great things can come of this event . . . but to whom we throw the torch we do not know at this time."

Running Star Steve Prefontaine Killed

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — Steve Prefontaine, best U.S. distance running hope for the 1976 Olympics and one of the country's most controversial amateur athletes, died early today in a one-car accident here. He was 24.

Prefontaine, holder of every American distance record above 2,000 metres, was pinned under his car when it hit a rock wall, police said.

A few hours earlier he had run the second fastest 5,000 metres ever in the U.S. at the National Collegiate Athletic Association preparation meet in Eugene.

A native of Coos Bay, Ore., Prefontaine was a graduate of the University of Oregon and ran for the Oregon Track Club.

He was a member of the U.S. Olympic team in Munich in 1972.

Prefontaine, who trained hard, was often bitter over the treatment received by amateur athletes in the United States. Two months ago, asked about running as an amateur for his country, he said:

"To hell with love of country, I compete for myself."

Prefontaine, who ran distances from 2,000 to 10,000 metres, just missed winning a bronze medal at Munich.

He held six American distance records, in the two-mile, three-mile, six-mile, 3,000 metres, 5,000 metres and 10,000 metres and he held collegiate records in all those categories except the three miles.

ALL WAIT for pitch, for different reasons. Royal Oak Gets Big Charge From a Battery and Infield

The obvious sparks came out of Royal Oak's battery, but manager Cliff Bate gets a big charge out of his infield.

Pitcher Gord Warren did the job in relief and catcher Bob Gray completed the connection Thursday to give Royal Oak a 6-5, 10-inning Stuffy McGinnis Men's Softball League victory over second-place Ingraham Hotel.

Gray's two-out single scored first baseman Elwood Thomas with the tie-breaker at Central Park.

But Bate couldn't neglect the infield which he regards "as good as any" in the eight-team league.

Along with Thomas, there's Keith Heppall at second, Mike Wallace at short and Bob Bugslag at third. Bugslag made two brilliant fielding gems and Wallace pulled off one in the sixth to prevent an Ingraham run and force extra innings.

The key has been Heppall. Since moving to second, he's "been giving the orders" and now "they know what they're doing," said Bate.

Warren, in taking the win, retired the last 14 batters in order.

Elsewhere in softball, London Boxing Club moved in on the Heywood League leaders with a 6-4 victory over Metro Toyota but the game was protested by the losers over a pinch-runner argument.

At Hyacinth Park, Cathy Wilkinsons two-hit pitching carried Esquimalt Hygrade Radio to a 10-1 victory over MacDonald's Furniture and into a tie for second place in the Senior Women's League.

Leading Stockers, meanwhile, padded their lead to five points by defeating Y-Not Holdings 10-4.

At Sidney, Roy Korpess handled the shutout chores and Ernie Holness homered for the second game in succession as leading Seaboard Properties blanked Cloverdale Paint and Paper 8-0 in a Sidney Men's League game.

Victoria, Esquimalt Post Wins

Cleve Dheensaw and Mark Schoor hammered in four goals each Thursday night to lead Victoria to a 25-8 victory over Nanaimo in a B.C. Junior "B" Lacrosse League game at Pearkes Arena.

In the only other game, Esquimalt posted an 11-7 win over Saanich E.J. Hunter at Esquimalt Sports Centre.

Dwayne Ferguson, Jim Young and Tej Labh added three goals each for Victoria while double tallies came from Stu Thomson, Rhys Wicks and Mike Leahy. Doug Pourdages and George Bridges chipped in singles.

Kevin Smith scored four goals for Nanaimo, Jim Ferguson fired three and Glen Steele added a single.

At Esquimalt, John Entzminger, Kim Browning and Steve Buckley scored twice each for the home team and singles were notched by Dale Roberts, Steve Bendall, Brian McKinnon, Darrell Deane and Randy Bryant.

Peter McCreash (2), Kerry Lewis, Barry Van Buskirk, Mike Jacobs, Stu Rhodes and Wayne Lason replied for Saanich.

Last-Second Goal Boosts 'Bellies

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — Bill Robinson scored with one second remaining in overtime Thursday to give New Westminster Salmonbellies a 16-15 victory over Nanaimo Timbermen before 506 fans in a Western Lacrosse Association game.

It was the seventh win of the season against only two losses for the first-place Salmonbellies.

Nanaimo led on three different occasions in the overtime period.

With seven seconds remaining, Wayne Goss picked up a loose ball in his own zone, passed ahead to Dave Matheson who set up Robinson who was alone on the crease.

Paul Parnell scored three goals and assisted on four others for the winners while Walt Weaver scored three times and assisted twice. Robinson also scored three goals while other New Westminster tallies came from Larry Henry, Gord Jung, Rick Kennedy, Bill Mosell, Wayne Goss, Harvey Olsen and Ian Kennedy.

Brian Spaven scored three goals for Nanaimo while Al Benson picked up two goals and two assists. Trus Asdal, Keith Manns, Rick Baker, Rich Noble, Buz Bryant, Harvey Ruitenbeck, Dave St. Jean, Bob Avender, Wayne Sutherland and Ron Sywack scored the others.

Big Win By Canada

VARESE, Italy (CP) — Canada's national basketball team upset Notre Dame University of the United States 99-80 in an exhibition game Thursday.

"It was just a great win for us," said coach Jack Donohue. "We had tremendous balance on scoring and a very aggressive defence that made the difference."

The Canadians got outstanding performances from substitutes Rommell Raffin, Cameron Hall and Martin Riley.

"Rommell became a player tonight," said assistant coach Steve Konchalski. "He played so much, his best game ever for the national team."

Raffin anchored an aggressive trap zone defence that had Notre Dame forcing low percentage shots from the corners. He also added eight rebounds and helped build the Canadians' spirit which had sagged after Wednesday loss to the Italian national team.

Bill Robinson and Phil Tollestrup again led the Canadian offence. Robinson scored 26 points while Tollestrup, who played only half the game because of early foul trouble, added 23.

Tollestrup had three fouls before the game was five minutes old but his outside shooting was not as desparately needed as usual because the Canadian forwards were aggressive on the offensive boards.

ESQUIMALT COLLECTS FINAL BERTH

Esquimalt held Belmont to a scoreless draw Thursday at Spectrum Community School to retain third place and the final playoff berth in the Greater Victoria High School Girls Soccer League.

The draw maintained Esquimalt's one-point edge over last-place Belmont.

Esquimalt now meets runner-up Spectrum in a sudden-death semi-final match Tuesday on a yet-to-bede-determined neutral pitch.

League-champion Edward Milne will meet the winner in the final Thursday at another neutral field.

MADDOX GETS BACK AT MARTIN

ARLINGTON, Tex. (AP) — New York's Elliott Maddox circled the Yankees' dressing room for 10 minutes and grinned.

He had struck a mortal blow in his running feud with Texas Rangers' manager Billy Martin but refused to gloat.

Maddox had four hits and four runs batted in and delivered a game-winning two-run double in the ninth inning Thursday night to give the Yankees a 7-5 victory over the Rangers, who gave up on him a year ago.

Maddox was embroiled in a beanball controversy with Martin in spring training and it carried over into the regular season last week when Texas visited New York City. Maddox was knocked down and claimed that was done on Martin's orders.

Maddox was asked how it felt to gain a measure of revenge on Martin and the Rangers. "It's always nice to come back and haunt a team that gave up on you," he said.

"I think the bean ball thing is over. I hope so."

The New York centrefielder, whom Rangers' management claimed could neither field nor hit before he was traded went into the game with one hit for his last 20 times at bat.

"The team made fun of me in the locker room Wednesday night after we beat Kansas City and I just had to laugh," Maddox said. "The irony of the entire thing is that I broke out of the slump against the Rangers.

"I hit two line drives right at somebody, was robbed on two other balls and had a line drive bounce off the pitching rubber right into the second baseman's hands against Kansas City. I was really getting frustrated. I just had to get a hit for a change."

Salmon Fishing Is Best In Victoria-Area Waters

Waters around the Greater Victoria area currently boast some of the best salmon fishing on Vancouver Island.

Working around from Sooke, Secretary Island has been one of the hot spots for fishermen using from 100 to 150 feet of line and up to two pounds of weight with strip. Don Engle, a visitor from Albany, Ore., landed a 27 pound, 12 ounce chinook there recently and Bill Grunow of Sooke boated one only a shade smaller in the safe vicinity.

Otter Point is yielding a few bluebacks.

Diana Pastro topped all catches this past week with a 32-pounder landed Tuesday on strip off Beechey Head but Ted Bailey, using anchovies, came close Wednesday with a 31½-pounder taken from the same spot.

Records show a total of 44 salmon over 10 pounds were weighed in Wednesday with strip the favored bait. Most catches were made fairly close to the Head using about 1½ pounds of weight and from 50 to 70 feet of line.

Coho up to five pounds and a few steelhead up to seven pounds were included in the return.

Ernie Eckdahl caught a 29-pounder Sunday while trolling a "plankton" hootchie off the kelp bed at Peddar Bay. In this area, hootchies are slowly displacing strip as the favored terminal gear and most of the larger fish are biting right close to the bottom.

★ ★ ★

Smaller chinooks, tipping the scales to 12 pounds, are coming in from 90 to 100 feet of water around Brotchie Ledge and good catches were also noted at Constance Banks. Quite a few halibut up to 15 pounds are coming in from the latter area.

Discovery Island has produced the best off Oak Bay. Fish right near the bottom in the early morning with strip or anchovies for chinooks nearing the 15-pound mark and ling cod to 55 pounds.

Plankton blooms near Deep Cove are suppressing the catch but some nice-sized chinooks are grabbing strip trolled with 200 feet of wire line and planer from Bamberton to the Deep Hole.

Chinooks up to 23 pounds and a lot of blues nearing four pounds have been taken by fishermen using strip, minnow or green and white hootchies near Chesterfield Rock, Misery Bay and The Narrows.

Further up-Island, chinook catches were reported from Cowichan Bay, Bold Bluff and Sansum Narrows while jacks and smaller chinooks have been picked up under the power line.

Fishermen getting up at the crack of dawn and working with cannonball weights about a quarter-mile north of Big Finger Island or near Entrance are landing chinooks up to 18 pounds.

Likewise, deep lines are hauling in jacks and chinooks to 28 pounds (few and far between) at the mouth of Alberni Inlet.

The bell buoy of Comox is a good place to land small chinooks on a flashtail and blues are coming in from Echo Bay.

★ ★ ★

As for trout fishing:

Elk, Beaver and Prospect lakes around Victoria are yielding some good catches to anglers trolling eighth spinner-and-worm or flatfish and Cusheon Lake on Saltspring Island is rated as another hot spot.

Maurice Wrixon finally connected with a brown trout on the upper section of the Cowichan River. He landed a 2½-pounder on a number-10 Peter Ross on Monday. Conversely, Fred McLaughlin, who has been catching browns in the same general vicinity with metric spinners, failed to catch a single one on his last outing. Instead, he was compensated amply with several rainbows up to 16 inches long.

Shawnigan, Quamichan, First, Upper and Lower Campbell, Buttle, McIvor, Loveland and Morton lakes are still the best bets.

NIBBLES: Ada Smith won the Victoria Fish and Game Protective Association salmon derby on Sunday by landing a 14:01 pounder . . . Roy Smith (7:14) and Gus Stanfield (7:10) were second and third . . . Bill Varcoe won the coho trophy with a 3:12-pounder . . . David Coey collected the junior trophy for his 2:09 catch and Maude Bone took the women's trophy with a 4:11 pound catch . . . A total of 50 salmon were caught by 36 of the members who entered the contest.

Esquimalt Honors Athletes

Ben Shotten and Sharon Young were honored Thursday night as top athletes during the second annual Esquimalt High School athletic banquet.

Shotten, who participated in basketball, volleyball and track and field, also won a $100 basketball scholarship.

Young, who is a top distance runner and field hockey player, shared the Barlow Memorial Award for sportsmanship with Ron Arcuri.

MAJOR AWARDS: Murray Allen (rugby, soccer, track and field), Pat Duncan (rugby, soccer, track and field), Doug Angrove (soccer, rugby), Rick Rainsford (rugby), Dave Carey (basketball, volleyball), Rob Zeitz (basketball, volleyball), Pam Cox (basketball, field hockey, track and field), Jim Bergin (rugby, soccer), Cheryl Matthews (track and field, cross country), Carol Pickard (track and field, cross country), Sharon Doherty (cross country, track and field), Ginny Oakley (cross country, track and field), Bob Noble (cross country, track and field), Jamie Attenborough (rugby), Bruce Miller (cross country, track and field), Ron Arcuri (track and field, basketball, soccer), Cal Young (track and field, soccer, rugby), Gavin Smart (track and field, rugby, soccer, hockey), Sherry Gale (badminton, volleyball), Gail Clarke (basketball, field hockey), Kelly McNee (swimming), Drew Denniston (swimming, track and field, rugby).

MINOR AWARDS: Mary-Lynn Bellamy (volleyball, track and field), Debbie Lane (basketball, volleyball), Mark Tassell (volleyball), Scott Browning (basketball), Cindy Langlois (field hockey, basketball), Shelley Everliegh (field hockey, basketball), Jeanna Eaton (cross country, track and field), Sean Cochlan (cross country, track and field), Gary Bechtold (track and field, cross country), Kevin Park (rugby, hockey, soccer), Mark Turner (rugby, soccer), Andrea Fatt (swimming), Maureen Shushack (swimming), Randy Fatt (swimming).

Atlanta Open Very Tough

ATLANTA (AP) — U.S. Open champion Hale Irwin and two of the game's top players, Jack Nicklaus and Johnny Miler, were in agreement after the opening round of the $225,000 Atlanta Golf Classic.

Each talked about extremely difficult pin placements for opening-day competition in the hilly, 6,883-yard par-72 Atlanta Country Club course.

And each said they liked it.

But despite the problems it presented, the strongest field in a tournament so far this year still riddled par in the cloudy conditions that produced a heavy half-hour shower at mid-afternoon.

Irwin birdied three of his last four holes to move into a three-way share of the lead with veteran Billy Casper and Joe Inman at six-under-par 66.

Two shots away were Nicklaus and Miller, along with Leonard Thompson and Jack Ewing, who had a record-tying 30 on the back nine, which he played first.

Ben Kern of Toronto had a 74 and George Knudson, also of Toronto, shot a 76.

U.S. Keeps Cup

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (UPI) — The United States 10-man team travels to Liverpool Friday for next week's pionships with the coveted Walker Cup packed safely in its luggage.

The Americans completed a record-breaking 15½ to 8½ victory over Great Britain and Ireland Thursday to retain the trophy and boost their tally to 22 out of 25. There was also the added bonus of achieving the landslide win on the formidable 6914-yard Old Course at St. Andrews, scene of the two U.S. defeats, in 1938 and 1971.

The Americans, holding an 8-4 halfway lead after Wednesday's action, pulled away in the singles, winning five of eight matches and halving another.

Victory came despite a disastrous Walker Cup debut by Jerry Pate. The U.S. amateur champion lost both his foursomes in partnership with Dick Siderowf, lost in the singles to substitute Mark James on Wednesday and to Ian Hutcheon on Thursday.

Vancouverite Takes Lead In Seniors

VANCOUVER — Hank Mitchell of Vancouver, the 1971 champion, fired a one-over-par 73 Thursday to go with an opening-round 74 and took over the lead in the B.C. seniors golf championship.

Mitchell, 59, moved two strokes ahead of first-round leader Bill Thompson of Victoria Golf Club, 73-76—149.

Another Victorian, Gordon Verley, 74-79—153, shared third place with Lauren Hurschmann of Vancouver, 80-73—153.

Two other Victoria challengers, in contention after the first round, dropped back. They are Gord Millin oif Colwood, 75-83—158, and former Canadian champion Dr. George Bigelow of Victoria, 77-81—158.

Eagleson Objects to Junior 'Bounty'

Times News Services

Alan Eagleson says he may have to turn some of his junior hockey clients professional if the new Canadian Major Junior Hockey League goes ahead with its plan to set a scale of charges for professional clubs signing players before their junior eligibility expires.

Eagleson, the Toronto lawyer who is director of the National Hockey League Players' Association and acts as agent for many players, singled out Dwight Foster, a star forward with Kitchener Rangers, and Mike Kitchen, a defenceman with Toronto Marlboros, both in the Ontario Major Junior League last season.

"I'm obligated to turn players like Foster and Kitchen professional this year if the CMJHL carries through with their plans to put a $100,000 bounty on their heads," Eagleson said.

Foster is reported ready to negotiate with Minnesota Fighting Saints of the World Hockey Association and Kitchen has drawn the interest of Bill Hunter, general manager of Edmonton Oilers of the WHA.

Eagleson said any of his clients who are not ready for pro hockey will be kept out of the new junior league next season, apparently because he feels the hig prices to be charged by the CMJHL might prejudice their chances of ultimately getting a good pro deal.

Two teams from the Soviet Union will, each play six games in Canada and the United States next season against NHL teams.

NHL president Clarence Campbell said Thursday the games will be played in late December and early January.

He said he could not see the NHL ever again forming a Team Canada select squad, as it did in 1972 for an eight-game series against the Soviet national team, because of exhorbitant costs involved.

ALSO IN HOCKEY: Wayne Dillon, a 20-year-old centre who led Toronto Toros in scoring with 95 points last season, may leave the WHA and join New York Rangers of the NHL. . . He has accepted an agreement calling for $1.4 million spread over seven years . . . The jump will have to be made in 1976-77 became Dillon has one more season to go on a three-year contract . . . Coley Hall, former stockholder in Vancouver Canucks, is trying to form an ownership group for a Seattle entry in the NHL . . . He admitted he's going to "talk to some people" in Seattle next week and has had "encouragment" from the NHL's expansion committee.

Denver Spurs, moving into the WHA from the Central League, have plucked 14 players from the roster of the defunt Chicago Cougars, including former Victoria junior Mark Lomenda . . . The Spurs, who will retain Jean-Guy Talbot as coach, also claimed Darryl Maggs, Byron Baltimore, Keith Kokkola, Rosaire Paiement, Francois Rochon, Bob Liddington, Jan Popiel, Rick Morris, Brian Coates, Peter Mara, Cam Newton, Chris Grigg and Ralph Backstrom . . . New York Rangers' Ted Irvine has been named winner of the Charlie Conacher Memorial Trophy for "outstanding humanitarian and public service contributions."

The 1976 Memorial Cup final will be played in the Montreal Forum May 9-16.

Lion Back Retires

VANCOUVER — B.C. Lions announced the loss of a valued member of their defence backfield on Thursday, but they were also able to inform that they have two prespective import replacements.

Retiring from football because of injuries which have plagued him ever since he joined the Canadian Football League club is 28-year-old Mike Wilson. One of the better defence backs in the Western Conference, he has popped ligaments in his left knee and right ankle, aggravated a back injury and suffered a shoulder separation. His back condition brought the decision to retire.

Signed as possible replacements were Sylvester Hardy, a 190-pounder from the University of Montana and a Big Sky Conference all-star in 1973, and Lowry Briley, a former East Texas State player who was signed last year as a free agent after being released by Edmonton Eskimos.

The Lions also signed holdover Bob Hornes, a 1974 Canadian rookie who saw regular service last year after Wilson was injured. Defence backs previously signed are holdovers Joe Fourqurean, Grady Cavness and Barry Ardern, 1973-starter Rocky Long and newcomers L. J. Douglas and Wally Saunders.

STAMPEDER STARS QUIT FOOTBALL

CALGARY (CP) — Larry Robinson and Gerry Shaw have announced their retirement from Calgary Stampeders after 14 and 10 years respectively with the Canadian Football League club.

Robinson, who holds club records in scoring and interceptions, is going to open a bar at the age of 33. As a place kicker, he led the CFL in scoring in 1964 and 1965 and holds the CFL record for career scoring.

Shaw, 32, will continue as a stockbroker. An all-star wide receiver in 1972, Shaw spent most of the season on the bench last year although getting in to play defence late in the year.

"You get to a point where you can't play as well as you did in the past and you want to go out close to the top," said Shaw. "I'd rather go out reasonably well thought of, than as a bum."

Both players came out of the local school system and played a year of junior football for the same team. Robinson then became a Stampeder at the age of 19, but Shaw went to Washington State for four years before joining his buddy again.

"I went to camp as a quarterback and they switched me to flanker," Robinson recalled. "The guy in front of me was an American and the numbers game cost him, and I stayed."

"For 14 glorious years," said general-manager Gary Hobson.

Pair Shares Golf Lead

BALTIMORE (AP) — Debbie Austin and Sandra Spuzich shot five-under-par 68s Thursday and shared the first-round lead in the $55,000 Ladies Professional Golf Association championship.

Kathy Whitworth finished the first round of the 72-hole event in third place with a 70.

Carol Mann was in a three-way tie for fourth at 71 with Jane Blalock and JoAnn Worsham.

Sandra Post, formerly of Oakville, Ont., and now living in Florida, shot nines of 38 and 35 for a 73 total, five strokes back of the leaders.

Jocelyne Bourassa of Shawinigan, Quebec had a 74.

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

When today's deal was played in the National Mixed Pairs Championships of 1975, quite a few North-South pairs purchased the contract at five clubs doubled (a "sacrifice" against West's four-spade contract). The procurement of a good score depended on South going down only two tricks, for a loss of 300 points, as opposed to going down three tricks, for a loss of 500 points (the East-West four-spade contract was worth 420 points, or possibly 450 or 480 if either one or two overtricks was made.)

The bidding and play that follow developed at one of the tables.

Neither side vulnerable. East deals.

♠ 9 7
♥ K J 10 6 3
♦ Q J 5

WEST
♠ K J 10 4 3 2
♥ 9 5
♦ K 10 9 2
♣ 7

EAST
♠ A Q 8 5
♥ A Q 8 7 2
♦ 8 3
♣ A 5

♠ 6
♥ 4
♦ A 7 6 4
♣ K Q J 9 8 4 2

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
1 ♥	3 ♣	3 ♠	Pass
4 ♠	Pass	Pass	5 ♣
Dbl.	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Nine of ♥.

South's three club overcall was what is known in tournament circles as the "intermediate" jump overcall (not a good hand, not a bad one). When East doubled North's five-club bid, West took a long time before passing. Actually, as the cards were distributed (the favorable location of both the heart king and the diamond ace), twelve tricks could have been made at a spade contract.

A low heart was played from dummy on West's opening heart lead, and East won the trick with his queen. At trick two East led the diamond eight, and when declarer played low, West captured the trick with the king. West returned a diamond, the trick being won by dummy's jack.

Declarer next led the king of hearts off the board, which East covered with the ace. Declarer was now at the crossroads—and he made the winning move: he discarded his singleton spade, allowing East's ace to win the trick.

East now made a good play when he led a low spade away from his ace, but to no avail. South ruffed, after which he led the king of clubs. When East won the trick with his ace, the defenders had just made their last trick.

Had declarer ruffed East's ace of hearts (instead of discarding his spade), he would have gone down three tricks. When he next led the king of trumps, East, upon winning his ace, would have led a low spade to West's king. A diamond lead would then have been trumped with East's remaining trump, and declarer would have gone down three tricks.

SOLUTION MONDAY

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By SYDNEY OMARR

Astrological Forecast for Sat., May 31

ARIES (March 21-April 19): A more gregarious approach to living is indicated. Communications open up—you are consulted, cajoled, flattered and invited. Be receptive but continue to ask penetrating questions. A genuine friendship could develop.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Your ability to be a good guest is accented. One who is concerned with your welfare makes generous gesture. Don't kick toe in sand. Be frank, realistic and combine this with a heavy dose of diplomacy. Special occasion calls for a gift. Remember!

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Good lunar aspect coincides now with philosophical concepts coming into focus. Journeys, education, special publications also could be highlighted. You look within and come up with answers which had been elusive. Pisces, Virgo individuals might figure in picture.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Get down to business, to "hard news." Means leave speculation for another time. You require answers regarding costs, time, motion, what associate or partner intends to contribute. Learn from recent experiences. You'll be on more solid footing.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Emphasis is on getting along with associates in way that does not mean abandoning principles. Play cards close to chest. Wait for "signals." Someone has genuine interest and is trying to tell you something. Refuse to be rushed into judgment.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): New approach to work, health, the way you confront associates—these areas are highlighted. You find now that you win with innovative procedures. You lose by diluting style, methods. Leo, Aquarius figure prominently.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Lunar cycle promotes creativity, sweeping changes, confidence in your innate abilities. Aquarian with unorthodox ideas should be listened to, heeded. Your "inner voice" will be revealing some valuable data. Listen!

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You get invitation to "relax and have fun." Accept. You have, in recent days, been under pressure. You have earned — and need — a change of pace. Gemini, Sagittarius individuals could figure prominently. An "established" person proffers advice. Listen with "jaundiced eye." Okay?.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Accent is on ideas that can be transformed into workable concepts. You find what is real, where you stand, how to cope with situations which lack solid base. You gain prestige—and relatives, neighbors could converge.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Make inquiries regarding finances, personal possessions, payments and collections. You have rare opportunity to obtain "profitable information." Gemini, Virgo and Sagittarius persons could figure prominently.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Highlight personality. Make personal appearances. Trust judgment, intuition. Family members become allies. Get estimate on remodeling job. Improve home surroundings. Contact with architect could result in mutual gains.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Glamor and discretion form alliance. You realize that being alone is not the same as being lonely. You draw now from inner resources. One who had been incognito stands up to be counted—to your benefit.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you were on your own at a relatively early age. You create your own traditions. Aquarius, Taurus, Leo, Scorpio persons play significant roles in your life. Last month was one of your most important of this year. Next month sees you going in a new, more productive direction. You are stubborn, versatile and charming.

FUN WITH FIGURES

By J. A. H. HUNTER

Ann stood back from the car. "A regular triangle right at the intersection, eh?" she said. "150 feet frontage on this road and 102 feet on Timber Lane. I like it, but what about that trée? It's in the middle."

"It is that, in fact exactly the same distance from each corner of the lot," replied Eddie. "But the whole area is 7560 square feet, so there's lots of room without cutting it down."

How far was the tree from each corner?

(Answer Monday.) Thursday's answer: BIRDIE was 487982 (even).

$1,000 Donation For Heart Surgery

A pledge of $1,000 for heart surgical equipment at Royal Jubilee Hospital will be made Saturday at the second annual meeting of the first Open Heart Society of B.C.

The society is made up of people who have undergone open heart surgery and their spouses. Members meet regularly to support each other and those facing open heart surgery.

President Bill Chapman said today the money will be held in trust until a decision is made on what equipment is to be purchased.

Dr. George Woodwark, a cardiologist, will be dinner speaker at the meeting in the Royal Oak Inn. Education panels will be held in the afternoon.

Disputes Cost 1.3M Man Days in 3 Months

OTTAWA (CP) — Working time lost due to strikes and lockouts in the first three months of 1975 totalled 1,311,700 man-years, surpassing the total of 1,154,000 in the same period in 1974, labor department statistics released Thursday show.

Last year, a record total of 9,255,000 man-days was lost due to work stoppages throughout the year.

The record total of time lost in 1974 and the continuing large number of industrial disputes has recently led to efforts by Labor Minister John Munro, labor leaders and businessmen to seek alternative solutions to strike action.

In the first three months this year there were 309 work stoppages compared with 266 in the first quarter last year.

The figures show that in the first three months 27 man-days of work were lost through strikes and lockouts for every 10,000 days worked compared with 23 days lost for every 10,000 worked in the first quarter of 1974.

During the first quarter of the year, 92,840 workers were on strike at some point. Last year, 88,410 employees were embroiled in industrial disputes in the similar period.

Recently, Munro, the Canadian Labor Congress and the Canadian Manufacturers' Association have begun steps to set up a tri-partite council that would propose ways to defuse industrial unrest.

A meeting of the group is planned in July.

Open Space Schedules Toronto Poet

Toronto poet Steve McCaffery will read from his book, Dr. Sadhu's Muffins, and other selections, Sunday, 2:30 p.m., at Open Space Gallery, 506 Fort St.

McCaffery is a member of the experimental poetry group, Four Horsemen, which works mainly with sound poetry. The Four Horsemen have produced one album of sound poetry entitled Canadada.

The reading is sponsored by the Poetry Front and Canada Council. Admission is free.

BCGEU Opens Negotiations

Contract talks between the provincial government's Public Service Commission and the 35,000-member B.C. Government Employees' Union opened Thursday in Victoria.

Talks will continue in Victoria today and then switch to Vancouver for several negotiation meetings scheduled for early June.

The union is negotiating a one-year master contract for all its 35,000 members. The 13 separate components of the BCGEU will negotiate wage provisions after the master contract which provides fringe benefits and basic working conditions, has been settled.

The master contract does not expire until Sept. 30, but a union spokesman said the talks have been started early in the hope that a new contract can be signed the same day the old ones expires so the component groups can begin their negotiations in early October.

Legionnaires Gather Here For Convention

More than 800 members of the Royal Canadian Legion will be in Victoria this weekend to attend the biennial convention of the Legion's Pacific Command.

The first event of the five-day convention will be a Government House reception from 4 to 6 p.m. Saturday.

Representatives of 178 branches in British Columbia, along with delegates from the Yukon, Washington and Oregon, will take part in a remembrance ceremony at the Cenotaph at 2:30 p.m. Sunday.

Opening ceremonies of the convention will take place 9 p.m. that evening at the McPherson Playhouse.

Castaway Spools Useful Articles

Years ago, some unknown backwoods farmer inserted a nail through an empty spool and then drove the spike into his outhouse door to make an improvised handle.

Ever since, folks have been recycling these wooden castaways from the sewing basket into useful articles . . . and one of the slickest of all the use-'em-again ideas for spools is shown here.

Fasten a row of the discarded thread holders — jammed shoulder to shoulder — inside a kitchen cabinet door and — presto! — you've got yourself an instant knife holder.

The handles of the cutting tools will rest on the spools while the implements' blades fit through the gaps between each set of the wooden rollers. It's a perfect marriage and, once you try it, you're going to be dang proud of yourself for thinking of the idea in the first place.

Attache the spools to the cabinet door with both screws (through each roller's centre) and glue (on the base of the discarded thread holders) for safety.

You may also want to run a second full or partial row of spools under the first as added security for your butcher and other extra-long knives.

A coat of varnish, shellac or paint that matches the inside of the cabinet finishes the project.

If you'd like nearly 100 more recycling and environmentally sound living ideas, send 10c and a stamped, self-addressed long envelope to THE MOTHER EARTH NEWS, Victoria Times, 2621 Douglas street, Victoria.

Grief Tough to Handle For Some Lottery Winners

CAVEAT EMPTOR

Sometimes the biggest lottery winners are the biggest losers in the long run.

While many people buy a lottery ticket with the idea that it's a harmless and an inexpensive way to gamble on a dream, they may not be prepared to handle the grief that my come from winning.

A study made in England following soccer pools showed that a large percentage of winners had severe troubles after they won: marriage break-ups, suicides, bankruptcies after fast and careless spending and alcoholism for some who couldn't cope with the windfall.

Huckster's Onslaught

The biggest problem facing winners is how to handle all the money. It can be traumatic and frightening. They may not be prepared for the sudden onslaught of investment, wheeler-dealers and hucksters anxious to bankroll your money into bigger numbers.

On top of that, there are relatives, friends and strangers that figure they are all due a chunk of your winnings either as a gift or a loan. There may be appeals to help a sick dying aunt, hundreds of hard-luck stories and offers of love and marriage. That's when the guilt can add up. Who to give money to, if anyone?

How to invest? How much to sock away? How much to spend? These are some of the questions an experienced lawyer had to face for his client.

In fact Bruce Owen was the first lawyer to handle a million dollar winner. He says he was in this unique position because his client was hospitalized at the time he won the Olympic lottery draw and was unable to handle his winnings.

Even though Bruce Owen didn't win the money, he was besieged with calls and mail asking him to invest his client's money in factories, apartment buildings and a multitude of other investment schemes. He felt that at the time, the best solution was to resist all pressure. He put the money in a solid secure investment.

If the money is reasonably invested, the winner can get a return of about $110,000 a year to live on. That's not hard to take. Then after a certain amount of time and consideration, the winner can make other investments without pressure.

Chances Slim

The success of the Million Dollar Olympic Lottery spurred the newest entry into the lottery business: Ontario's Wintario. Public acceptance has been overwhelming for the dollar lottery offering a chance to win $100,000.

Chances however, are pretty slim. They're two million to one on any ticket for the grand sum of $100,000. For the smaller prizes, $10,000, $1,000 or $100, are one in 1,000. In the Olympic lottery where tickets sell for $10 there's one chance in three million to hit the million dollar jackpot and 14 chances in a thousand of winning one of the smaller amounts.

Quebec, which went into the lottery business in 1971, now has three going; nine months ago the four western provinces started their own highly successful $250,000 lottery.

Hot Controversy

Not everyone is happy about the lottery business. Educators, clergymen and politicians are pretty well divided about the positive aspects and the negative long-range effects. Many feel that the money raised for the government is small potatoes. Statistics show that many low income people who can least afford it, will lay out large chunks of cash monthly on tickets and a dream of finding a pot of gold at the end of the rainbow.

The biggest winners at the moment seem to be the distributors and the retailers who get a nice commission for peddling the tickets. Distributors are paid seven cents for a ticket and retailers get eighty cents for each ticket they sell. One distributor in Northern Ontario is expected to make $3,500 every two weeks.

Lawyer Bruce Owen says that if you are hooked on spending money for a swipe at the golden ring, at least protect yourself as much as possible.

He points to the area of group participation. If you buy a ticket with a number of other people, be sure to put all the contributors names on the ticket or on a separate list that is witnessed by an objective witness. Be sure to date it.

If this isn't done, the money will go to the person whose name is on the ticket and then any money that is divided will be taxed. If the name of each winner is on the ticket, the winners will not be taxed. You collect the whole sum.

You can give a lottery ticket as a gift, provided the person who receives it has his name on the ticket. If your name is on the ticket and you give all or part of the money as a gift, you pay gift tax on it.

In Quebec there is an agency set up that handles winnings for the government and they are also available as a source of advice to any individual winner.

Bruce Owen, although a lawyer, doesn't feel that its absolutely necessary for everyone to pay for the services of a lawyer. He does say that if you can't resist every door-to-door salesman and a hard-luck story, protect yourself immediately with a lawyer, business advisor, banker or accountant you trust.

Family Life Classes Boards' Fault—Dailly

BURNABY (CP) — Opposition to family life programs is primarily the fault of school boards rather than the department of education, Education Minister Eileen Dailly said this week.

"Our family life program was only based on some very, very lose guidelines we gave to the school boards," Dailly told a meeting of the Sperling-Montecito Home and School Association.

While saying that she accepts ultimate responsibility for family life education, she added that the co-operation of teachers and parents in the school district is necessary.

Some programs have contained objectionable material, she said.

"I do not condone them," Dailly said. "There have been some indiscretions on an individual basis. As minister of education I have not put these (objectionable materials) in the schools."

All the problems of materials could have been prevented by meetings between parents and the school boards before setting up family life programs, she said.

Opponents of the programs have misquoted provincial guidlines, said Dailly.

She said no child is required to take family life courses if their parents object.

"It is not a prescribed course," she said. "I'm not saying it is a desired course."

Dailly said family life programs have met with little opposition in Victoria, Nanaimo, Courtenay, Alberni and North Vancouver because of parent involvement.

Medical Group Book Material Disputed

WASHINGTON (WP) — The American Medical Association has published a book recently that bears striking resemblance to a food faddist's book on nutrition. Both contain some truths, a great deal of incomplete information and material which is certainly open to dispute.

The book, called Let's Talk About Food, is the work of nutritionists in the AMA's department of foods and nutrition along with the director of the department, Philip White, who has a doctorate of science degree in nutrition.

By and large, it deals factually with most aspects of food and does dispel "some longstanding myths and misconceptions," as one reviewer wrote. On the other hand, it creates a number of its own misconceptions, rarely dealing frankly with controversial questions.

The book is done in question and answer form and in one of its most candid replies discusses canned pet food for human consumption: "From a bacteriological and nutritional standpoint, these products should be safe for human consumption" . . . though "it is doubtful that these products contain enough of all the nutrients necessary for man, particularly vitamin C."

It also comes down unequivocally against the sale of carbonated beverages and candy in the schools.

About snacks it says, "there is little to be gained by between meal snacks and soft drinks, because most furnish nothing but calories."

Elsewhere the book refuses to give the guidance and advice such a publication should offer. It says, "sugar is wholesome; overuse of sugar is not." While sugar may be useful in providing calories for some, it has absolutely no nutritive value. It is difficult to see how the word "wholesome," which the dictionary defines as "promoting health of body," can be applied to sugar.

The statement raises another question: what constitutes an overuse of sugar?"

The book claims that luncheon meats are a good source of high quality protein. The question is in relation to what? The authors do not take into consideration the extremely high cost per gram of protein in these products compared to other sources of protein, nor how much less of such foods as lean beef, fish and turkey can provide an equal amount of protein.

For example, three ounces of such meats provide the same anount of protein as six slices of bologna. According to figures, bologna, salami, hot dogs and liverwurst are far more expensive than chicken, turkey, ground beef, some fish and even pork and ham is terms of the amount of protein available.

In an attempt at levity the authors conclude: "A bologna sandwich with a couple of slices of cheese, a thick slice of raw onion and a dash of horseradish mustard is not only delicious eating, but also a good way to make the onion more nourishing."

This probably comes closer to the truth about the value of the bologna, not to mention the fact that the cheese, an excellent source of protein, is less than half the bologna's cost in terms of protein.

"The minute amounts of aflatoxin" in peanut butter are dismissed by the authors with the phrase "not thought to be harmful." The book carefully avoids mentioning that aflatoxin is one of the most powerful cancer-producing agents known to man. Consumers Union has written the Food and Drug Administration objecting to any levels of aflatoxin being allowed in peanut butter because of its potential hazard.

The book flatly states that monosodium glutamate is "safe to use." In addition to the fact that some reputable scientists would disagree with this statement, there is no mention of the fact that MSG was removed from baby food because some tests indicated it might do serious damage to infant brains.

In a number of other significant areas the book falters by not telling the whole story. It says that instant breakfasts "supply reasonable quantities of most of the nutrients needed by man." There is no mention that instant breakfasts contain absolutely no fiber, an essential constituent in the diet which would be found in such other breakfast products as whole grain breads and cereals.

Airline Fined

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB) has fined American Airlines a record $150,000 for using corporate funds for politcal contributios, including a $55,000 contribution to the presential re-election campaign of Richard Nixon,

First Fallopian Transplant

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (Reuter) — The world's first fallopian tube transplant patient was reported in fine condition, raising hopes of thousands of infertile women for a chance to become pregnant.

During a 5½-hour operation, the young woman patient received a healthy fallopian tube with its artery and vein from a donor. The tube — a tiny canal — transports the egg from the ovary to the uterus.

Obstetrician B. M. Cohen, who headed the 14-member team that performed the operation here, said 40 to 50 per cent of infertility is caused by faulty fallopian tubes.

However, he warned it will take another 10 to 20 transplants to decide whether the new technique produced pregnancy.

Dr. Cohen said the unidentified recipient was fine and so was the donor who had received a hysterectomy — surgery to the uterus.

Diet Change Calmed Hyperactivity

By SIDNEY KATZ

"Going through hell" is how Suzanne Stormont, a Toronto mother, describes what it is like living with a hyperactive child.

Because of her 3½-year-old son Jamie's non-stop frenetic behaviour, the Stormont home was in constant uproar.

Today all is calm in the home, and the Stormonts are thanking simple changes in Jamie's diet for the transformation. In fact, the whole family has switched to the diet — and is saving $10 a week in food costs into the bargain.

The Stormonts are among the first Canadians to experience how cutting out certain foods — including those containing artificial coloring and flavoring — can reduce hyperactivity in children.

The method is being cautiously viewed by scientists here and in the U.S. as an alternative to the powerful drugs that are usually used to treat such cases.

TEMPER TANTRUMS

Jamie Stormont is one of an estimated 150,000 to 300,000 Canadian children afflicted with hyperactivity — a mysterious and frequently misdiagnosed condition that's also known as hyperkinesis or minimal brain dysfunction.

In recent year sit has become a widespread and serious problem in the homes and schools of North America.

Jamie, a typical case, frequently threw temper tantrums. He had difficulty in sleeping, eating, learning, responding to discipline or sitting still for even a few minutes.

"That's the way hyperactive children are," says Alan Stormont, a Metro book publishing executive. "We were so shattered by Jamie's rambunctiousness that we began shopping around for a psychiatrist to help us live with it."

They found that the most popular form of treatment is to give the hyperactive child three doses of a drug every day. The chemicals used are stimulants — amphetamines (known in street jargon as "speed") and a related substance, Ritalin, whose generic name is methylphenidate.

For unknown reasons these stimulating drugs have a "paradoxical effect" on children under 10 — instead of revving them up, they quieten them down.

DREAD OF DRUGS

Like many other physicians, psychologists and parents, the Stormonts had some grave questions about turning their 3-pear-old into a regular drug taker. Would it lead to addiction to "speed" later on? Would the continued use of chemicals produce adverse side effects? Wasn't it true that the drugs were simply masking the symptoms of hyperactivity without getting at the root of the problem?

After a search, Suzanne and Alan Stormont discovered a new and non-chemical approach. It called for excluding from Jamie's diet all foods which contained chemical coloring or flavoring agents. Also banned were salicylates — substances found in artificial form in headache pills, and, in natural form, in apples, peaches, oranges, berries, cucumbers and tomatoes.

They tried the diet on Jamie. Alan Stormont describes the result as "incredible."

Jamie now eats his meals without interruption and sleeps soundly all night through. Instead of fighting with his brother and other children, he shares his toys with them.

"Jamie could never concentrate on a task for more than a few minutes at a time," says Mrs. Stormont. "The other day he spent a few hours drawing a map."

On three occasions during the seven weeks that Jamie has been on a special diet, he reverted to fractious behaviour. Each time his parents identified a cause. He ate a peach containing natural salicylates; he consumed some artificial flavoring in canned chili con carne; and he swallowed a trace of toothpaste that contained a bright red dye.

Dietary control of hyperactive behavior is the idea of Dr. Benjamin Feingold, formerly chief of the allergy department of the Kaiser-Permanente Medical Centre in San Francisco. His formula is called the KP diet.

Feingold, 74, had for years been designing non-allergic diets for allergic children. He puzzled over the fact that often, when placed on a restricted diet, hyperactive children showed remarkable improvement in their conduct both at home and at school. By careful investigation he identified food coloring and flavoring as major triggers of hyperactivity.

50% SUCCESS

Feingold claims that about 50 per cent of hyperactive children can achieve normal or near-normal behavior by means of the diet. "Within a month," he says, "they can be taken off drugs."

After discounting Feingold's claims for two years, the U.S. Food and Drug Agency recently allotted funds to investigate them.

"It looks as if there may be something in Feingold's theory of hyperactivity," says Richard Ronk, head of the agency's color additive department.

In Ontario, meanwhile, Dr. John Maclennan, director of the allergy clinic of the Hamilton General Hospital, has demonstrated that food additives and air pollutants can radically alter normal conditions in the human body.

He found, for example, that a drop of food dye placed under the tongue of a hyperactive boy caused his pulse rate to climb from 80 to 140 per minute in less than 15 minutes. A high pulse rate is characteristic of frenzied activity.

One 10-year-old would regularly erupt into violent behavior when he returned to school following vacation periods. Maclennan determined that he was responding to fumes of floor wax used in the school building.

ALLERGIC REACTION

"The brain has allergic reactions just as the skin does," says Maclennan, who claims to have seen patients respond to certain foods and pollutants by sleeplessness, anxiety, depression and agitation.

It's not accidental, according to Maclennan, that the proliferation of additive-rich foods has been paralleled by a rise in the incidence of hyperactivity.

He says youngsters are in particular jeopardy because the so-called "kid-foods" — including hot dogs, cereals, potato chips, desserts, cake mixes, soft drinks and candies — usually contain artificial colors and flavors.

"One candy bar, loaded with additives, colors and flavors, can make a predisposed child hit the roof and it might take him a week to come down," Dr. Ben Feingold says.

Jamie Stormont's mother offers encouragement to mothers who might feel that the KP diet is impractical because it's too restrictive, too time consuming and too expensive.

Mrs. Stormont says: "All four of us went on the KP diet at the same time Jamie did.

"After a few weeks the new menu becomes an accepted way of life. You spend a little more time shopping and cooking, but it's worth it.

"Af for cost, we're spending about $10 a week less on food. Don't forget — we've eliminated costly candies, snacks and convenience foods entirely from our budget."

Breakfast in the Stormont home begins with fruit or fruit juice. On the approved list are homemade lemonade, grapefruit, melons, pears and pineapples.

Among the okay cereals are homemade outmeal, cornflakes and Cheerios. Most other ready-made cereals contain unfriendly drying, coloring or flavoring agents. Eggs are acceptable and so is bacon — providing it's free of synthetic coloring. Whole wheat bread is fine, but not buns or breads with additives.

For the main dishes, Mrs. Stormont cooks as though she's living in the days before convenience foods.

She makes roasts and stews — using only fresh vegetables. Hams and processed meats are avoided — not of them contain synthetic coloring. So do commercial pickles and relishes.

The desserts served at the Stormont table consist of either fresh or cooked fruits or plain yogurt — not the fruit-flavored varieties.

Alan Stormont says: "Thanks to the new menu, Jamie is in great shape and the whole family is calmer, happier. We wouldn't dream of going back to the old diet."

Welch Medical Report

By DR. WILLIAM J. WELCH

(Dr. Welch is a practising physician and an associate professor of clinical medicine.)

At the heart of the drive to reform the practice of medicine are certain unrealistic misapprehensions which, if allowed to go unremarked, may prove to be more devastating than the acknowledged failures of the pluralistic and less-than-perfect system — or non-system — we now have.

First among these is the widely trumpeted need to reform what the social planners call the "health care delivery system" as if somethng called "health care" were in fact, or indeed could be, "delivered."

In the present state of the science and the art of medicine, doctors take care of the sick by means of diagnosis and treatment. This is sick care, not health care, although to be sure the hoped-for result is the restoration of the sufferer to a state of health. But it remains the care of the sick, not health care.

"Consumers" of health care, an inevitable corollary of the delivery of same, is an equally absurd delineation of the non-existent.

If there is a public wish to spread the cost and eliminate the immediate, out-of-pocket payment by the sick for care when they need it, let us call it what it is, insurance against the cost of illness and not "health" insurance. And let us get on with it.

Nobody is against such a plan. It is a question of working out the tax base and being prepared to pay indirectly for care when we need it, the way we pay for social security, medicare, medicaid, welfare programs and other social services.

It will not be perfect, the bureaucrats will multiply, but it could be preferable to today's less sweeping sickness insurance programs.

Apart from common-sense advice to wash your hands before you eat and after you go to the toilet, immunizations (especially of the young) against such communicable diseases as polio, small pox and diphtheria, keeping raw sewage out of the drinking water and perhaps putting flourine in to discourage tooth decay, preventive health measures are non-existent.

The notion that the detection of disease before it is clinically apparent can be accomplished by mass screening programs is largely wishful thinking. The staggering proposition of examining and testing each of 200 million every year for evidence of unsuspected disease, were there money enough and examiners enough and time enough, if the miniscule yield of current screening programs of the asymptomatic is any guide, would surely come so quickly under the scrutiny of the cost-benefit boys as to insure its prompt exposure as an exercise in futility.

But there is obvious evidence on every hand that "health care," not as defined by the social planners and Capitol Hill experts, is a crying need, and can and should be delivered, if only we knew how. The barriers to health have nothing whatever to do with any real or imagined flaw in our misnamed "health care delivery system."

The real threats to the health of North Americans derive from our massively self-destructive habits and the conditions in which we live.

How are we going to set about relieving the filthy, disease-breeding conditions of life in the inner-city slums? How will we deal with poverty and malnutrition? Or with air pollution?

Let's remove the barrier of money from the care of the sick, but let us not delude ourselves that this is how we deliver "health care."

Helpful Shopper Wondering Now

DEAR ABBY: While standing in the checkout line in a high grade grocery store, I saw the woman directly ahead of me frantically rummaging around in her purse, looking embarrassed. It seems her groceries had already been checked, and she was a dollar short.

I felt sorry for her, so I handed her a dollar. She was very grateful, and insisted on writing my name and address on a loose piece of paper. She stuck it in her purse and said, "I promise I'll mail you the dollar tomorrow."

Well, that was three weeks ago, and I still haven't heard from her!

Abby, I think I'm a fairly good judge of character, and I just didn't peg her as the kind who would beat me out of a dollar.

The small amount of money isn't important, but what it did to my faith in people is.

I'd like your opinion.—SHY ONE BUCK

DEAR SHY: Don't assume that she deliberately beat you out of a buck. There are other possibilities:

(1) She may have misaddressed the envelope, and the dollar went astray.

(2) She may have lost the paper with your name and address on it.

(3) The incident could have slipped her mind, and the piece of paper may not surface for years.

You bought a dollar's worth of good feeling, so don't feel cheated.

DEAR ABBY: I have been debating for months which of the following I should do regarding a neighbor who has seven children and an unbelievable amount of trash, which, for some strange reason, she doesn't seem able to control.

(1) Buy her seven jumbo cans with tight lids.

(2) Make a phone call requesting that she kindly bag her trash.

(3) call the police and ask them to give her a ticket for littering.

We live in Pocatello, Idaho, which has the windy city of Chicago beat to pieces when it comes to breezes. This neighbor's trash blows onto my yard, and I am thoroughly sick of it. And if it isn't the wind, it's the stray dogs who drag it all over.

What should I do?—MRS. S. ON E. BONNEVILLE

DEAR MRS. S.: First call your neighbor and ask her if she read DEAR ABBY today. If that doesn't get results, write to me again.

DEAR ABBY: I am a fifth-grader teacher, and my class has just finished an extensive course on understanding handicaps. We had the good fortune to have as guests some extraordinary persons with physical disabilities. They gave their time to let my children listen, question and learn about deafness, blindness, amputation and mental retardation from first-hand sources.

The children were eager to learn about the capabilities of each of these guests as well as the problems they faced because of their handicaps. After the class spent two mornings "handicapped" themselves as part of the course, I'm convinced their understanding has grown at least three sizes.

True, those who are "sickened" by the sight of handicapped people need a lesson in tact, but they also need some correct information to overcome their prejudices.

There are hundreds of people like Diane, Ede, Steve, Charlotte and my father who are willing and eager to teach children about their handicaps. I urge schools and civic groups to seek them out and use their services. They are beautiful people.—"TEACH"

DEAR "TEACH": Amen!

Four-Day Work Week Plan

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UPI) — Betty Friedan, founder of the National Organization for Women, suggests unemployment insurance money be used to reimburse workers cut to a four-day work week.

"The unions scream about the four-day week because it usually means less pay," she said. "But let's talk about a four-day week with five days' pay with the fifth day paid out of unemployment insurance."

Friedan spoke at a seminar of feminism prior to receiving the humanist of the year award from the American Humanist Association. Dr. Henry Morgentaler, a Montreal physician, was also to receive an award as humanist of the year but was unable to attend because he is serving an 18-month prison sentence for performing an illegal abortion.

"We must have different working hours with a shorter work week and no overtime," Friedan said. "Given the fact of inflation, we need the four-day week in plants that face layoffs."

"When the unemployment money begins to run out," she said, "we can create new funds out of excess profits. Why should profits be the only thing untouched?"

"Women are the last hired and first fired," she said. "In many cases there isn't a second breadwinner in the family."

The woman credited with starting the current women's liberation movement said, "we are only in the first stage. The women's movement cannot go ahead or even defend the gains of the last 10 years unless there is a reconstructuring of our institutions with the equality of women asserting their own personhood."

"The next stage can't be women against men," she said. "To say women will take power over men is not realistic. Men are here to stay, and women wouldn't want it any other way. We're an intersex society. Friedan called for a "new human politics" but cautioned that "trying to create sexual politics is diversionary."

"The new politics must not be women in isolation because men are obviously the other half of this movement," she said. "The enemy is not man, it is some reactionary forces that have manipulated women."

Men's Clubs Deny Discrimination Against Women

VANCOUVER (CP) — The presidents of two exclusive downtown men's clubs claim their organizations do not discriminate against women.

The men were responding to charges levelled by provincial court judge Nancy Morrison, who said discrimination against women exists openly at the Vancouver Club, the Terminal City Club and the University Club.

Harold Crompton, president of the Terminal City Club, said women are allowed to join the club and to use some facilities, but only if they are wives of male members. He said no matter how prominent a woman is in her own right she cannot join the club unless her husband is a member.

He said the policy wasn't discriminatory because "men have men's clubs and ladies have ladies' clubs."

Crompton said he didn't think it likely that the Terminal City Club would open to women members in the foreseeable future.

University Club president Warren Brant said his club "allows women to go to the club on their own," as long as their husbands are members. Women are only allowed on the premises after 5 p.m.

He said men's clubs exist because that's what the members want. He said the executive could only go along with the membership.

Club members recently voted about two-to-one against a proposed bylaw change that would have allowed women members. The vote stemmed in part from nomination of Simon Fraser University President Dr. Pauline Jewett as a member.

Judge Morrison is encouraging women to refuse to attend the downtown clubs where their husbands are members.

If women refused to go to such clubs with their husbands, it would probably be the death of the clubs because it would be such a serious financial blow, Morrison said.

Brant and Crompton both felt that such a move wouldn't make much difference to their clubs.

Brenton S. Brown, president of the Vancouver Club, said Morrison's comments were irrelevant.

"Any of these clubs — women's or men's — are just like restaurants, and the yellow pages are full of restaurants," he said.

"No one is denied a place to eat — there's no end of restaurants."

The existence of men's and women's clubs does not infringe on anyone's human rights, he added.

Ombudsman Appointed

Ian Cameron, librarian at Mount Newton junior secondary school, has been elected ombudsperson for Vancouver Island teachers.

He is one of five B.C. Teachers' Federation members around the province who hear appeals from teachers who feel they have been unfairly treated by the BCTF executive.

The ombudsperson investigates the complaint and places the facts before the BCTF representative assembly.

Cameron replaces Kory Regan of Victoria in the position, and will serve for a five-year term.

'DEAD' BABY STOLEN

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Mary Childs thought the baby she had last September was born dead. She saw a body. [illegible] she was told the baby lived and was stolen by a nurse. A judge told her Thursday she can have the child if she can prove she could be its mother and no one else claims it.

"All I want is my baby back," sobbed the shaken Mrs. Childs, 37, emerging from a closed hearing in juvenile court.

Mrs. Child and her husband William, 36, rushed out Thursday afternoon to get blood tests and other medical examinations to show they could be the parents of the eight-month-old girl. Such tests can prove only that they are possibly the parents, or that they are not, but cannot prove that they are.

Anti-Wallace Candidacy Declared

WASHINGTON (WP) — Former Gov. Terry Sanford of North Carolina declared his candidacy for the 1976 Democratic presidential nomination Thursday, casting himself as the Democrat who can derail Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace's bid for the White House.

Accusing other Democrats of "cozying up" to Wallace out of fear of alienating his supporters, Sanford said he intends to confront Wallace directly in the North Carolina primary and quit the race if he fails to beat him there.

"We might as well shoot it out at high noon," the 57-year-old president of Duke University said in an interview after his announcement, "and if we can't cut it there, get out."

Nixon Urged to Relocate

LOS ANGELES — Richard Nixon's closest friends and advisers are encouraging him to leave San Clemente for "a new base of operation in New York" to be more accesible to international leaders, the Los Angeles Times reported today.

Nixon has been in contact with foreign leaders and has also received overtures from U.S. corporations to serve as a consultant on international operations, the report said.

NEW LONDON, Conn. — Rufus Rose, 70, who transformed the puppet Howdy Doody into a familiar television character died Thursday.

A hospital spokeswoman said Rose was admitted May 20 with a strangulated hernia.

A family spokesman said his condition changed to peritonities.

Rose and his wife, Margaret, became associated with the Howdy Doody show shortly after it was created and redesigned many of the figures, including Howdy.

TORONTO — Raynell Andreychuck, 30, a lawyer from Moose Jaw, Sask., is expected to become the first woman to be national president of the YMCA, says Gordon Cressy, outgoing YMCA president.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn. — A jockey-sized murder suspect escaped from the Bridgeport Correctional Centre Thursday by buttering his body and sliding through the bars of his cell.

Police said Bella Krager, 5-foot-1 and 130 pounds, used butter he apparently saved up from the dining hall to smear his body.

ALLENWOOD, Pa. — James McCord, who helped expose the Watergate cover-up, was paroled Thursday and left prison after serving a total of four months of an original one-to-five-year sentence.

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (UPI) — Daniel McEnery, who retired as New York City's most decorated detective, will be sentenced July 14 for armed robbery.

McEnery, 52, pleaded no contest Thursday when he came up for trial on charges of robbing a department store clerk of $750 at gunpoint Dec. 7, 1973.

WASHINGTON — Hunter S. Thompson, Rolling Stone magazine's peripatetic, self-styled "gonzo" journalist, has asked that his name be removed from the masthead of the popular bi-weekly tabloid, he said Thursday from his home in Colorado.

"It's a toss-up," he said, "whether I was fired or whether I quit."

LAUGHING THIEF LOGGING TICKETS

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Charles Beringer wishes the police department would spend less time writing parking tickets and more time searching for his stolen car.

"The person who stole my car must laugh every time he passes a police car," says Beringer, an unemployed truck driver who has received 19 parking tickets since his car was stolen March 1.

The police department has told Beringer he won't have to pay for tickets.

Dry Weather Boon to Some Plants

Benefits of the dry spring months (April and May) must be added up to help balance the work of watering so early in the year. Seed rows have been difficult to keep damp long enough for complete germination, and the seedlings have needed constant attention as a result of low humidity and wind drying the soil surface.

Not many of us have been watering the section of the garden where we intend to plant tomatoes, squash and other tender vegetables; or where we shall sow beans and sweet corn this next feek. Therefore the moisture level in that area is going down daily and little will be available for the plant roots to draw on.

This means more humus to be mixed into the growing rows as we prepare them for planting, followed by deep watering at least once a week until we get the soil damp below. Then perhaps the normal once every 10 days will be enough.

Meanwhile as an antidote to this extra care let us enjoy some plants thriving in the dry weather even though hot sunshine has not been an accompanying factor.

Have you noticed the yucca flower stems elongating? In the centre of mature, sharply pointed leaf sections you will already find six or eight-inch long stems of tightly folded flower buds in some species. In other species you will notice a thickening centre to the mature growths down among the leaves, indicating the presence of flower spikes.

Yuccas require little surface watering, for their roots go deep into the soil. So long as they are in full sun and can find what they need of soil moisture they flower better without constant watering as they might get in some types of gardens.

Usually it is late June before yucca flowers open their lemon scented waxy bells, but I feel sure at least one of our species will open in the early part of June this year.

Too early to speculate about flowering of Phormium tenax, the New Zealand-flax. It may need both drought and hot sunshine to trigger flowering. We have seen these plants bloom freely only in two of the past 15 years.

New Zealand-flax is a soft-leaved plant slightly resembling a young yucca, but no daggar ends to the more flexible leaves. They may be green with a slightly brownish hue, or a lovely deep bronze in the variety rubra.

The flower stem goes up to six or eight feet, with reddish yellow flowers. Worth looking for to plant in patio squares where conditions suit their needs. And a flower stem cut at the base when the flowers have faded is worth keeping in the house, dry, to make a winter dried arrangement.

The various hybrid brooms with red, bronze, pinkish, yellow or brown flowers are lovely this year. They follow the earlier creamy colored species.

Now too we have quite a good young plant of Cytisus aetnensis, the Mt. Aetna-broom. Long racemes of bright yellow flowers are holding well and the plant should be a pleasure for many years as it grows.

The benefits and the extra garden care needed are about balanced in a dry spring season. Use water carefully without waste. It is a precious commodity and not inexhaustible.

OPEN EVENTS RETURNING TO Y-TIMES TRACK MEET

A look from the past has been added to the Y-Times track and field meet June 21-22 at Centennial Stadium.

Once an open competition, the meet has been strictly age class the last few seasons with no events for athletes older than 18 years.

This year, however, the meet has been expanded to include both open and age-class competition.

The decision to add open events came after meet officials received several requests from international-class athletes to hold open competition.

"Top-calibre athletes have a difficult time finding meets to enter," meet co-director Jack Rowe said today, "so we know we'll have some fine track and field people here for the meet."

Open events will include men's and women's 100, 400, 800 and 1,500 metres, 110 and 400-metre hurdles, high jump, long jump, javelin and shotput. Men also will compete in the 5,000 metres and pole vault.

Another feature of this year's meet will be competition among American, B.C. mainland and Island high school athletes, including Mt. Douglas middle distance star Tom Griffin.

Meet officials also decided this year to upgrade age-class standards. The number of age-class competitors is still expected to exceed 800 with athletes coming from Alberta, Oregon, Washington and B.C.

Italy Tops Canada

MILAN, Italy (CP) — Canada's national basketball team suffered a 75-60 loss at the hands of the Italian national team Wednesday night.

The Canadians, led by 12-point performances from Phil Tollestrup and Bill Robinson, stayed close through most of the game but the Italians pulled away in the final minute

The score was 39-32 at the half and Canada managed to pull within five points but with only 10 minutes remaining, the Italian moved in front 60-49 and soon after the Canadians' hopes for a rally ended when Tollestrup and Ken McKenzie fouled out.

Tag-Team Bout Headlines Card

Gene Kiniski will team up with Dale Lewis to go against Dutch Savage and Don Leo Jonathan in a tag-team bout that will feature next Thursday's professional wrestling program at Memorial Arena.

Newcomer Rock Hunter, Seigfreid Steinke, Guy Mitchell and Masa Saito are scheduled to participate in supporting bouts, which start at 8 p.m.

Business Aid Sought For Museum

The Maritime Museum of British Columbia launched another part of its drive to raise $1000,000 Wednesday, sending appeals for help to between 700 and 800 businesses in Victoria.

Appeals committee chairman Blayney Scott said:

"Board members and friends have been working quietly for nearly three months in the fund-raising campaign and we are now 20 per cent of the way toward our goal of $100,000."

When raised, the $100,000 will be held in trust. Matching grants are expected to be given by the three levels of government so that a permanent home can be established for the museum.

The city of Victoria wants the museum moved from its present quarters in the city-owned old Law Courts building in Bastion Square.

ROMANTIC painting by Grade 11 student Sue Hutchinson gets the attention of fellow student Pat Peron. Painting is one of nearly 100 works done by Mt. Doug secondary students that have been on display at the school. Highlights from the exhibition will be on display at school board offices on Foul Bay Road next week. (Bill Halkett photo)

Metric Sizes Worry for Builders?

The construction industry would be very concerned if sizes of building materials changed with the introduction of the metric system, Canadian Construction Association vice-president Wayne Farmer said Thursday.

He said in an interview it would be expensive for builders if they had to convert all their equipment to new sizes when the metric system expands to metres and centimetres later this decade.

Farmer was commenting on a speech by Fred Milligan, immediate past president of the Association of Professional Engineers of B.C., Wednesday night before the Building Supply Dealers of B.C. at the Westwinds International Motor Inn.

Milligan said building materials will be manufactured in present sizes for many years despite the introduction of the metric system.

Milligan added, however, that there was pressure to reduce the size of studs and some other building materials to make the conversion to metric numbers more precise. He did not say where the pressure was coming from.

Farmer said anyone manufacturing building supplies would be against any changes in basic sizes because of the high costs.

He suggested that if present sizes do not convert precisely to metric measurements the names should be approximate. There was no reason why a board could not be called 6 centimetres wide if it was approximately that width.

"The name isn't important. A two-by-four isn't a two-by-four. It is 1⅝ by 3⅝."

UVic Student Gets Second Top Award

Nineteen-year-old Ethan Laukkanen of 1955 Townley has won his second award this month, the Governor-Generals award for academic achievement at the University of Victoria.

The award, top prize the university bestows each year, will be presented to the fourth-year physics and mathematics student at Saturday's convocation ceremony.

The National Research Council of Canada announced earlier this month that Laukkanen has received a scholarship to finance graduate studies in theoretical physics in Eastern Canada in the fall.

Two other top awards will be presented at the UVic convocation ceremonies, the Maxwell Cameron memorial medal and prize for the top graduating education students in elementary and secondary grades.

Penny Lynn Scholey of 2494 Arbutus will receive the Maxwell Cameron medal (secondary) and Patricia J. Hughes of 2--1035 Oliphant will receive the Maxwell Cameron medal (elementary).

Driller Drain Reversing

EDMONTON (CP) — Energy Minister Don Getty says preliminary indications show some oil companies and drilling operators that left Alberta may be having second thoughts.

Some have found that "what looked greener on the other side of the fence has turned out not to be so attractive," he told the legislature Thursday.

Tax changes regarding depletion "have softened some of the incentives in the United States."

NORTH BATTLEFORD, Sask. (CP) — Four persons charged with fraud and conspiracy to commit fraud in connection with an $80,000 transaction involving funds of the Moosomin Indian Band pleaded not guilty in court Thursday.

CALGARY (CP) — Freedom of the press was upheld Thursday when Provincial Judge Fred Thurgood dismissed a joint charge against Calgary Television Station CFCN and one of its news reporters, Ralph Klein.

CFCN and Klein were charged after the station broadcast on Feb. 16 a report by Klein that a budget meeting of the Calgary convention centre authority on Jan. 20 was bugged.

WINNIPEG (CP) — Labor Minister Russ Paulley announced today that about 1,800 retired public employees or their beneficiaries will receive another cost-of-living bonus this year.

The boost applies to those who retired before Jan. 1, 1974.

CLASS PAYS OFF

EDMONTON (CP) — Three weeks ago, Sgt. Tom Pearson, of the city police completed a course on how to negotiate with gunmen and it paid off Thursday when he talked an armed man into giving himself up and releasing his hostage.

The drama ended quietly about 3:20 a.m. when the 41-year-old man stepped out of the townhouse in the city's east end and walked across the lawn into the police car in which Sgt. Preston sat alone.

The man had released his 14-year-old son about 45 minutes previously.

The surrender followed five hours of negotiation by telephone from a both in a shopping centre parking lot opposite the townhouse development

At one point the man, who was subsequently taken to hospital for examination, fired a shotgun blast into the wall of the home as he talked with his wife about their son.

Rats: Alberta's Got 'Em!

EDMONTON (CP) — Albertans, who pride themselves in their "rat free" province, are being defied by a handful of the furry varmints who have taken up residence in an Edmonton office building.

After the first black roof rat munched on an apple and found itself in a trap last week, the great rat hunt was on, headed up by the city's environmental health service, and five more have been rounded up.

Once the rats are trapped they are sexed, sized and will probably be stuffed, since their rarity in the province has qualified them as collector's items. The provincial museum and archives, the provincial government and the exterminator have already reserved one rat apiece.

Sask. Campaign Lengthy

SASKATOON (CP) — Although the Saskatchewan election campaign is officially only 28 days long, many of the 188 candidates competing for 61 legislature seats started knocking on doors and shaking hands months earlier.

With all parties placing great emphasis on personal contact, some will have personally been to every household in their ridings by election day, Wednesday, June 11.

Premier Allan Blakeney has been busing from town to town six days a week making about two speeches a day.

Liberal Leader Dave Steuart, with only a 44-vote plurality in the 1971 election, has to spend more time in his Prince Albert-Duck Lake constituency but makes up for some lost time by making greater use of aircraft.

Conservative Leader Dick Collver, whose party had no seats in the last legislature, has the task of getting himself elected.

With more than 70,000 paid members in the three parties, almost eight of every 100 persons in the province has a party membership card.

For the NDP and its predecessor, the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation (CCF), such mass participation has been traditional.

The Liberal membership total of more than 32,000, however, is largely due to the efforts of Steuart.

The Conservatives have also emerged as a new element, with a full slate this time after running only 16 candidates in 1971 and winning no seats while the NDP took 45 and the Liberals 15.

Collver often notes that the party's current membership of more than 10,000 is several thousand more than that of the Alberta Conservative party just before Premier Lougheed's recent victory.

With the exception of one coalition Conservative government, the Liberals held office through the province's first 11 elections before the CCF took power in 1944.

As the CCF initiated radically-new social services like medical insurance, the Liberals reacted with hard-line denunciations of socialism and an unwavering commitment to private enterprise.

800-Year-Old Indian Buried

WINNIPEG (CP) — The skeletal remains an Indian family unearthed in an archaeological excavation near Selkirk, Man., will be reburied following protests from a group of native people.

About 50 Indians from the Prairie provinces were informed of the decision during meetings about a week ago with the Manitoba Archeaological Society, the Manitoba Musuem of Man and Nature and the Historic Sites Advisory Board. J. D. MacFarlane, secretary of the advisory board, said the bones will be reburied within ten days at an undisclosed site.

The bones of a man, two women, a youth and a baby, believed to be between 500 and 800 years old, were uncovered from a burial mound near the Red River earlier this month.

MacFarlane said the reason behind the reburial is based on a "respect" for the Indians' religious beliefs.

To Hell with Public, Postal Boss Snaps

Times News Services

Inside postal workers booked off sick today in the Atlantic provinces as a row boiled over between Postmaster-General Bryce Mackasey and the postal union president.

Mackasey accused Joe Davidson, head of the 22,000-member Canadian Union of Postal Workers, of trying to inflame the members into a wildcat strike. Davidson angrily responded that Mackasey was lying.

He has been lying about the willingness of the post office to resume contract talks, Davidson said. There had not been a response on union requests for a clause dealing with automation and other issues.

Davidson told reporters the union wants to negotiate technological change in the post office because postal workers are more affected by automation than other employees.

"If the public won't see the justice of our cause, then to hell with the public," Davidson said.

Postal workers would suffer more from strikes than the public would.

Davidson warned of further action by the union in the next few days to show its displeasure with the post office and Mackassey.

He would not elaborate on strategy worked out by the nine-member national executive board of the union, but he cited as possibilities more cases of "Mackassey flu," work-to-rule and the refusal of overtime work.

Mackasey said he had a proposed clause on technological change and Davidson would see it if and when the union sat down at the bargaining table.

Davidson said the Montreal post office was like something out of Nazi Germany with police with billy clubs standing about. One supervisor had taken out a long-bladed knife and intimidated employees, he said.

He asked postal officials to prove that supervisors have been beaten up by postal workers. Mackasey has said postal supervisors have been beaten and their homes damaged.

Mackasey has been trying to divide the union for months, he argued.

"If he persists in his outrageous tactics, he will soon find he will have to suspend every postal worker in the coustry," he said.

Referring to a union press statement, Mackasey said that to suggest there are 400 policemen inside the Montreal post office "is a pure fabrication of the worst possible type."

Angrily responding to questions in the Commons, Mackasey said the statement "has no foundation, it is malicious and it is unreasonable and, as far as I am concerned, it is unworthy of anybody who is the head of a trade union in this country."

Claiming to be better friend of the postal workers than is their executive the Postmaster General declared he would not be intimidated into rescinding the suspensions and dismissals as a result of unlawful actions.

He added that he was glad to see that the union is now discovering the terms of its own collective agreement.

Drawing support from both sides of the Commons, Mackasey declared it was interesting the union was now finding some fault with the grievance procedure which for two months they have refused to recognize as the lawful method of solving legitimate differences of opinion.

Postal workers in Victoria stayed on the job today and post office spokesman Buz Sawyer said all shifts were operating normally.

No More Politics In Naming of Judges

Provisions to take appointment of judges "right out of the realm of politics" are included in legislation introduced today by Attorney-General Alex Macdonald.

The Provincial Court Act, he said, creates a two-tier system of provincial court judges and a new category of Justice of the Peace for existing part-time lay judges.

The attorney-general retains the right to appoint judges, but only on the recommendations of a strengthened Judicial Council composed of a judge, a justice, and three other appointees.

Judges will also be given a free choice of whether to take a pension or continue their duties in temporary service.

Now only the attorney-general has the power to reappoint judges to a longer term of service past the retirement age of 65.

Macdonald said, however, that all new appointees to the bench will have to retire at 65, in line with the government's goal of working toward a younger bench.

Legal framework changes designed to clear congestion of the courts would speed up new trials.

Macdonald said current appeal systems allow the whole rerun of a trial, including the reappearance of all witnesses, an arrangement which is expensive.

Under new provisions a transcript of evidence already taken will be considered by the juge who, only in some cases, will recall key witnesses.

NO PLACE SATURDAY FOR SMOKERS IN B.C.

Smokers beware, for Saturday is Non-Smokers' Day in British Columbia, duly proclaimed as such in a provincial cabinet order signed by Premier Barrett and Health Minister Dennis Cocke.

The preamble to the proclamation notes that 756 British Columbians died from lung cancer in 1974 and that the "total death rate is lower in those who have stopped smoking cigarettes than in those who continue."

Non-Smokers' Day is sponsored by the Non-Smokers' Association of Canada.

The cabinet order is non-committal about what the non-smokers actually do on that day, besides non-smoking.

Justify Demand Unions Told

VANCOUVER (CP) — Unions must justify to the public their "clearly outrageous" wage demands, top negotiator for the newly-formed B.C. food industry labor relations council said Thursday.

Bill MacDonald, speaking at a press conference, said employers in the council were not embarking on a campaign for public support, but he warned that "it will be the consumer who will have to pay for those demands."

He estimated the demands now being sought would pile an estimated seven per cent on food prices, "over and above any price increases that can be expected to follow inflationary pressures in other areas."

MacDonald was referring to demands by the Retail Clerks Union Local 1518, Canadian Food and Allied Workers, meatcutters local, and the Bakery and Confectionery Workers International Union.

The council produced figures on the union demands and said the companies are "being asked to accept wage and benefit contracts ranging from a low of 42.6 per cent to a high of 87.2 per cent over a one-year period."

As an example, MacDonald said the unions are demanding that checkout-out girls receive a 51.4 per cent wage boost from $10,920 to $16,536 a year. "With fringe benefits, the total annual cost to the companies would rise 62.1 per cent from $14,711 to $23,821."

For meatcutters the demand is for $22,112 from $13,832 and for meat wrappers from $10,920 to $19,240.

About 4,000 workers in Greater Vancouver and Victoria are affected. The council has applied for two mediators to assist in negotiations.

The council says it is not looking for a strike. The food industry has been under some fire from other indutrial employers for previous settlements and MacDonald said the council is "solid."

$1M HOT CAR RING SNAPPED

MONTREAL (CP) — Provincial police have broken a national car theft ring responsible for $1 million worth of stolen vehicles annually, a police spokesman said Thursday.

Police recovered about 60 cars, 24 rifles and shotguns, five revolvers and a large quantity of ammunition in a series of Montreal-area raids, the spokesman said.

Charges have been laid against several members of the gang and forty other arrests are imminent, he said.

The weapons were found in suburban Montreal.

Bomb Scares Follow Extortions

MONTREAL (CP) — A rash of false bomb scares Thursday added a new twist to the recent epidemic of extortions in the Montreal area, Montreal Urban Community MUC police said.

Seven bomb calls were reported by bank officials Thursday. In most cases, bank managers received telephoned threats that a bomb would go off in their banks unless demands for money were met.

No bombs exploded in the seven incidents and no money was paid.

Bank security officials are working with police and the justice department in an effort to put an end to attempts involving hostages which have netted extortionists $1.8 million throughout the province in the last nine months.

Pig Farm Chosen

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Trevor Schmidt, 19, Cincinnati, called a police officer a pig when he was stopped for speeding. So he's had to choose between spending one day on a pig farm or 30 days in the workhouse. Schmidt chose a day on a pig farm.

Band Ordered Off

The Stuart-Trembleur Indian band must remove a blockade on B.C. Railway near Fort St. James before the provincial government will hold discussions on land claims with the band, Alf Nunweiler, minister without portfolio, said Thursday.

Nunweiler is a director of the railway.

Sniper Shot

BEIRUT (AP) — Police shot and killed a sniper early today following a night of scattered clashes between political and religious factions. It was the first known case of active intervention by joint ceasefire patrols of Lebanese security men and Palestinian guerrillas trying to restore order after 11 days of chaotic street fighting.

Viet Future Set

SAIGON (UPI) — Government sources said Thursday North and South Vietnamese officials have agreed in top level meetings that political reunification of this nation is at least five years away. The three-week meeting on the future of Vietnam has produced total agreement on all major points of discussion, including making Saigon a free market city while introducing socialism to the rest of the nation, the sources said.

Economic Stoke-Up For West

PARIS (UPI) — The industrialized nations of the west have decided to fire up their troubled economies, risking a new round of inflation to combat worldwide recession.

The 24-nation Organization of Economic Co-operation and Development said rising unemployment in the developed nations is a graver threat than spiralling prices.

The OECD, which decided last year to slow down economic growth to curb inflation, agreed at its annual meeting Thursday to do a tactical about-face.

But the OECD countries, including Canada, the United States, western Eruope and Japan, promised to try to avoid touching off a new round of soaring prices.

In announcing the joint stand, British Chancellor of the Exchequer Denis Healey said, "everybody is confident that an upturn is on the way."

U.S. Treasury Secretary William Simon predicted that the U.S. economy would snap out of its slump and top the growth rate of all other OECD countries by the end of the year.

"At the rate shown in our official forecasts, I have the impression that the U.S. growth rate may well be the highest among member countries during the second half of this year," Simon said at the end of the two-day meeting. (See Page 9).

But the treasury secretary found himself embroiled in a dispute with French Finance Minister Jean-Pierre Fourcade over the U.S. decision to abandon fixed currency exchange rates in 1971 and let the dollar float.

Province to Purchase Ambulance Services

By DON VIPOND
Times Staff

The provincial Emergency Health Services Commission will start buying up close to 200 municipal and private ambulance services throughout British Columbia.

The commission, which took over operation of all ambulance services in the province 11 months ago, has been leasing their equipment and paying operating costs since then.

Dr. Peter Ransford, the commission's executive director, said Thursday that permission to begin buying the assets of the ambulance services has just been received from the provincial government.

Estimated cost of acquiring vehicles and other equipment is about $900,000 and most of the services are expected to be in the commission's hands by the end of this year.

Leasing costs have been running at the rate of $400,000 a year.

Ransford also said that after testing a variety of vehicle styles for ambulance work, the commission has settled on one van-style type to become the standard. It is a one-ton van similar to one used in mail service.

The commission will buy the stripped vans for about $6,000, modify and equip them itself at its Central Saanich workshop and produce its own ambulances at a cost between $13,000 and $14,000.

Ransford estimated it will represent a saving of about $5,000 an ambulance over buying a finished vehicle. An ambulance that cost $15,000 a year ago is now priced at $21,000, he said.

"We really can't buy what we want. Our experience is they either ride abominably, are too big and clumsy or just are not well-enough built"

The limousine-style of ambulance is out. They can't carry the 850 pounds of equipment now regarded as essential in emergency vehicles.

The standard ambulance the commission will produce can carry the equipment and up to four patients. The commission aims to make them last for 55,000 miles or 10 years.

There are 232 ambulances working across the province at the moment and Ransford calculated the commission will turn out about 45 of its modified ambulances a year for the first few years to meet replacement needs.

Of the 30 ambulances the commission has bought, four are four-wheel drive vehicles for more rugged work in the interior of the province.

While the commission, like all government services, is feeling government spending restrictions, Ransford said that if it is allowed to buy planned radio equipment, it will have a communications network which will cover 95 per cent of B.C. by the end of this year.

The remaining pockets are in rough terrain where radio contact depends on weather.

The radio network means every ambulance will be in touch with both its base and the hospital where it's heading, he said.

Kierans for B.C. Trust

Former federal Liberal cabinet minister Eric Kierans will serve as a director of B.C.'s new banking institution.

Premier Barrett told the legislature this morning Kierans is the first and only director appointed so far to the Savings and Trust Corp. of B.C.

The announcement came during Barrett's opening remarks in debate of legislation which would set up the new provincial bank.

Kierans, who served in the federal cabinet in the late 1960s, is now professor of economics at McGill University and past president of the Montreal and Canadian Stock Exchanges.

Barrett described him as an outstanding Canadian economist, a progressive thinker who is "willing to help this struggling little government."

Kierans will be working on a part-time basis at first but within a year, when the bank is realy to start operations, he will be working full time, Barrett said.

In his statement during second reading of the bill, Barrett said B.C.'s new corporation will be "the finest social and economic institution in the financial field ever created in North America."

The premier avoided discussion of the specific operation of the institution, which will have all the functions of a normal bank and is designed to operate through the credit unions of B.C.

Children ARE People: Report

By LINDA HUGHES
Times Staff

Dramatic changes in B.C. family law, giving children a bill of rights and the power to take their parents to court, are recommended in a government report made public Thursday.

The fifth report of the Royal Commission on Family and Children's Law, a massive document in seven volumes, says children now have no legal status and are not even considered people under the Human Rights Code.

(● Government financial assistance for couples who want to adopt but cannot afford the move has been recommended by the Commission. See page 16.)

It recommends the law shift its emphasis from the protection of children to the rights and responsibilities of children.

A 12-point bill of rights for youngsters should be established, says the report, and included in an omnibus act containing all laws relating to children and the family.

The bill includes the right to food, clothing, housing; to "an environment free from physical abuse, exploitation and degrading treatment;" to health care and education.

It also assures the right of children to play and recreation; to legal assistance; to an explanation of all decisions affecting their status; and to parental and adult support.

The report contains 232 recommendations which revolve around the bill of rights and its application to such things as adoption, the needs of special children, the protection of children, custody and the status of children of unmarried parents.

A system of judicial declarations should be established, says the report, which among other things would allow a child to take his parents or the government to court for violation of his rights.

A child could seek a declaration, for example, to say his mother was not abiding by his right to food, clothing and housing.

The judicial declaration would have no power in law but the commission said it felt the social pressure on the parent would have its effect.

Through the declarations a class action could also be launched against the government or institution violating the children's rights.

In the volume on protection of children, the commission also recommends a child be able to take his parents to court to seek an order placing him under the care of the government or court because of "irreconcilable differences."

Civic Leaders Wary Of New Liquor Laws, Fear More Rowdyism

By PAUL MOSS and PAT DUFOUR

Greater Victoria's municipal leaders aren't exactly intoxicated with B.C.'s new era of liberalized drinking, heralded in legislation introduced Thursday by Attorney-General Alex Macdonald.

In particular, every mayor and alderman questioned by the Times today voiced serious doubts whether municipalities will allow drinking in parks and other public places.

That legislation throws the responsibility on individual municipalities to designate their own lists of areas where public consumption of alcohol would be permitted.

But today's indications are that, in the four core municipalities at least, such lists will either be extremely short or non-existent.

The recurring fear expressed by civic leaders is that any policy of wide-open public drinking, from Beacon Hill Park to Willows Park and Centennial Square, would add to existing problems of rowdiness, excess and police enforcement.

Typical of Victoria officials' comments was Ald. Mike Young's observation that city council would probably tackle the whole question with "extreme circumspection."

Young doubted that any city list of designated areas would actually be compiled, and said instead council would probably adopt a wait and see attitude based on discretionary enforcement of the existing bans.

"One of the problems of North America and of B.C. in particular is that under the legislative and bureaucratic system of life everything is regulated and there is very little commonsense discretion used," he said.

Oak Bay Mayor Brian Smith welcomed the freedom to be given municipalities.

"It will be up to local communities to make their own judgment and that's a good thing," he said. "A sophisticated beer garden within a small area could be a good thing. Before now, it's beep forbidden and sinful."

Smith said he would never support indiscriminate drinking on public beaches, however.

Saanich Mayor Ed Lum says his municipality already is plagued with problems caused by drinking at beaches and public parks. Legalizing public drinking would only increase the problem.

Already Have Problems

Lum conceded, however, the council might consider allowing liquor to be consumed at its indoor recreation facilities.

Esquimalt Mayor Art Young said his municipality, like Saanich, already has a public drinking problem.

Young said he, personally, was against legalizing public drinking.

Young predicted confusion will result from the new legislation.

Victoria Ald. Bill Tindall said he would have serious reservations about designating any area of the city as appropriate for the public consumption of alcohol.

"Where would you draw the line?" he asked. "I would rather see the status quo remain the way it is and I am sure the police authorities would exercise their powers with discretion."

For example, he said, he could not imagine any police action resulting from a family picnic on Dallas Road beach, where the adults were sharing a bottle of wine.

Tindall said he would be absolutely opposed to providing liquor in sports stadiums, adding that sports fans tend to be quite excitable enough without the added stimulus of alcohol.

"I suspect that city council would look very long and hard at allowing drinking in public places," commented Ald. Sam Bawlf.

Both Bawlf and Ald. Malcolm Anderson, however, see no solid objections to permitting drinking in large regional parks.

Taking the pragmatic view, Anderson noted: "We already have people drinking in Thetis Lake Park, taking along a bottle of wine or some beer on a picnic, so in effect we would be regularizing what's already taking place.

As for drinking at sports events, Anderson recalled that there were no problems last year when the city ran a beer tent at the softball championships and said he could foresee this policy being continued under similar controlled conditions for certain outdoor sports.

"But we're obviously some years away from being able to serve beer in paper cups at the memorial Arena, as one finds at hockey games elsewhere in North America."

'DRINK, STUPIDITY' BLAMED IN ASSAULT

Kenneth Stanley Oliver, 23, of 3526 Happy Valley Road, was fined $500 today in county court and placed on probation for one year for breaking and entering an apartment on Cook Street and indecently assaulting a woman.

Judge Montague Drake said the incident arose from "drink and stupidity" but no malevolence was involved.

Oliver pleaded guilty May 14 to the break-in and assault of May 5, 1974.

Defence lawyer Peter Freeman said Oliver was "quite intoxicated at the time" but now is working, more responsible and drinking less.

'Didn't Mean To Kill Him Or Stab Him'

By ROGER STONEBANKS
Times Staff

Curtis William Christie, 19, told police he stabbed Stanford Clarence Wray last Oct. 15, city detective Douglas Richardson told B.C. Supreme Court today. (See earlier story on page 10.)

Christie is accused of murder punishable by life imprisonment in Wray's death.

The detective told the court that Christie said Wray wanted a woman and "I told him (there was) a party on Grant St. where he we could find some."

Christie, Richardson said, told him he went with Wray to Fernwood and Grant.

Asked by Richardson what happened at Fernwood and Grant, Christie said Wray stopped the car and started punching him on the shoulder, grabbed his hair and said "you'd better not be f..... me around."

Christie said that he wasn't, that the party was at the end of the street.

Christie said he started punching Wray but kept hitting the steering wheel.

"I got my knife and hit him in the chest."

"Did you realize you had stabbed him?" the detective asked.

Christie replied, "Yes, I felt the jerk as it went in his chest. It may have been his stomach, I'm not sure."

The detective asked Christie what he did then.

Christie replied he got out of the car, walked to the driver's side, saw Wray was bleeding, and pulled off his sweater to hold against the wound.

Christie said he would help him because he knew first aid. He helped him across the street but he collapsed. He checked his pulse, put his ear to his chest, but there was nothing.

Detective Richardson told the court that Christie said to him: "I didn't mean to kill him or stab him. I was going to try to help him. I mean, or I wouldn't have tried to help him after, if I tried to kill him or if I wanted to kill him."

Saanich To Try Again

Saanich municipal workers could be back at the bargaining table early next week with a new set of wage revision proposals for Saanich municipal officials, a union spokesman said today.

Jim Brett, president of the 375-member Local 374 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees said he talked with Saanich Mayor Ed Lum who indicated new negotiation meetings could resume shortly.

The Saanich local voted last week to hold a strike vote but Brett said today no date has yet been set for the vote and that "getting back to the bargaining table is of course our first priority."

The employees voted down the regional proposals accepted by other CUPE locals in the three-month civic dispute and returned to work with the understanding that negotiations on local matters would resume.

Brett said today the local had found "shortcomings" in the wage revisions classifications and is now using the computers at the University of Victoria to get new figures which will form the basis of the local's proposals.

Body Found

The body of a boy was found floating in the water at the end of Ardmore Drive early this morning.

RCMP in Sidney declined to release any information pending identification of the boy.

A spokesman said the body appeared to have been in the water for a week.

Saanich Design Panel To Be Set Up Monday

An Advisory Design Panel is expected to be appointed by Saanich council on Monday.

The lands, planning and housing committee has endorsed a recommendation by municipal planner Tom Loney that the panel should advise on all building permits in excess of $100,000, excluding single-fomily homes and duplexes.

Mayor Ed Lum pointed out this week the panel would not duplicate services now provided by the Advisory Planning Commnission, which is mainly concerned with the use of land. He said some applications could be dealt with simultaneously by the ADP and the APC.

Loney suggests the ADP should consist of himself or his representative, a member of the APC, three architects, one professional engineer, one building contractor and one other Saanich resident "selected from such occupations as landscape architect or design consultant."

Erika Leslie, president of the Saanich division, Association of Women Electors, has written council, supporting the panel in principle but recommending that the ordinary citizen should be represented on the panel.

"Members feel strongly that there ought to be at least one lay person on it (the panel)," she said, "preferably someone from a local interest group such as a ratepayers' or ecological association. This member would, of course, come under the same rule as the others, namely that he or she should have no connection with any developer or other interested party."

The AWE is also concerned that, through spiralling inflation, a relatively poor design could slip through because cost of the development would be just under the $100,000 limit for scrutiny by the ADP.

The Cadboro Bay Ratepayers' Association also supports the panel concept but is wary of having nobody but experts on it.

"We feel some anxiety that the inclusion of so many experts in the field of urban development may easily lead to decisions based more on economics and engineering practicability than on esthetic values," president Peter Corley-Smith warned council.

He suggested that at least two members of the panel should have no connection with the development industry.

The Gordon Head Ratepayers Association also favors a design panel.

"This is a step in the right direction," spokesman Barrie Goult said, "The Gordon Head ratepayers are definitely in favor of it."

Chamber Folds

Esquimalt Chamber of Commerce has folded but merchants in that municipality have been offered membership in the Victoria chamber.

Conrad Hauser, last Esquimalt chamber president, received the invitation from Victoria chamber following a meeting with members of the board of directors of the Victoria group.

Ask The Times

Q. Could you please tell me the time allowed on government spending estimates in our 10 provinces? E.S.

A. Alberta has no time limit except 30 minutes for speeches, Manitoba, New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island, Nova Scotia and Saskatchewan have no limits. Ontario limits debate to 90 sittings, Quebec to 45 days and Newfoundland to 75 hours. British Columbia's limit is 45 sittings or 135 hours. The federal government limits debate to 25 days on the main estimates and three for supplementary estimates. Debate in Britain is limited to 29 days on estimates.

Squeeze Reaches Chapel

Continual crowding at Victoria General Hospital is producing unusual storage problems and a cautious spirit on the board of directors.

The board at its meeting Thursday night heard there have been complaints about mattresses being stored in the hospital chapel.

It happened this way. One hundred new mattresses arrived without notice earlier this month and with patients overflowing into sunrooms and classrooms, the choice was leave the mattresses outside or put them temporarily in the chapel.

The mattresses were stored at the back of the chapel for the two days it took to get them distributed thoughout the wards. The front pews in the chapel were still available for worshippers, an administration spokesman explained today.

The board also heard that the provincial public workds department wants the use of about three ocres of land across Humboldt, bought earlier for hospital expansion.

While it's thought the land is wanted for temporary parking to serve interim courtrooms in the former St. Ann's Academy, the provincial department offered no explanation.

The hospital board decided it needed to know more before considering the request.

For the Islander, Both Gain and Loss

LIFE ON AN ISLAND, even such a monster as this long, mountain-spined dragon, isn't for everyone. Occasionally we meet unwilling sojourners held here by the necessities of their work who count the months or years of their stay as if serving prison terms.

As Vancouver Islanders by choice, Win and I are haunted by no such sense of isolation from mainland Canada. There are times, in fact, when we wish the moat were wider and the come-hither of this West beyond the West less potent.

Dwellers on the satellite islands anchored bows-to-weather in the Strait of Georgia are even more inclined to look down their noses at a population surge that threatens to reduce their elbow room. The islander who advertised a farm for sale on the bulletin board outside a general store stated bluntly that he would sooner not turn his acres over to "foreigners or strangers".

The old couple wh osettled on another timbered outrider in 1927 speak with yearning of their island as it once was, and with sadness of the changes they observe.

Take the "No Trespassing" signs that one sees so often now. It used to be that one short-cutted across anybody's land without a second thought. Why, chances were you'd be welcomed and fetched in for a cup of tea.

But the signs have become necessary, and had we heard of the farmer around the point who was ordered off his place — the farm his grandfather hacked out of the woods — by squatters from the city!

He came home from a day off-island and found them with tent set up.

"Private property," they told him, and "I should know," he answered them. "I own it!"

The way things were going, our Vancouver Island . . . one long shopping centre all the way north to Campbell River!

The future is casting its shadow on their presents even shadow on their present, even crowded present on the island three ferry removes from the mainland where the elderly couple dwell.

In a day's roving, most of it by dirt roads, we found little evidence of intrusion from the outside world. Forests of vigorous evergreen second-growth stand where the axe-and-crosscut loggers of an earlier era brought the old woods down. We saw no "For Sale" signs. If there were subdivisions, we missed them.

But the shadow of change was there, even though less apparent to our vision than to those who have lived remote on that island of the many for most of a lifetime.

The Sunday ferry lineups hint of it. We've had to wait out a sailing to get car space. When summer brings the tourists and the cruiser people, the beaches will be less lonely. And the subdivisions will come, as they have to the islands of the lower Strait.

The agents of change are the ferries, and toward the ferries, the islander tends to display an ambiguous attitude.

"We like what they do for us," said the laird of one wild cove. "But we hate what they're doing to us."

With the advent of a ferry run, his island has been "discovered" — a process that will continue for better or worse as city-jaded mainlanders infiltrate his preserves. He balances gain against loss. More jobs for islanders against an inevitable change in the tempo of island life — accessibility against isolation — and finds himself of a divided mind.

At the other end of the spectrum, there are islands in plenty where no ferry calls, and outports that have seen few ships since postwar years when long-gone Union or Canadian Pacific coastal steamers served them.

If time hasn't passed such islands by, at least it has dealt lightly with them.

The basic lure of all islands, large or small, populous or sparsely tenanted, is that they stand apart, each an entity unto itself. A convinced islander is never fully at home elsewhere.

He may tolerate the mainland from which comes a mixed bag of blessings and vexations. But he's happiest with island earth under his feet and a buffer space of tidewater around him.

Front Page Challenge, on 2 and 6 at 8. Special guest on the panel is Roy Bonisteel, host of the CBC series Man Alive.

Billy Liar, on 2 and 6 at 8:30. From London Weekend Television in Britain, a situation comedy series based on the play by Keith Waterhouse and Willis Hall, a stage hit which later became a feature film and now a TV series. Billy Liar is about the hilarious adventures of Billy Fisher, a bright North country lad who lies for the sheer fun of it, escaping from his humdrum life and his job in a funeral parlour in a small provincial town by inventing a fascinating life through his very vivid imagination. The complications that result from his fantasies exasperate his family, confuse his friends, and lead to hilarious mayhem. Starring Jeffe Rawle as Billy Fisher; George A. Cooper as Mr. Fisher; Pamela Vezey as Mrs. Fisher; May Warden as Billy's Grandmother.

Ginette Reno With Love, on 2 at 9. The focus is on love in this music-variety special starring popular Quebec singer Ginette Reno, with the American king of the reggae beat as special guest, pop singer Johnny Nash. Music director is Rick Wilkins. Produced and directed by Ray McConnell.

World of Gilbert and Sullivan, on 2 at 10. A seven-week series of excerpts from famous Gilbert and Sullivan operettas, introduced by Canada's Johnny Wayne and Frank Shuster, students and fans of G. & S. since they were youngsters. Wayne and Shuster also explain the pilots and comment throughout each program. Tonight: "H.M.S. Pinafore".

Starlight Theatre, on 2 at 11:40. "Moving' On", starring Claude Akins, a gypsy trucker who has diffjculty finding a co-driver. He offers the job to Frank Converse, a lawyer.

Movies

Dimples (xx), on 11 at 2. An appealing story about a waif (Shirley Temple) and an endearing fraud (Frank Morgan). There's a happy ending as usual to this film set in New York City just before the Civil War.

The Apaches Last Battle, on 7 at 6:30. This time a German-made version of the old U.S. West. Starring Lex Barker and his native pal Pierre Brice. Also on hand: Guy Madison, Daliah Lavi, Alain Tissier, and Rik Battaglia.

The Day They Hanged Kid Currie, on 12 at 7:30. Compiled from the Alias Smith and Jones series, this made-for-TV movie stars Roger Travis and Ben Murphy.

Thursday's Game (xxx), on 4 at 9. A satirical look at marriage and male friendships which centres around what takes place when the regular weekly poker club is disbanded and some of the boys decide to hang on to their night out. It features top acting performances from Gene Wilder, Bob Newhart, Ellen Burstyn and Cloris Leachman.

ELLEN BURSTYN
. . . on 4 at 9 p.m.

JACKIE GLEASON
. . . on 5 at 11:15 p.m.

Joe Kidd (xx), on 6 at 9. The setting is in New Mexico at the turn of the century for this Clint Eastwood Western. The plot revolves around some Spanish-Americans fighting for what they believe is their land, then in the hands of land barons. Eastwood sides with the Indians. Others in the cast: Robert Duvall, John Saxon, Don Stroud, Stella Garcia, James Wainwright, and Gregory Walcott.

The Log of the Black Pearl (xx), on 5 at 9 and on 6 at 11:15. An old-fashioned sailing yarn filmed in Mexican waters, in which a young stockbroker inherits a ship and sets out to find buried treasure. In this made-for-TV film are Ralph Bellamy, Kiel Martin, Anne Archer, Jack Kruschen, Glenn Corbett and John Alderson.

The Great White Hope (xxx), on 7 at 11. A 1970 adaptation of a prize-winning play in which black heavyweight boxing champion Jack Johnson is victimized and humiliated by a racist, white society. There's a dazzling performance by James Earl Jones as Johnson. His film mistress is played by Jane Alexander and support comes from Chester Morris and Hal Holbrook.

International House (xxx), on 11 at 11. A comedy about an invention which takes place in China. With W. C. Fields, Burns and Allen, Peggy Hopkins Joyce and Bela Lugosi.

The Hustler (xxxx), on 5 at 11:15. Gripping story about a pool shark who risks all by challenging the top man in the game. Superb performances from Jackie Gleason, Paul Newman, Piper Laurie and George C. Scott.

A Majority of One (xx), on 12 at 11:30. A story in which a Jewish woman meets a Japanese industrialist. First she hates him because her son died in the war but later they find common ground. With Alec Guiness, and Rosalind Russell.

SMILING FACES abound when the darling of Quebec pop music, Ginette Reno, performs on the Ginette Reno With Love, a CBC-TV special, Saturday, May 31, at 9 p.m.

Silent Film Classic Enduring Love Story

The Crowd, King Vidor's slice of life film about city life, will be shown on Channel 9 May 31 at 9:00 p.m. This silent classic, which features one of the earliest uses of a hidden mobile camera, focuses on the plight of the white-collar worker, engulfed by society. Vidor wanted to show the life of an average man, conditioned by his environment and controlled by circumstances.

The story is of Mary, a working girl, who meets John Simms, a dreamer who believes that luck will eventually bring him success. They marry after their first date. After five years and two children, John, who works as a clerk, has not distinguished himself from the rest of the "crowd."

Winning $500 in a slogan contest brightens their lives momentarily, but then the death of their younger child causes John to become despondent. He and Mary quarrel, he loses his job and becomes a door-to-door salesman.

Finally, Mary leaves him. Just as John is about to commit suicide, his son intervenes and prevents the death. Returning home, they find Mary still there.

The Crowd was one of the few silent films in the late 1920's that tried to deal with reality at all. To further fill the film with an air of authenticity, Vidor used unknown actors or professionals of ordinary appearance who were not likely to be recognized. Also, he shot many of the exteriors of New York, with a then rare hidden mobile camera.

King Vidor wrote the story and directed the film. He also did the scenario, working with John V. A. Weaver. The print to be shown on Channel 9 has been electronically enhanced, musically scored and subtly tinted.

SEE EVEL'S 'LAST JUMP'

The featured events for "ABC's Wde World of Sports" on Saturday, May 31 (5:00-6:30 p.m. on Channel 4) will be the Evel Knievel Daredevil Motorcycle Jump at Wembley Stadium, London, England, and the International Professianal Track and Field Championships from Madison Square Garden, New York City, plus another event to be announced.

American and Canadian audiences have thrilled to Evel Knievel's fantastic exploits aboard his fabled Harley-Davidson 750 XR cycle.

Evel started his spectacular jump over 13 London double decked buses from ramps some 8-10 feet tall, and he hit a speed of approximately 80 miles per hour at takeoff.

At Madison Square Garden, the mecca of U.S. indoor track and field, the world's most outstanding pro competitors will be trying for world records and cash prizes. Among the most amazing performers to be seen on the telecast will be shotputter Brian Oldfield, who electrified the sprots world with a 75 foot put, more than two feet longer than the existing world record, in an International Track Association meet seen a few weeks ago on "Wide World." On hand as an ABC Sports expert commentator will be double Olympic Gold Medalist Parry O'Brien, who revolutionized the shot put event in the 1950s.

Another featured competitor will be great Kenyan runner Ben Jipcho, who recorded his first sub-four minute mile as a pro last year at the Garden as seen on "Wide World." Other events of interest will include the sprints, the 440 and the pole vault. ABC Sportscaster for the International Professional Track and Field Championships is Jim McKay, series host of "ABC's Wide World of Sports," with miler Marty Liquori as expert commentator.

Executive Producer of "ABC's Wide World of Sports" is Roone Arledge.

Lowell Thomas Recalls 1945

Lowell Thomas recaps the extraordinary events of 1945 in Lowell Thomas Remembers 1945, May 31 at 7 p.m. on Channel 9. Movietone newsreels are used to illustrate the events and feelings of those times.

Some of the historical occurrences remembered are the end of World War II, the formation of the United Nations, the first use of the atomic bomb, and the inauguration and death of FDR.

Thomas, distinguished author, historian, and commentator, narrates these events, and presents as well films of the Battle of the Bulge, the Remagen Bridge, the death of Hitler.

Games Lenses Ready

CTV's coverage of the Winter Olympics from Innsbruck, Austria, will include some 54 hours of exclusive coverage and both CTV and TVA studio and mobile facilities are at least 75% completed, reported Johnny Esaw, vice-president, sports, who has just returned from overseas after viewing the progress on the site.

Accompanying him were Oliver Babirad, production business manager and Joe Colson, director, broadcast services for the CTV Television Netowrk.

"In order to accommodate 54 hours of broadcast material we are having the facilities built on the site iself," explained Esaw.

"We have already installed facilities for five videotape machines, sound booths and two cameras, all of which are specially imported from England."

Handling the sports productions from the Olympic site, CTV Producer Cam Rourke is presently involved in the arrangement of the facilities, schedules and assignments for the producers and announce teams of the Winter and Summer Olympics. These teams will be selected from CTV stations and will work collectively on each event.

In addition to the 54 hours of Winter Olympic coverage, plus over 20 hours from the Summer Games in Montreal, CTV is currently co-producing ten 60-minute Olympiad specials around the world in cooperation with Bud Greenspan.

The Beachcombers, on 2 and 6 at 7. "Fortunes of War". Gus Calhoun's natural animosity toward Relic accelerates into furious rivlary as the two slug it out in a fierce air-sea battle between their radio-controlled giant model planes, with each determined to be 'king o' the skies'.

Irish Rovers, on 2 and 6 at 7:30. The Ardwyn Choir from Wales is the special guest of the Rovers.

A Korda Festival, on 2 and 6 at 9. "The Private Life of Henry VIII" (Directed by Alexander Korda—1933: running time, 102 minutes)— The incomparable Charles Laughton won an Oscar as best actor for his gusty interpretation of the earthy British monarch in this rollicking story of romance, intrigue and tragedy. Hailed in both London and New York as one of the truly great British films, it also gave several supporting performers a springboard to stardom. Robert Donat portrays Thomas Culpepper, and Henry's screen wives include Merle Oberon as Anne Boleyn: Binnie Barnes, Elsa Lanchester (Laughton's real wife as well as his 'reel' wife), and Wendy Barrie. Also in the fine supporting cast are Lady Tree and Franklyn Dyall.

Salute To Korda

One filmmaker in Britain stood out among his contemporaries during the 1930s. His name was Alexander Korda.

The Hungarian-born (1893-1956) writer, director, producer, studio executive was alone able to score consistent artistic and commercial successes with his films in the lucrative but highly competitive U.S. market.

He became a British citizen in 1936 and was knighted by King George VI in 1942. Prolific, Korda's output between 1916 and 1956 totalled 141 films. He was respected as a peer by the industry's gaints —Rank, Adolf Zukor, Fairbanks, Selznick, Carol Reed, Olivier, Sam Goldwyn— collaborating with many.

It is for Korda's British films of the '30s that he is perhaps most fondly remembered, and it is mostly vintage features from that decade that will be showcased on A Korda Festival, Sunday nights at 9, starting June 1 on the CBC network.

The titles will evoke fond memories for film buffs, and should tempt young viewers to sample some of the classic films that delighted previous generations: The Private Life of Henry VIII, Four Feathers, Knight Without Armour, The Drum, The Scarlet Pimpernel.

And the stars . . . Laughton, Olivier, Leigh, Donat, Leslie Howard, Sabu, Ralph Richardson, Dietrich, John Clements, Raymond Massey, and the immortal Sir C. Aubrey Smith are just a few talents to be savored during CBC-TV's festival of Korda classics.

The series leads off June 1 at 9 p.m. with Charles Laughton romping through his Oscar-winning role of England's much-married monarch, in The Private Life of Henry VIII.

This Korda-directed tale of court romance and intrigue—laced with earthy humor—wasn't just a tour de force for Laughton, but also gave several supporting performers a springboard to stardom. The cast includes Robert Donat, Elsa Lanchester, Merle Oberon, Binnie Barnes and Wendy Barrie. Made in 1933, the black-and-white film runs just over 100 minutes.

The starting time moves up to 8:30 p.m. the following Sunday, June 8, to allow an unedited showing of the classic 1939-adventure-romance Four Feathers. This color spectacle was produced by Alexander Korda and directed by brother Zoltan. Another brother, Vincent, served as art director.

A romantic look at the heyday of British colonialism and the gallant men and courageous ladies who served the interests of an empire on which the sun ne'er set, Four Feathers relates the adventures of a man (John Clements) from a British military family who resigns his commission just before his regiment sails to Khartoum. For this act of cowardice he receives four symbolic white feathers, one each from his distraught fiancee and three former army comrades.

How he goes about redeeming himself makes for some of the juiciest adventure sequeces ever put on film. The great cast for R. C. Sheriff's screen adaptation of the A. E. W. Mason novel includes Ralph Richardson, June Duprez and C. Aubrey Smith.

Critics ranked Four Feathers among the best films ever made. J. Brooks Wilkinson, secretary of the British Board of Film Censors, reportedly told producer Korda: "The British nation should be grateful to you for producing such a picture at such a time (1939)."

REIGNING SUPREME as Henry VIII, is Charles Laughton, left, who won a best-actor Oscar for his lead role in The Private Life of Henry VIII. This 1933 film classic leads off A Korda Festival, CBC-TV's new series of vintage Korda films, Sunday, June 1, at 9 p.m.

Guns, Gore, Sex Taboo

(From 8-9 Nightly)

HOLLYWOOD — Purity, virtue and perhaps a touch of religion have been proclaimed throughout the land from 8 to 9 p.m. every night of the week by the three television networks.

"Family viewing" is the palliative name given what is bound to be as somnolent an hour as a Sunday morning sermon.

Guns, gore and set are out. So are off-color jokes. Chunky home goodness is in, as stated by amendments to the television code of the National Association of Television Broadcasters.

Arthur R. Taylor, president ofCBS, told a group of station affiliates that "we found ourselfs confronted with a growing concern over the depiction of CBS, told a group of station the changing moral climate of our society."

Translation, The networks faced federal control if they didn't clean house.

But Taylor denies government pressure forced "family viewing."

"Because family viewing is, like good taste, so difficult to define and varies from home to home, the family viewing amendments were written not as hard-and-fast rules but as statements of ethical standards . . ."

The upshot is that in 1975-76 CBS' 8-9 p.m. lineup features eight sitcoms — "Rhoda," "Phyllis," "Good Times," "Joe and Sons," "Big Eddie," "M-A-S-H," "The Jeffersons" and "Doc."

This magical hour also includes musicals "Cher" and "Tony Orlando and Dawn."

The only trouble spot might be Cher's belly button.

Safest of all is the soporific standby, "The Waltons."

CBS switched "Kojak" and "All in the Family" out of that time span and cancelled "Gunsmoke!" altogether to save kids from sin, slaughter and sophistication.

Taylor said, "in September stations and networks subscribing to the television code will be required to abstain from broadcasting entertainment programs inappropriate for viewing by general family audiences during the designated evening prime-time hours.

"Occasional single programs, if deemed by the broadcasters to be possibly unsuitable for family viewing, will carry advisories to that effect."

To cynics who label the networks' efforts as a public relations sop, the CBS man holds up a reproving hand.

". . . By adopting the family viewing amendments, this industry was not bowing to government pressure . . .

"Nor was it overreacting to public clamor. We were not admitting or acknowledging any relationships between television viewing and societal change. "We worked out and adopted family viewing because it was what the public expected of us, and what we expected of ourselves."

The networks cannot prevent some little imps from staying up until 9:30 to watch the likes of "Cannon," "Hawaii Five-O" and the adult Thursday night movies on Taylor's own network.

Reagan 'Faces Nation'

Ronald Reagan, former Governor of California, will be the guest on "Face the Nation" Sunday, June 1 (4:30 p.m. on Channels 7, 12). The interview will originate live in Washington, D.C.

Reagan will be interviewed by CBS News Correspondent George Herman, moderator of the weekly broadcast, and two other reporters to be selected.

RANGER J. AUDUBON WOODLORE, spokesman for many Disney wildlife programs, is on the job again Sunday on Channel 2 at 6 and on Channel 5 at 7:30 for Nature's Charter Tours.

Maude, on 7 and 12 at 9. When Maude and Arthur catch their spouses in an embrace, no amount of explanation can convince Maude that Walter and Vivian are not having an affair.

V.I.P. on 2 and 6 at 10. Tonight, Lorraine Thomson talks with two very interesting people — Beverly Harrell, of Lida Junction, Nevada, who owns a string of brothels, which are legal in Nevada. Ms. Harrell talks about her profession and how she ran for a seat in the Nevada Legislature, only to be defeated. She's the product of a middle-class Jewish family in Brooklyn, N.Y., she tells Lorraine Thompson, and she attended exclusive private schools. Second conversation is with civil rights advocate Jerry Rubin, who tells all about the famous Chicago Seven trial and the politics behind it. Rubin talks about being in jail after his conviction, and his change in personality — he says his old clown image is gone.

Status of Children, on 2 and 6 at 10:30. "Children — The Invisible Population", focuses on the denial to children of civil rights. This program draws on the ideas of two authors who have written books on the subject: Dr. Richard Farson, author of 'Birthrights — A Bill of Rights for Children' and John Holt, author of 'Escape from Childhood—The Needs and Rights of Children'. Both men, in differennt approaches, advocate the idea of children having from birth the same civil rights as those enjoyed by adults.

Caribe, on 4 at 10. "Vanished" — Lt. Ben Logan and Sgt. Mark Walters follow the broken trail of Andrea Lewis, a noted woman pilot who blows up her own plane, becomes a murder suspect and then a target for gangland execution. Guest stars are Joanna Pettet and Andrea Lewis, Jason Evers as Ed Robbins, Brett Somers as Mama Jean, Felice (cq) Orlandi as Alex Ramos and William Traylor as Paul Diekey. Barry Crane directed the teleplay by Robert I. Holt.

Middle-Aged Get 'Jollies' From TV Sex

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Frank Capra, winner of three Oscars for non-violent movies, said it is middle aged people who get their jollies from sex and violence, not young folk.

Capra arrived at this conclusion while speaking at 55 colleges and universities during the past two years.

He is invited to campuses across the country to attend retrospectives of his films and to address classes on film-making. At no charge.

"It's the most useful work I've done," said the 78-year-old Capra.

"I'm amazed at the impact of my pictures on the kids. What they like best about my films is the dignity and the divinity of the individual. I'm astonished to see these youngsters leave the theatres with tears streaming down their faces.

"They are touched by the characters in 'Mr. Deeds Goes to Town,' 'Mr. Smith Goes to Washington' and 'It's A Wonderful Life.'

"There was no sex or violence in those pictures or any of the others I directed. It's middle aged people who tell themselves they want to see what they suppose their children are watching in movies.

"Well I can tell you this, university students are tired of explicit sex. They strongly oppose violence.

"God knows sex and violence are a part of human nature, but it's unnecessary to dwell on them in movies. There's no question you can make good pictures today without either one. 'The Sting' and 'Harry and Tonto' are good examples.

"What audiences love most is an appeal to their hearts and emotions. The formula is still effective because I see it work on college kids today."

Capra is permanently retired at his Palm Springs home. His first book, "Name Above the Title," sold more than 200-000 copies. He is at work on another.

When he isn't visiting universities, Capra plays golf with old friends, including former army football coach Red Blaik and President Ford.

"I haven't thought about directing another picture," he said. "But I would love to finish the script of 'Joseph and His Brethren' which I started with Harry Cohn at Columbia 17 years ago.

Capra appeared on the tube May 1 for "The Columbia Pictures 50th Anniversary Special."

Clips from "Platinum Blonde," "Mr. Deeds," "Mr. Smith," "Lost Horizon," "It Happened One night" and "You Can't Take It With You" were featured.

Heart Attack —What to Do?

If you discovered a friend suffering a heart attack, what would you do? Should you be concerned about recurring chest pains?

The answers to these and other questions about heart disease will be revealed in a series of special reports on "AM America," the entertainment-information program on the ABC Television Network, during the week of June 2-6.

"AM America's" guest medical contributor, Dr. Timothy Johnson, will conduct the five-part series, providing basic, practical information on heart disease, an affliction which kills more Americans annually than cancer.

On Monday, June 2, Dr. Johnson will describe the various types of heart disease (coronary artery disease, angina), as well as heart attacks.

The series continues on Tuesday, June 3, with a discussion of the symptoms — what they indicate and how reliable they are in diagnosing heart disease. Dr. Johnson will emphasize the importance of the electrocardiogram (EKG). Also, film of an angiography, a delicate diagnostic test in which a tube is inserted through the arteries to check for blockage, will be shown.

Cardiopulmonary resuscitation will be the subject of Dr. Johnson's report on Wednesday, June 4.

Today's Highlights

Music Victoria, On Cable 10 at 7:30. A recital series featuring outstanding Victoria students over several consecutive weeks. Many of them are involved in Canadian music competitions and the Victoria Music Festival.

Adventures in Rainbow Country, on 2 at 7:30. "Frank Williams' File" — Saunders, a man claiming to be an RCMP inspector comes to Nancy Williams' lodge, telling her that her husband may still be alive, thousands of miles away in British Columbia. To familiarize himself with Frank Williams' background, he arranges for tugboat skipper Dougal MacGregor and bush pilot Dannis Mogubgub to take him to the site of Frank's wilderness cabin, along with Billy and Pete Gawa. Saunders' strange behaviour arouses hopes again in Nancy, Billy and their freinds. Could Frank have survived the two-year-old plane crash? Billy: Stephen Cottier; Nancy: Louis Maxwell; Pete: Buckley Petawabano; Dougal: Alan Mills; Dennis; Wally Koster; Saunders: Don Harron.

M-A-S-H, on 7 at 8:30. A thief is caught trying to steal penicillin from the 4077th's supply tent, bringing to light a plot thick with aliases. Alan Alda stars as Hawkeye, with Wayne Rogers as Trapper John, McLean Stevenson as Lt. Col. Blake, Loretta Swit as Hot Lips, Larry Linville as Maj. Frank Burns, Gary Burghoff as Radar, and William Christopher as Father Mulcahy.

On The Road, on 2 and 6 at 9. This is the opening show in a variety series hosted by singer-composer Tom Gallant. It features Marty Reno, a folk singer from Prince Edward Island, and other Maritime musicians will also get the opportunity to show their skills.

Of Pure Blood, on 9 at 9:30. In this documentary special Nazi Germany's attempts to breed a master race are clearly portrayed. It concentrates on a plan by Heinrich Himmler to persuade German women to mate with his elite troops. The film, by the husban-and-wife team of Marc Hillel and Clarissa Henry, includes interviews with witnesses, SS officers and kidnap victims.

Aquarium World, on 2 and 6 at 10:30. "The Aquarium". Host Bob Switzer introduces a friend — the architect and director of one of North America's largest and most distinguished aquariums — Dr. Murray Newman. Murray and Bob take viewers on a highlights tour of western Canada's internationally acclaimed show place and home for some 5,000 aquatic animals. Having introduced viewers to the Aquarium World, Bob and Murray extend an invitation to the series and the World Aquarium.

Today's Highlights

Look Who's Here

Outspoken Gordon Sinclair of Toronto interviews equally outspoken Ma Murray of Lillooet, B.C., on the opening show of Look Who's Here, a summer series starting on CBC-TV Tuesday, June 3, at 10 p.m. Never known for asking delicate questions, Sinclair may well find his match in crusty Ma's biting tongue.

Real Sea Adventures

Some spectacular real-life sea advantures are presented to viewers who watch World Aquarium, a new series to debut on CBC-TV Tuesdays at 10:30 p.m. beginning June 3.

The seven half-hour Vancouver-produced programs show marine life in the North and South Pacific. They also include frightening and remarkable experiences such as weathering a death-defying trip in a raging storm off Canada's West Coast and underwater swimming in magnificent coral valleys of the Barrier Reef off Australia.

The actual filmed events were experienced by the camera crews, Bob Switzer, who is the TV series host, and scientist Dr. Murray Newman, director of the world-famous Vancouver Public Aquarium.

The frightening but typical West Coast storm happened while the TV party was in a 20-foot inflated life boat attempting to go ashore to a sea lion rookery. They had debarked from the Canadian department of fisheries' vessel Comox Post as 15-foot seas pounded.

"It was no joke," said Bob Switzer, "specially when close to the rocks with the wind screaming. I was holding to the life lines and also to cameraman Harry Nuttall, who was filming all-the-while."

In contrast to the North Pacific storm is the calm of underwater film footage. The most spectacular was filming the magnificent coral valleys of the Barrier Reef, said Switzer. Here, he scuba dived for the first time. "There's every color imaginable when down 100 feet," he said. "The sea creatures swim right up to you. You have the feeling they're trying to converse with you."

The first show of the series on June 3, is an introduction to the Vancouver Public Aquarium, home of 5,000 aquatic animals including the two killer whales, Skana and Hayak. It was the Vancouver Aquarium which pioneered the captivity of whales.

The second and third programs on June 10 and 17 contrast Sydney, Australia and Vancouver harbors and underwater flira and fauna of the two different coasts.

Program number four is on sea lions, seal and basking shark of British Columbia waters.

The following programs document marine life support systems, migration of spawning sockeye salmon and the life of whales and dolphins.

World Aquarium was photographed by Harry Nuttall and Roy Luckow. Series producer is Gordon Glynn, producer of four of the programs was Doug Gillingham.

PAUL ROBESON — concert singer, actor, linguist, attorney, athlete, political activist — is profiled for the first time on national TV June 3 at 11:30 p.m. on Channel 9.

Of Pure Blood Chills Revived

Hitler's plan to eliminate the "unfit" racial groups through warfare, starvation and extermination camps has been well documented. But the second part of his plan — Lebensborn — to produce a master race, is less well known. In Of Pure Blood the chilling story of the Nazi breeding program is revelaed. Because of extremely heavy viewer response, Channel Nine is repeating this film June 3 at 9:30 p.m.

Thousands of people still carry the physical and emotional scars of Lebensborn. This documentary interviews some of these children and their parents — people who still remeber the horror of separation as Aryan types were kidnapped from conquered countries to be raised as Germans. Eighty per cent of the 200,000 Polish children kidnapped never returned: their parents anguish is clear.

The film's producers — Clarissa Henry and Marc Hillel — also talk with some of the people who ran the houses for pregnant women, where perfect Aryan children were to be raised. Many still refuse to see anything wrong with their actions.

The documentary is carefully researched, with the producers spending over three years tracking down families and facts. Of Pure Blood is produced by Clarissa Henry and Marc Hillel, and distributed by Agence Franchaise d'Images, Paris.

Today's Highlights

Password, at noon on 4. Lynn Redgrave and Richard Dawson are the celebrity players on the ABC Television Network's game show, "Password," during the week of June 2-6. Allen Ludden is host of "Password," the fast-paced show in which the two celebrity players and four contestants attempt to guess passwords from one word clues.

Juliette and Friends, on 2 at 3. Tune in for instruction on how to prepare lasagna.

Expos Baseball, on 2 and 6 at 5. Los Angeles Dodgers vs. The Expos at Jarry Park in Montreal. Dave Van Horne calls the play, while Duke Snider, former Dodger great, provides color commentary.

Seattle Sounders Soccer, on 4 at 7. A look at the games between the Sounders and Los Angeles, May 30, and against Chicago, June 1. Also included is a preview of the June 6 game against Boston by coach John Best and Bruce King.

Little House on the Prairie, on 5 at 8. A crisis develops when citizens buy up the store's cornmeal at a bargain rate only to learn later that the grain is infested with rats carrying typhus.

Tony Orlando and Dawn, 7 at 8. Guests are Esther Rolle of Good Times and Lloyd Bridges.

Feeling Good, on 9 at 8. Some points of conflict that arise between parents and teen-agers are brought into focus by students of New York City's High School of the Performing Arts. Host Dick Cavett offers suggestions for settling the differences.

World Wide Special, on 4 at 11:30. Nichols and May, Abbott and Costello, Rowan and Martin, Martin and Lewis, Lenny Bruce, Jackie Gleason, Charlie Chaplin and the Keystone Kops are all on view in "Milton Berle's Mad Mad World of Comedy" to be rebroadcast on the ABC Television Network, Wednesday, June 4. Milton Berle, host for the program which originally aired Nov. 20, 1974, conducts a comprehensive and historical examination of those funny people who have tickled America's funny bone through the years. Berle interviews such diverse comedy stylists as Dick Martin (partner of Dan Rowan), silent film comic Eddie Quillan, rustic storyteller Pat Buttram and satirist Mort Sahl. Film segments focus on Charlie Chaplin, Buster Keaton, the Keystone Kops, Eddie Quillan, Lenny Bruce in his last night-club routine, and Will Rogers. Recalled from vintage TV shows are Abbott and Costello in their classic "Who's on First?" routine, Rowan and Martin performing one of their 1955 skits, Mike Nichols and Elaine May in a hilarious exchange, Milton Berle doing a bit with Jackie Gleason, and Martin and Lewis whooping it up on "The Milton Berle Show."

SHOWDOWN comes when two old friends find their relationship is strained when they fall in love with the same woman and then find themselves on opposite sides of the law. A common enemy brings them together for a final showdown. Starring Rock Hudson and Susan Clark (above) and also Dean Martin. It's on Channel 8 Wednesday, June 4, at 9 p.m.

Big Band Sound

The sounds of the '30s and '40s, the music that evokes memories of polished dance floors, prom nights and the smell of gardenias, will be heard again on Big Band Cavalcade, June 4 at 7 p.m. this special Channel Nine repeat features Bob Crosby, Frankie Carle, Margaret Whiting, Freddy Martin and other great big band performers.

This program is a taped performance of the Big Band Cavalcade which attracted more than 300,000 people in its 89 city tour. Extra care, and specialized audio technology was applied to preserve the extraordinary presence and clarity of the original concert.

Martin's contributions include the famous "Begin the Beguine," as well as a medley of hits from "Intermizzo" to "Cumana." The old favorites "Good Ship Lollypop," "That Old Balck Magic," and "Moonlight in Vermont" are remembered by Margaret Whiting, who also performs "It Might as Well Be Spring," "Honey," and Sleepy Time Gal."

Carle offers "Sunrise Serenade," a medley of "Sweat Loraine," "Louise," and "Margie," along with his "Carleboggie."

Beaver to Baretta

From Little Beaver to a little old lady — that's a pretty wide range of characterization -- but actor Robert Blake has encompassed it in a career that began when he was two years old.

Blake went to Hollywood when he was five to join the "Our Gang" kids comedy troupe. Later, he played Little Beaver (photo at right) in the Red Ryder movies.

As a grown-up actor he starred in such movies as "In Cold Blood," "Electra Glide in Blue," "Tell Them Willie Boy Is Here," and "Busting." And, starring in his first television series, "Baretta," (Wednesday at 10 p.m., on Channel 4) he plays an unconventional detective who dons various disguises in his pursuit of criminals.

CTV Tries Kidstuff

The 1975 fall season on CTV will see the premiere of an all-new variety-magazine children's show which will air on Saturday mornings. "Kidstuff" is aimed at Canadian children, eight to eleven years old, with the purpose of providing a combination of entertainment and educational enrichment for this age group.

Arthur Weinthal, CTV's vice president and director of entertainment programming, said that "Kidstuff' is "the culmination of a long period of in-depth study by the Network, and probably is the most researched network program series to come to CTV.".

"Kidstuff" was conceived when it was noted that existing television programming for Canadian children today provided little more than amusement or entertainment. Programs which do attempt to educate or enlighten are generally aimed at a pre-school audience.

There remains a great wasteland for the pre-teens, who have nothing to choose from but 'kiddy' shows and adult programs. The 8-11 year olds of today have developed a sophistication which must be catered to in order to attract and enlighten them.

After a long period of evaluation, the objectives determined for the series were as follows:

—The heightening of social awareness.

—The stimulation of imagination and wonder.

—Broadening awareness of various options (career opportunities, physical fitness).

—Learning of specific skills (Communications, problem-solving).

—Presentation of useful information (history, geography, music, general knowledge).

—Active involvement with television (how to talk back to your TV set).

The series will contain topics from language arts to Canadian history, from media literacy to arts and crafts, from music appreciation to problem-solving, from film-making to physical fitness, and from animal care to geography. The audience will be encouraged to become actively involved in the program by providing jokes, riddles, homemade films and inventions of their own to be used within the show.

"Kidstuff" is distinctly Canadian and will highlight the unique people and cultures from all parts of our country to ensure that the program will meet the needs of all its viewers.

Arthur Weinthal stated that the Network was most fortunate to have "captured the brightest production people in any field—a group which is superbly competent and force behind the series". Bill Hartley is the producer. Cliff Jones will compose all the music as well as co-writing material with Hartley. Janis Nostbakken is educational supervisor.

'Good Old Days' Here In Music

"I hope never to be the kind of singer who says 'The songs of today are awful'," says Andy Williams, singer of smooth songs and popular television host. "The 'good ole days' are today in the music industry."

"I think the current trend in music is back to simplicity and well-constructed songs with lyrics you can believe," says Williams, whose voice has been described as "the smile you can hear."

"Most of the enduring, big songs like 'Moon River,' are simple, and artists recognize that fact," he says.

Williams first sang with his family in a small church choir, from which he and his brothers moved on to become a top radio vocal group. "When we disbanded the Williams Brothers in 1952, my career was shaky for a few years, and I almost quit several times," Williams recalls. "I kept working hard at this business for fear of failure, and I just wouldn't have known what else to do."

More than 30 years later, Williams' mellow approach to his music has turned eleven of his albums to million-selling "gold" and made him a television star and a sure-sell-out concert performer.

In a time when so many recording artists vie for one short-lived hit record, Andy Williams continued to be a consistent million-selling pillar of talent, a fitting host for the presentation of the recording industry's top honors.

"Recording is my first love," he acknowledges, "because I can reach so many people through a record. I'm a singer for the masses," he says simply, "just trying to achieve some form of communication."

The Waltons, on 7 and 12 at 8. Grandma and Grandpa move out of the Walton home because of disputes with the rest of the family in "The Caretakers." Richard Thomas stars as John-Boy Walton, Ralph Waite as John, Michael Leanred as Olivia, Ellen Corby as Grandma, Will Geer as Grandpa, Judy Norton as Mary Ellen, Jon Walmsley as Jason, Mary McDonough as Erin, Eric Scott as Ben, David Harper as Jim-Bob, Kami Cotler as Elizabeth, Joe Conley as Ike Godsey, Helen Kleeb as Mamie Baldwin and Mary Jackson as Emily Baldwin.

Bill Moyer's Journal, on 9 at 8. This is the conclusion of a two-part report on life in Japan. It includes an interview with Prime Minister Takeo Miki, a look at a play by Kobo Abe, and a film visit to the construction site of a tunnel designed to link the islands of Hokkaido and Honshu.

The Pallisers, on 2 at 9:30. Based on novels by the 19th century English Anthony Trollope, this 26-episode, one-hour drama serial from BBC TV in Britain is in the tradition of The Forsyte Saga, and stars Susan Hampshire and Philip Latham. One of the finest sequences of diction ever to be based on British parliamentary life, the Palliser novels tell the story of a political dynasty which moves through high society in the heydey of Queen Victoria's reign. Tonight: Episode 10.

Maclear, on 8 at 9:30. In The Newest Profession, reporter Maclear presents a report on sex therapy, including interviews with Sr. William Masters and Virginia Johnson, and also a visit to a Canadian sex-therapy clinic.

He's Not John Wayne

By KENNETH BRIGGS

PITTSBURGH (NYT) — Fred Rogers, the television "neighbor" to millions of American children, was having a Band-Aid applied to a sore finger. It might have been an episode right out of a "Mister Rogers" segment, helping toddlers deal with skinned knees and scraped elbows.

But Rogers was not on camera. He stood in front of the Production set — an unpretentious living room and kitchen — and explained that in this case the Band-Aid would be taken off before the taping began. Why? "Because then I'd have to deal with it," he said.

Rogers rarely lets the minutest detail escape his notice. A hurt finger, he said, would have to be explained, because children would be concerned for his health, and he did not want to arouse their anxiety.

With the same painstaking care for nuances Rogers has acted as guide for children through the mysteries, perplexities and worries of growing up.

His format, consisting of half-hour "visits" that suggest the casual folksiness of small-town life, will soon go on without fresh infusions of the Rogers creativity. He has finished his last program and will soon leave on an extended vacation to the Far East and to his "Crooked House" in Nantucket, where he formerly churned out upward of 60 scripts each summer.

During his respite, the first, he says, he has had in 20 years, Rogers will ponder future projects that may include writing more operas for children (a composer by training, he has written four), possibly a program for adults and a number of specials.

Meanwhile, "Mister Rogers' Neighborhood," will continue the pattern of past seasons, with its host performing his speciality, on reruns.

Gently, with a grasp of children's perceptions, he has led them vicariously through a range of experiences such as visits to the dentist, inoculations by the doctor and sadness over the death of a pet.

In a spritely and imaginative manner, he also leads them to discover caterpillars, shows them how to make modelling dough and sings songs that, like an everyday variety of opera, simply blend into the goings-on.

Rogers has written, produced and directed the program for eight years with one aim in mind; enabling children to deal with the emotions and wonders of growing up.

Once asked to describe what he does, he responded, "Help children as much as I can to cope with what may come in life."

After eight years and hundreds of episodes, Rogers has staged his final live taping session and will concentrate on paring down the total to 455 segments, which will continue to be shown on the 237 public television stations that carry the program.

Each show deals mostly with feelings, as Rogers attempts to scale ideas to children without being childish. "It is honest empathetic adults that children need so much in their developing years," Rogers said at a Yale symposium in 1972 (he holds an honorary doctorate from Yale). "And television needs to provide more of them."

He calls his collection of programs a "course in child development," largely because every piece of programing is intended to contribute to that end. His most salient message is one of self-acceptance, a subject that involves telling children repeatedly that they are "special" and that he likes "you just the way you are."

The message is tied closely to Rogers's religious views. He is an ordained Presbyterian minister, married with two sons.

Rogers said his basic premise is that "if we can somehow feel accepted and loved as we are — and I do think that's what Jesus came to live out — then we can begin to care for somebody else."

Some critics say his mild-mannered approach and his stress on caring makes him too soft to be an effective male image. "I'm not John Wayne," drolly, "so consequently for some people I'm not the model for the man of the house."

"Big bruisers sit down and watch with their kids, then write to say, 'I didn't think much of you until I had kids and saw what was going on, but I'll tell you I now watch and enjoy it."

SOME of the audience dance on stage as the Preservation Hall Jazz Band plays its authentic old-time New Orleans jazz. The concert will be presented June 5 at 9 p.m. on Channel 9.

Jazz Crowd Rushes Stage

In performance At Wolf Trap presents old time New Orleans jazz with the Preservation Hall Jazz Band, June 5 at 9:30 p.m. on Channel 9. Halfway through this rousing concert, the audience rushes the stage, cheering, listening and dancing.

The men who make up the Preservation Hall Jazz Band range in age from 61-84. Combing more than 350 years of musical experience, they all appeared with many of the important New Orleans jazz bands of the past.

The band's five regular members include: "Big Jim" Robinson — formerly the trombone player with the famous Sam Morgan Jazz Band, and with Bunk Johnson and George Lewis.

Josiah "Cie" Frazier — drummer for Bessie Smith.

Willie Humphrey — clarinetist with the Excelsior Brass Band and with King Oliver.

Percy Humphrey — trumpet player and co-leader of the Sweet Emma Barrett-Preservation Hall Jazz Band and the Eureka Brass Band.

"Sing" Miller — pianist who has worked with Kid Rena, Chris Kelly and Earl Foster.

Joining them on tuba is Allan Jaffe, who helped establish Preservation Hall in 1961 — converting an old New Orleans carriage house into a small concert hall where old time musicians could play.

In this performance, the Preservation Hall Jazz Band plays a large number of favorites including "Bourbon Street Parade," "Basin Street Blues," "Amen," "Careless Love," "Little Liza Jane," and "Closer Walk with Thee." They end the show by trouping off stage playing "When the Saints Go Marchin' In," and leading the huge crowd in an impromptu parade.

Busy CBC Season Ahead

New emphasis on current affairs programming, more major drama, three new situation comedies (one for children), a new gospel music series, pre-Olympic, entertainment and Women's Year specials and a large scale drama-documentary on the October 1970 crisis, highlight the Canadian-produced portion of its 1975-76 schedule, the CBC television network has announced.

Canadian-produced content in the new schedule is 68.5 per cent, which is the same as last year. The non-Canadian programming schedule will be released shortly.

New series include: The Great Canadian Culture Hunt; Flight: The Passionate Affair; and a new weekly prime time current affairs magazine show as yet untitled.

The King of Kensington; Peep Show; The Real Story; Sidestreet, new 90-minute drama specials.

Oooh Canada!; Celebration; Celebrity Cooks; new Luncheon Date.

Some Of My Best Friends Are Men; Arts Magazine.

Report on Sex Therapy

Michael Maclear reports on sex therapy, the newest mushrooming branch of the medical profession in the repeat episode of "Maclear" titled "The Newest Profession" airing Thursday, June 5 on the CTV Television Network.

Included in this episode are interviews with Masters and Johnson, the leading sexologists in North America and an interview with a female sex surrogate who makes house calls to help men overcome their sexual dysfunctions, and a male surrogate.

The program also looks at the rapid growth of unlicensed and unqualified sex therapy clinics at work in North America. Maclear also takes a closer look at sex therapy in Canada.

"Maclear" is produced by Don McQueen with Executive Producer Don Cameron. The correspondent is Michael Maclear.

Today's Highlights

Untamed World, on 4 at 7:30. Isolated tribes living in a rain forest are filmed in remote areas of New Guinea.

Six Million Dollar Man, on 8 at 7:30. Steve is stranded in a diving bell on the ocean floor when troops from a Caribbean country capture the marine-research crew with which he has been working.

All In The Family, on 2 and 6 at 8. Edith attends an out-of-town family wedding and encounters a dear childhood friend, Cousin Roy.

Hot'l Baltimore, on 4 at 9. April Green and Bill Lewis dare to reveal their affection for each other in all its bittersweet aspects. In "The Date," April induces a very reluctant Bill into taking her out for a big night on the town, resulting in an evening that neither they nor their friends will ever forget. The series stars Conchata Ferrell as April Green, James Cromwell as Bill Lewis, Al Freeman, Jr., as Charles Bingham, Richard Masur as Clifford Ainsley, Jeannie Linero as Suzy Marta Rocket, Stan Gottlieb as Mr. Morse, Robin Wilson as Jackie, Gloria Le Roy as Millie, Lee Bergere as George, Henry Calvert as Gordon and Charlotte Rae as Mrs. Bellotti. Bob LaHendro directed the teleplay by Ron Clark.

Sprockets, on 2 at 10:30. Hosts Marc Stone and Patricia Murphy introduce a dramatic film titled Reunion, by 23-year-old Calgary-born Murray Battle, who now lives and works in Toronto. Murray wrote, produced, directed and edited this mature film drama while he was a student in a film course at the University of Toronto. Viewers should watch this one closely — for things are not all they seem to be.

Wide World Special, on 4 at 11:30. Gary U.S. Bonds, the Coasters, Chubby Checker, Little Richard, the Shirelles, the Dovells and the Five Satins are the starring performers in "Rock 'n' Roll Revival," a "Wide World Special" evoking the nostalgia of early rock music.

"Rock 'n' Roll Revival," which was originally seen June 12, 1974, opens with Gary U.S. Bonds performing "School Is Out," "New Orleans" and "Quarter to Three." The Dovells performs tunes which created new dance crazes, including "Hully Gully Baby" and "Bristol Stomp." The Coasters follow with "Searchin'," "Charlie Brown, "Poison Ivy,' and "Yakkaty Yak," Chubby Checker, who ushered in the Twist, sings "Lets Twist Again," and the tune that started it all, "The Twist," among others. The Shirelles offer "Dedicated to the One I Love" and "Soldier Boy," followed by the Five Satins with "Wonderful Girl,' "In the Still of the Night" and "I'll Be Seeing You." Little Richard sings his classics, "Lucille," "Tutti Fruitti," "Good Golly Miss Molly," "Jenny Jenny," "Slippin' 'n' Slidin'," "Long Tall Sally,' "Miss Ann,' "Keep a Knockin" and "Send Me Some Lovin'." The program was taped at the Capital Centre, Landover, Maryland.
